MANY RALLY TO FLOOD VICTIM'S AID

BACK BAY — Things are looking up for the Forrest H. Davis family, thanks to the many friends and organizations that rallied to their aid after a Colorado flood washed away most of their belongings.

This time last week the family of seven faced some rather serious problems, the most pressing being the complete reclothing of the parents and five children and transportation to their new location in California.

Not all of their problems have been solved, of course, but the situation certainly looks brighter than it did a few days ago.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has eased much of the burden by providing funds for the purchase of all new clothing and food for the family during their stay in Virginia Beach. The Red Cross chapter in Limon, Colo., where the flood occurred on June 17, supplied a transportation grant which Davis used to buy a car.

The Virginia Beach Needlework Guild furnished all new clothing for the Davis' 6-month-old baby, a Sunday School class of Charity Methodist Church has volunteered various means of assistance and a number of interested citizens have contacted the local Red Cross with offers of clothing.

"It's wonderful how people have helped our son and his family," Mrs. Virginia Davis of Back Bay said Wednesday. "The Red Cross has been so good to them and so many people have shown interest in helping. Everything is going very well now. I think they are going to be all right."

Navy man Davis, who recently returned from Viet Nam, was bringing his wife and children from their home in Seattle, Washington, to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Davis, before making a transfer to California. They had stopped overnight in Limon when a flash flood routed them from their motel room. They reached safety on the motel's roof but their car and all of their clothing were destroyed.

The family will leave here July 8, Mrs. Davis said, on the long cross-country trip. The Navy Relief was unable to aid them in their transportation plans because Davis was not on emergency leave — only a leave that became an emergency. Their furniture awaits them at the other end. "They're going to make it all right," Mrs. Davis said.

EARLY DEADLINE

The Virginia Beach Sun offices will be closed Monday for the Fourth of July holiday. An early deadline of noon Friday has been set for all news items for next week's edition. We hope all who read this notice will have a pleasant week-end and urge each of you to DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Beach Watched By Guardians

VIRGINIA BEACH — Nothing in the world is more important than life itself.

Parents and friends of drowned victims here and in the Tidewater area know this better than those more fortunate.

To preserve life and warn against the perils of deep waters is a noble vocation.

The treacherous July 4 weekend begins Saturday and by Monday will end. A few persons could drown somewhere in the Tidewater area because of large vacation crowds and individuals who take needless chances.

On last year's July 4 weekend, no persons lost their lives in swimming and boating accidents at Virginia Beach. But, perfect records soon evaporate.

The lifeguards who are trained to save lives are ready to stand by and warn bathers of dangerous conditions in the water. How are they organized?

The boys are strong in body and able swimmers. As many as four separate life guard stands are set up during their training on the beach so that each one can be observed and supervised more individually.

Each guard must have a senior Red Cross life saving certificate. The assistant life guards must have the Junior Red Cross life saving certificate and training in first aid.

The lifeguards are organized and trained by the Umbrella Beach Service, which is owned by veterans of over 30 years in life guarding supervision, Dusty Hinnant and Hugh Kitchin.

These men were life guards themselves at one time. Boys who are selected as life guards must be good swimmers, have a good attitude toward the public, be honest and have a sense of responsibility.

Three lieutenants check life guards' performance at all times: Charlie Meachum, Kent (Duke) Hinnant and Clarence Short.

The typical image of the life guard, in many eyes, is a bronzed adonis who spends his days flirting with girls. His hair is bleached, aided and abetted by sun and the drug store.

He is rarely called on to do anything which resembles work or takes effort.

One afternoon spent looking over Virginia Beach's life guards will prove how false this image is.

They work constantly by being there. They are always prepared for emergencies and the unexpected. They overlook the fringes of possible tragedy every second that someone is out in the ocean.

Their greatest compensation on the job comes from knowing how needed they are here.

Candidates Air Various Opinions And Platforms At Open Forum

THALIA — Five candidates for the 3rd District's three state Senate seats spoke their views and answered questions before a sparse audience of over one hundred people Monday night at Princess Anne High School.

Sponsored by the Norfolk-Virginia Beach League of Women Voters, the occasion was a non-partisan political rally in the town hall.

Del. William P. Kellam of Virginia Beach said he supported the "Liberty Amendment" in the last regular session of the General Assembly, but he said he didn't favor repeal of the federal income tax.

The Liberty Amendment is a resolution introduced in many state legislatures designed to protect "unconstitutional" encroachments of federal power over the states.

It includes a provision which calls for repeal of the 16th amendment, which provides for income tax.

L. Charles Burlage, Virginia Beach independent, said appropriations for the Seashore State Park should be increased and something should be done to acquire beach footage at Camp Pendleton for park facilities.

The 3rd Senatorial District was created by the recent reapportionment of the General Assembly and includes the cities of Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach.

Besides Kellam and Burlage, candidates are incumbent Sens

William B. Spong Jr. of Portsmouth and Gordon F. Marsh of Chesapeake and Del. William H. Hodges of Chesapeake.

Hodges endorsed the "Godwin plan" for education, which provides for a $5,000 minimum salary for teachers and extra incentive pay for those earning master's degrees.

All candidates charged that Virginia's pay-as-you-go fiscal policy is retarding the state's development. They pointed to the toll booths in the Tidewater area as a deterrent to tourism and industrial development.

Spong drew laughter from other candidates and the audience by reminding everyone that "my opponents have urged the election of one candidate from each of the three districts. I'm the only candidate from Portsmouth so I hope you'll remember that."

Kellam and Burlage both strongly favored local option for whisky by the drink. "I believe whisky by the drink might encourage temperance," Kellam said.

Spong told the people, "I am running on my record. I am a great believer in doing something for higher education. We must gauge our progress in Virginia not by looking back to our past but we must look to what is being done on a national scale."

Marsh emphasized the "better things of life" which improved educational advantages can make possible.

All candidates called for more money for Virginia's public schools and colleges.

HARROWING DRIVE ENDS SAFELY

VIRGINIA BEACH — Quick police action Tuesday afternoon prevented what could have been highway slaughter when a 15-year-old Thoroughbred youngster, who reportedly could not drive, ran his parents car rampant along city streets at speeds allegedly exceeding 90 miles per hour.

Despite the tragic possibilities, however, the incident ended without mishap. The youngster crashed the car into a parked vehicle at 26th Street and Arctic Avenue but walked away from the wreck uninjured.

Police said the youth took some cash from his mother's pocketbook and the family car and headed for Virginia Beach, traveling along Shore Drive, Great Neck Road and First Colonial Road and onto Virginia Beach Boulevard.

A phone call alerted police of the desperate situation. They immediately set up emergency measures, blocking traffic in the congested areas to keep other cars out of the path of the runaway vehicle.

Patrolman William D. Haden tried to overtake the speeding car and reported that it was clocked at over 90 miles per hour.

The youngster apparently lost control of the car after turning onto Arctic Avenue and finally brought the chase to an end by plowing into a parked vehicle. He was taken into custody by Officer R. E. Craig.

The youth has been charged with reckless driving and with failure to have a driver's permit.

Federal Auditor May Not Be, Police Warn

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach police officials have voiced concern over a rather unusual con game that has been growing throughout the state and may hit the Tidewater area.

Capt. R. H. Stone said that residents should contact police if they receive a telephone call from a man who identifies himself as a federal auditor investigating a theft in a local bank.

In the most recent case a bank depositor received such a call and was asked to cooperate in apprehending the thief by withdrawing a large sum of money, taking extreme precaution in not letting anyone know of the situation.

After the money was withdrawn the depositor was to meet a woman outside the bank who would hand over a receipt in return for the cash. For helping the "federal auditor" in bringing the thief to justice, the depositor was to get a $1000 reward.

The money was turned over to the woman as instructed but the depositor received no reward, no receipt and lost $1,800 for his efforts.

Three such cases have been reported in other Virginia cities within the past month, Capt. Stone said.

The woman accomplice has been described as young, white and slender with long, straight brown hair. One of the depositors involved noticed a tall, dark, slender man keeping a close watch as the money was being withdrawn. Police believe the man may have been the "federal auditor."

BAY PUMPING BEGINNING TO SHOW RESULTS

VIRGINIA BEACH — City Council Monday received an encouraging report on the first month's operation of the experimental pumping project in Back Bay.

The city started the project on May 26 in hopes that the introduction of salt water into the bay would raise the salinity and settle suspended silt to allow better growth of grasses. Biologists had advised the move and believed that additional grass would restore the area's fish and waterfowl supply.

City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge, chairman of the committee that set up the project, told council that when the pumping started the salinity was one per cent and as of June 2 it had been raised to 3.5 per cent.

"We hope that by the end of July it will be up to 10 to 12 per cent and we can reduce the number of operating hours," he said.

He also pointed out that the water is clearing, explaining that before pumping began a white disc was not visible seven inches below the surface and that now it is visible at 24 inches.

But while this report was favorable, other matters brought before council were less encouraging, especially the problems of additional surfing areas and an additional two lanes across Lesner Bridge.

Mrs. Nell Matthews and Mrs. Dorris Farber, two mothers who said they represented other parents, outlined some of the problems confronting surfers for lack of space and asked council to provide more all-day surfing areas at North Virginia Beach.

They specifically asked for areas at the north end of the beach because it is mostly residential property and there are fewer swimmers.

Council asked the two women to work out a plan with the North Virginia Beach Improvement League and bring their suggestions before council at a later meeting.

Bayside Councilman Larry Marshall pointed out the need for more lanes across Lesner Bridge, which spans Lynnhaven Inlet, stating that two Sundays ago the traffic was backed up on either side of the bridge for two miles.

Council had previously asked the State Highway Department for some relief to this traffic bottleneck—where Shore Drive's four lanes narrow to two—but received no commitment.

A second resolution asking for the additional lanes "in little stronger wording" was agreed upon and City Manager W. Russell Hatchett was instructed to draw it up as soon as possible.

Marshall also suggested that council look into the possibility of establishing a redevelopment and housing authority to look into areas "not advantageous to the city and its promotion."

This was the second conference of this type to be held and over 300 law enforcement officers from 12 Southeastern states, attended.

Hatchett was asked to draw up a list of potential members for such an authority and present it at a future meeting.

ROSE SOCIETY

NORFOLK — The Tidewater Rose Society met recently at the home of George Bonney, with Edward Tippo of Virginia Beach presiding. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Turrist and Mrs. Tippo.

Dr. M. I. Krischer lectured and demonstrated the preparation of the roses for show. He explained what makes a rose have beauty of form and beauty of color. Roses to be exhibited are at their best when one-third open; the length of the stem for large roses should be about 18 inches, and for smaller roses compatible to the size of the rose; and several five to seven leaflets for foliage. Pick the rose a few days before show time and keep in refrigerator, cover the rose bloom with plastic to preserve it.

Dr. Krischer presented the club with a silver urn to be used as the trophy for the "Best In Show" rose selected in the fall show.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowen and family have returned to their home in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania after spending a delightful two weeks at the Beach Virginia Beach is Mrs. Bowen's former home. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Burris of Belts Road.

Litter Being Watched Well

by Henry McInnis

VIRGINIA BEACH—Don't care throw rubbish of any kind—particularly cans—to litter public streets and property at Virginia Beach.

This is the red-letter message and warning that has the stern backing of city officials. New signs have been put up designating a $25 fine for litterbugs to pay . . . if caught.

"I will not hesitate to turn in the name of anyone I catch throwing trash on the streets or in yards," said Leslie Weary, retired magazine advertising executive.

A Virginia Beach resident for 17 years, the white-haired executive feels strongly about citizenship and its responsibility to keep the city clean "Any citizen," Weary said, "can swear out a warrant for any other."

One would not go wrong to suspect that Weary would not hesitate to swear out a warrant for President Johnson if he could catch him littering the White House grounds.

Weary collects great wheelbarrows full of trash and cans. He said that one church in Virginia Beach had neglected to clear its grounds for quite some time.

"I went to the congregation and told them I'd clean up for them and deposit it on their doorstep every Sunday after services—if they didn't clean up," he said. And he meant it. With the ladies of Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs, every litter bit not only hurts but is a screaming pain to their eyes.

They conducted in April, an anti-litter poster and essay contest in the Virginia Beach schools. "Sixteen five-dollar prizes were awarded to children," said Mrs. Lawrence F. Tucker.

Reeves Johnson, director of Virginia Beach Public Safety, said, "The city government stands 100 per cent behind this anti-litter campaign."

Police Chief J. E. Moore has warned citizens who like to spread their thoughtless refuse around the town to watch out. "I'll arrest litter bugs," he was quoted as saying by Mrs. Tucker. "The $25 fine will be enforced."

Mrs. Tucker, Weary and Mrs. Gilmore Tibbott were out at Linkhorn Park Monday afternoon looking over new signs being put up. They went right over to one under which lay a passel of beer cans.

"Oh!" Weary exclaimed, "I would like to boycott all cans." The three are active members of the Beautification Committee of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs.

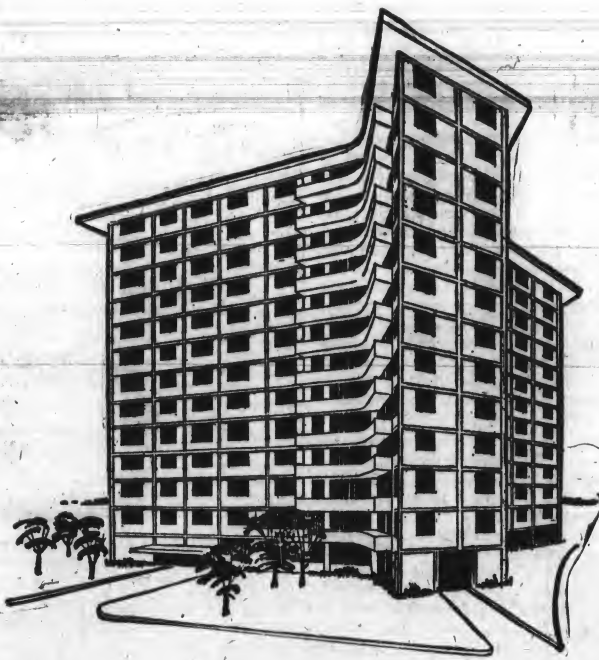

Over 250 posters, designed by Sharon O'Bryan, 11, of the Thoroughgood School will have been distributed by the committee to business houses and motels throughout Virginia Beach by next week.

"We are asking all businesses to provide litter cans at their places," Mrs. Tucker said.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

The New-Fashioned Fourth Of July

Before we go to press again, Independence day will have come and gone. Our roads and highways will have been packed with fun seekers intent upon cramming at least six days of enjoyment into a three-day weekend. These fun seekers will impatiently be caught in traffic jams. Tempers will flare. Many will not return home after the weekend. They will have died violently on the roads, through drowning, boating accidents, and similar acts of carelessness. All of this is going to happen no matter how often we take pen in hand or raise our voice above the crowds. This is a fact of life and death in our fast-moving society. Independence Day is today merely an excuse to spend another joyous or not so joyous few days doing too many things. The real meaning of the holiday itself has long since been forgotten. Many, however, particularly the old-timers in our midst, will pause and nostalgically wonder, "What ever became of the old fashioned Fourth of July?" Most of us do not even remember one, or if we do, have forgotten its significance. There are probably various answers to the disappearance of the old-fashioned Fourth.

The almost complete urbanization of our country is one reason. There are more things to do. No longer is the family satisfied to settle for a church or family picnic or listening to a band concert in the park. Mass communications and mass mobility, whatever their attractions, have made for much family rootlessness. The family, which used to be more of a unit, is spread out over a large area today, each member enjoying his own particular type of pleasure. These distractions and a preoccupation with material things, rather than the simpler and more profound virtues, concern the majority of us today. All of this is not wrong. But we feel that a happier medium can be found between the old-fashioned Fourth and the new-fashioned Fourth.

At any rate, our forefathers knew the special and unique meaning behind Independence Day. Those who live in this area of Virginia where our independence had its very beginnings should remember with reverence those men and their principles that have given us a rich and glorious history. In the old-fashioned manner, the Fourth, Independence Day, the flag flew proudly everywhere. The speakers' stands in the town squares blazed with bunting, and the bands tirelessly played patriotic airs. Fireworks exploded endlessly, ranging from the ubiquitous firecracker to stunning displays celebrating the great events of the past. Not the least of the attractions of the Fourth were the fiery addresses, delivered by well-known public figures of the time. Some of these, needless to say, were lacking in oratorical prowess, but all had one common denominator. They paid tribute to freedom, how it was won, and the things necessary to maintain and defend it. The theme was always the same... unabashed, unashamed and dedicated to patriotism, a virtue now considered somewhat "square." Regardless of the lack of lustre of some of these old time addresses, every listener left with a little better knowledge of our inheritance as a people and with a little more determination to keep the spirit of the founders alive and flourishing.

The old-time celebrations will be few and far between this year. The town square has given way to the beaches and restaurants. The band concerts have cleared the way for the radio in the car. The speakers are cooking hamburgers in the back yard, and the fireworks displays are reduced to those at amusement parks. We do not complain. Times change, and we wholeheartedly support the progress that changes bring. But, whatever we do, wherever we go on the Fourth, let us take only a moment to reflect what freedom and independence in the fullest sense of the words mean, and, as we celebrate our new-fashioned Fourth of July, let us determine that our patriotism and our heritage shall never be lost.

Thank Goodness For State Courts

Pending litigation concerning reapportionment of the City Council of Virginia Beach is one thing, but holding up the issuance of bonds for the benefit of schools is something else again. And we are mighty glad that a State court, particularly a court in our own city, has been able to do something about it. Now that Council has authorized the sale of the bonds for schools on the say so of a State Court, the critical time has passed. We can go ahead and "get the show on the road," where the new schools are concerned, and keep the entire mess out of the political amphitheater.

It seems a shame that those who say they are so interested in seeing justice done in the reapportionment business could not see the importance of getting the bonds issued right now. It is a shame that a state court had to draw the line between the pending litigation in the Federal courts and the issuance of the bonds. We wonder how the litigants feel about education. Perhaps they are merely interested in furthering their own political aims, but at the same time ignoring the needs of the school children and the school children of Virginia Beach.

The problem of reapportionment should be a separate matter to be settled in the Federal Courts. It should not be a political football as it has been. Bill Kellam, P. B. Smith and Ned Caron, all candidates for re-election, have said they favor such reapportionment. The Virginia Beach City Council should not let the consensus is that something should be done, and no doubt it will be. But the attempt to keep school bonds from being issued because of pending litigation seems to us to be rather ridiculous.

We are so glad that a State court has put the matter back into the proper perspective. It has said that the present City Council is legally constituted at present, and qualified to carry out its job. Its job now is to issue the bonds. Thank goodness it is now being allowed to get along with the job that the voters of Virginia Beach elected the individual members in the first place.

Let us add one personal note. We favor any reapportionment which makes for fair and equitable government on any level, be it national, state or local. We are glad to see an upheaval in districting once in a while. It is only fair and just. We have applauded the General Assembly for the great job it has done in its recent reapportionment. We have every confidence in that same body in the job it will do on Congressional apportionment this fall in a special session. And we have every confidence that the reapportionment of the Virginia Beach City Council can be accomplished eventually without any more bad taste.

But, in the final analysis, we simply are glad that the sorely needed school bonds can now be issued, regardless of pending litigation, and that the litigants may finally be able to see what a miserable situation they almost caused.

STARS IN HIS EYES!

Your Vote Is Important

During the summer months, affairs of government, national, state or local, seem to hold very little importance to us. The summer doldrums, and the many pleasures of the season, are distracting, to say the least. But, in less than two weeks, an event of great importance to us all at Virginia Beach takes place. We must break away from the doldrums, forget our pleasures for a few moments, and remember the importance of free elections.

On July 13, the Democratic primary will be held. There are five candidates for three State Senate seats from the Third Senatorial District, which includes Virginia Beach, Portsmouth, and Chesapeake. This is a large, sprawling and extremely important area of the State. It is up to us to look at the issues, make ourselves well-informed, and to vote for those whom we believe will do the best job for us. It is up to us to hear them, and to decide for ourselves.

We believe it would be in the best interest of everyone if one candidate from each of the three major cities in the district were elected. In this way, each city would have an equal voice, and an equal chance in the General Assembly. The job of State Senator holds grave responsibility, and we do not make our endorsement lightly. We only seek to endorse the man whom we believe is the most qualified to represent our best interests at Virginia Beach. Primarily, we are interested in the City of Virginia Beach, although we consider the entire district important.

We feel there can be no other choice than our friend, William P. "Bill" Kellam, and we are proud to be able to count him among our friends. Two years ago, Bill was a freshman legislator in the House of Delegates, but he has made his mark on that August body, and we feel he is now ready to move up to the Upper House, where he can serve the needs of Virginia Beach and the State well. He is an able man, conscious of everyone, regardless of one's station in life. He is a friendly individual, experienced in politics on a local and statewide level. Bill Kellam supports the repeal of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in state and local elections. He favors quality education, and hopes the state can absorb certain school costs to reduce local indebtedness. He supports increased tourism, further industrial development, greater cooperation among communities, aid to farmers, reapportionment, improved highways, and no further increase in the Real Estate Tax. He believes if a statewide sales tax is approved, a large amount will have to be refunded to the localities or be used to take over the responsibility of a great share of the cost of schools. We agree wholeheartedly with Bill Kellam's stand on increased aid to education, so needed in this state.

From the City of Virginia Beach, we honestly believe that no candidate is better qualified to represent us in the State Senate than Bill Kellam. He has proved his ability. He has supported a platform that we can all look up to with respect. And we can all know and respect Bill Kellam. We believe he can do the most to represent Virginia Beach, and, by working with the others elected, pull the entire district together.

July 13, the date set for the Democratic Primary, is an important day of decision for all of us at Virginia Beach, since, for the first time, we have the chance to send a local man to the State Senate to represent us. We support the candidacy of William P. "Bill" Kellam.

A New Sign Of Our Times

New signs are appearing throughout Virginia Beach at the present time. Although they are probably long overdue, we are glad to see them. We hope they will do some good, and if they do not, we hope that arrests will be made. The new signs, erected by the Department of Public Safety, warn of the fine for littering. In the renewed efforts of beautification of Virginia Beach, the new citywide Beautification Committee has chosen to attack one of our old enemies, litterbugs, as part of its overall program.

The Committee has worked closely with the Safety Department on the problem of littering, and now, at long last, maybe something can be done. The signs are merely the first step, but, we hope a step in the right direction.

It is extremely distasteful to us to see all the litter that has collected, not only along the beachfront and in the resort area, but also along the roads and streets in residential areas elsewhere. Nothing else that we can think of takes away from the beauty of a city any more than empty beer cans and paper strewn along the roads and gutters. First of all, it is unlawful. But perhaps more important is the fact that it detracts from the natural beauty of a city that is just that... naturally beautiful.

We commend the Beautification Committee and all the interested parties, both men and women, who are taking part in the general clean-up campaign. Next we commend the Safety Department of Virginia Beach in its renewed efforts to publicize the unlawfulness of littering. We only hope that we can commend the tourists and the natives of Virginia Beach for paying attention to the signs.

BASKIN IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

Just had a new family move into the neighborhood, and although I have known them for some time, I am almost certain that it was a very bad move for them. If not for them, then certainly a bad one for me.

Over the years I have carefully and patiently brainwashed my wife so that she was of the opinion that the care of shrubs and lawn was strictly woman's work. This has been quite a task, since she does not brainwash easily. This new neighbor is setting back my work some ten years. He works in the yard. I have had several serious talks with him about this, but I do not think that I have made the slightest impression. He continues to spend long hours planting grass and even longer hours cutting same—a profitless pastime. The grass will grow stronger as he grows weaker. I am convinced that the man is not entirely retarded, and I fear that his activity will result in my having to work in the yard. I hope not, but he performs these chores in full view of my house, and even if he is retarded, my wife is not.

Doesn't seem exactly right that this should happen. I have considered having a meeting with the other males in the neighborhood, but have given up. They know about his working at woman's work, and I do not think that a committee meeting would do anything constructive. I've never known a committee to solve anything. Committees only define problems, and I know what mine is.

I guess the only thing to do is count my blessings and hope that I will be lucky for a few weeks longer. After all, I have been getting away with it for many years, so the thing isn't a total loss.

Even if my wife does rise up and require me to do some yard work, I am much better off than most of the husbands. I planned the yard so that there was just enough grass for a woman to mow without getting mad.

Way To Enter Child's Mind

By HENRY MCINNIS
VIRGINIA BEACH — The world of children as seen through their eyes, is possible only to a child.

One approximation to a child's world is through what he paints or molds. This is what makes children's art classes such an adventure—to youngsters and their teachers.

Beginning July 6, children will take one-week courses of four lessons each at the Studio Gallery. Teachers will be Mrs. Ruth Laakso and Mrs. Roy Reynolds. The classes will end July 26. Four groups will participate: preschool (4-6); primary group (7-10); older group (11-14) and advanced group (9-13).

Mrs. Laakso said the four-week course will require a $10 fee and all materials are furnished.

A second session will take place August 2 through the 23rd. "Any child who takes part in either session will be able to have his work on exhibit," she explained.

Mrs. Reynolds is one art teacher who understands how to enter a child's imagination and get it to put itself into form and expression peculiar to each individual child.

She started doing volunteer work teaching youngsters art three years ago at McLean, Va. Director of the art program at the Happy Hill School, she instructed ages' from nursery to the third grade.

A year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds came to the Tidewater area. Her husband, Roy, is a lieutenant commander in the Navy and an executive officer on a destroyer. They have three boys.

"I began volunteer work at the Linkhorn Park School," she said and have taught private classes at home.

Most children are anxious to express themselves, she explained. "We think about what activities we enjoy doing and the children will get into a mood."

"To me, art is such fun and so exciting. I become so thrilled with some of the things I see the children do. I don't try to make a child visualize something as I say, it should look. He is given the freedom to create on his own terms."

Young boys and girls act out unpleasant experiences, feelings and ideas as well as the "summer" sides of living.

"I wouldn't dare try to analyze the meaning of their work," Mrs. Reynolds said. "That would take a psychiatrist."

She said that if art appreciation is taught in the early years, a child will grow to a higher cultural awareness in his later years.

When great art reproductions are shown the kids, they see so much more than adults do. Not surprising, she laughed.

"Oh, it's just an accumulation of many years of a book about teaching art to youth. She already has some fascinating notes to use for the basic material."

MARKET CELEBRATES SUCCESSFUL 1st YEAR

DIAMOND SPRINGS—The Virginia Beach Produce Market celebrated its first birthday recently. There was no birthday party or celebration, no cakes or candles; however, there was a plentiful supply of fresh, high quality fruits and vegetables for the buyers.

In a special report to the "Sun", E. R. Cockrell, Jr., City Agricultural Agent, reported that the Market had exceeded all expectations during its first twelve months of operation. After opening on June 4, 1964, on a temporary basis, the Market gave receipts far exceeded expectations, thus proving the economic justification for permanency. As a result, the Market is now permanent and an expansion program is already underway. The Market area has doubled, a new lighting system is expected to be completed within a few weeks, and construction of an office building is already underway.

"Sales are made to all types of buyers," said Cockrell. "Consumers who desire smaller quantities usually visit the small dealer stalls from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Buyers of larger quantities buy direct from the farmer in wholesale lots. Farmers are on the Market from 4:00 in the afternoon until approximately 7:30 in the morning."

"These marketing hours allow the buyer to select the quality and amount of produce needed for his business each day. He may buy either late evening or night for his next day's business, or buy early in the morning for today's business."

Regardless of when he buys, he can be selective because there are a number of different growers with the same product. For instance, last Saturday morning there were forty farmers at the Market and they had almost every item you can name."

CYCLE RIDE FATAL

VIRGINIA BEACH — Willie James Davis Jr., 196 S. Birdneck Road, died early Monday morning of injuries received when he wrecked a three-wheel police motorcycle at a car-wash Sunday morning.

The police vehicle was at the H & H Car-Wash, where the 17-year old boy was employed, and was being polished when the youth got on the cycle and started it going.

The vehicle, with Davis on it, ran out of control across Arctic Avenue, hit a sign, then hit two houses at 312 and 316 29th St. He was thrown head first into one of the houses.

The new police vehicle was assigned to Patrolman Dave Wallace who ran after Davis and tried to stop him before it hit the houses, but he could not. The cycle was demolished, and the boy was taken to Norfolk General Hospital where he died 13 hours later.

VIRGINIA BEACH — The adult men's softball leagues, after a week of rain, went into action with a bang on last Monday.

In the Duffer League the Benchwarmers defeated the Eagles, 5-4. White Telephone Answering Service stopped Hoff-Cadillac, 9-1, on the hitting of Charlie Harrison's homer and double. The Reds routed the M-Boys, 18-0 on Monday. Curtis Briley pitched a four hitter and allowed only one runner to get to third base in the shut-out. The Reds blasted six homers, led by Pete Long's two.

Model Car Racing Growing In Popularity

VIRGINIA BEACH — Model car racing in the United States has gotten the starting flag, and from every indication the sport is going to be the biggest family attraction in the nation before it even hits the straight away.

Limited, just a few short years ago, to car builders and racing "buffs," the sport is just beginning to receive national attention. Part of the reason for its wide appeal is the fact that the family young and old, male and female, can all compete on an even basis.

Another reason for the success of model car racing is the "growing up" of the model car racing centers. The first centers were either in garages or "hole-in-the-wall" stores. Racing tracks were homemade, poorly designed and rather unstable. The raceways were not professionally engineered and any racing success achieved on the ovals depended more on luck and the lane selected rather than on the driver's skill.

The average racing center in the country today is a far cry from the original centers. Air conditioning and luxurious appointments mark the new centers. Comfortable seating is provided for spectators.

Anyone can participate in the sport. Essentially, a model racing car is a scaled down model automobile which is powered by an electric motor. The cars are equipped with underpins which ride in a narrow 1/8-inch slot in the raceway. Small brushes pick up power from the metal strips which border the track. Hand operated rheostats control each car's speed (up to 10 m.p.h. or 300-plus scale m.p.h.) and provide braking.

Since the car is not attached to the track, nothing but its weight keeps it in place and it reacts exactly the same as its full-sized counterpart does. It will fishtail around tight corners, and if the driver gives it the gun or hits the curve too fast, it will spin out just like a big car would. Each driver is the car's creator, designer, mechanic and racer all at one time.

Model car racing has been around for years, but the full racing program will begin in July.

COMMUNITY LEAGUES

VIRGINIA BEACH — Community League action last week sponsored by the Virginia Beach Recreation Department saw the Midget Tigers of Greenwich defeat the Court House Cubs, 10-9, on a grand slam homer by Ronnie Harrison in the bottom of the sixth inning. Harrison had a perfect day at the plate with four for four, two triples, and a double and a grand slam homer.

The Kempville Colts won over the Trantwood nine, 5-2. Chuck Hammonds had a triple and two singles for the winners. The Creeds Mets blasted the Malibu Cubs 22-0. Clyde Hathaway pitched a neat two hitter. The Woodstock Yankees won over the Woodstock Red Sox 9-0 on the late pitching of Booby Caputo who threw a two hitter and struck out twelve batters in the victory. The Cardinals of Greenwich routed the Malibu Braves 27-2. Mike Shay hit two homers and Don Hawk and Jack Sjogren both hit solo homers.

In intermediates action Greenwich Mets won over Courthouse, 11-1. Mike Page pitched a two hitter striking out twelve Courthouse batters. Warren Ketcher pitched a home in the first inning. Bobby Johnson had a double and single. The Woodstock Intermediates defeated the Trantwood Cardinals, 8-7.

Thalia of the teen girl's league defeated Woodstock 11-5. Francis Miller went four for four at bat, all singles. Brenda Bacon singled three times. Kempville routed Trantwood, 33-2, with Sara Styron belting two home runs, one with the bases loaded in the fifth and getting five runs batted in. Branda Stokes went three for three singles. Greenwich won over Courthouse, 38-7.

SUMMER PLAYGROUNDS END FIRST WEEK

VIRGINIA BEACH — Summer playgrounds opened last week at 26 day sites and 3 evening sites. Monday was an administrative day following the 2-day playground institute. Directors reported to their playgrounds after picking up their equipment and spent the rest of the day getting their site ready to welcome the children the next day. A check of the registrations reveal approximately 500 more children were registered the first week this year than during the same period last year, with over 6,000 youngsters registered.

Each playground operates their weekly schedules around a theme and the Directors put much time and thought into integrating activities to correspond to the weekly theme. Every playground displays bulletin boards announcing weekly activities and announcements of future special events and contests. Here are many worthwhile activities planned for and this information is posted. All the children have to do is get in the habit of reading the bulletin boards. Sign-up sheets for individual tournaments and league competition will be found there also. Separated age-groups are planned for.

The Summer Playgrounds provide a wide range of activities, both in self-directed play and planned instructional type activities. But, in order for the children to experience this supervised program, they must go and take part by registering and becoming a regular participant.

The WNO "Go Go No. 1", driven by Mayo Ross, will be one of many Super Stocks from all over the East Coast to be on hand this weekend for the Fourth of July Week-End Spectacular at the Virginia Beach Dragway at Crocks. Charlie Falk will premiere his new Fastback Mustang Super Stock in a grudge run against Pop White's Hemi-Head Plymouth. Top purses and trophies will be paid Saturday night in all classes. Gates will open at 2 p.m., time trials start at 3 p.m. and competition will get underway at 5:30 p.m.

Mayor Frank Dusch hands over the proclamation for "Safe Boating Week" to George C. Phillips, Sr.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, many millions of Americans have the opportunity in this great Nation to enjoy the healthful sport of boating in their leisure hours; and

WHEREAS the importance of boating safety should be impressed upon every individual who pursues this outdoor pastime so that the useless waste of lives and property may be avoided; and

WHEREAS a continued awareness by the public of the need for safety on the waterways can only be assured by recurring emphasis by the boating industry, boating organizations, Federal and State agencies, and boating enthusiasts on the critical necessity for compliance with safe boating principles; and

WHEREAS the Congress of the United States, in seeking to focus national attention on the importance of safe boating practices, by a joint resolution, approved June 4, 1958, has designated the week of July 4th as National Safe Boating Week;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Frank A. DORIS PADRICK'S VIEW of VIRGINIA BEACH

What is a vacation? You may think of it as a time for going places and doing things. Mostly it is having the time to do what you want to do when you want to do it. It's not having to watch the clock.

It is getting up early (when you don't have to) and see the dew shining on the grass . . . it's sitting around in pajamas, drinking the second and even the third cup of coffee while reading the morning newspaper . . . it's piling the dishes in the sink, pouring in the detergent, seeing the billowing suds rise with the clouds of steam . . . and it's leaving them to soak while you run around the yard with a delighted dog that rolls and barks with the unaccustomed excitement of having you home . . . and it's both of you resting on the grass, breathless from unusual exercise . . .

It's throwing the beds open while the breeze blows through . . . and maybe even falling back across for a short nap while the washing machine is swishing and spinning clean the accumulated laundry. It's having time to stand at the sink, washing the soaked dishes, and enjoying the view of the lush green vegetable garden getting closer and closer to harvesting. It's having time to pick some of the earlier vegetables and prepare a garden fresh vegetable dish . . . or time to freeze the abundant extra.

It's having time to look around with a critical eye at the accumulated winter neglect, and being able to stir up the dust and roll back the carpets . . . time to call the rug cleaners and get the thing out of the house to be stored till fall . . . time to admire the long hidden gleaming wooden floors. The sun may be rising and the temperature getting hot, but there is a certain delight in polishing those floors to new brightness, and placing colorful scatter rugs in strategic areas, creating the effect of both coolness and cleanliness.

It's having time to do more than just dust the furniture . . . it's being able to use the polishing cloth and the furniture wax and bring back the glow . . . And it's having the time to dodge the sun as it chases you around the house while you get the windows sparkling as if the glass has disappeared . . . it's taking down the heavier drapes and rehanging crisp sheer curtains.

It's having the time to be creative . . . choose a new color for a bedroom . . . move out the furniture . . . get the brushes and the rollers and the paint . . . and after hours of industrious stroking, admire your artistry which will include entirely new curtains and bedspreads and rugs and wall decorations to complement the old furniture . . . it's almost too pretty to sleep in . . .

It's having time to clean out closets and drawers . . . and finding long-lost articles. It's having time to organize the garage clutter . . . time to jump on the little used bicycle (after taking time to have it properly licensed) and spin around the block to the amazement of your neighbors . . . taking time to catch your breath and stop to visit with old friends . . . time for a long tall glass of iced tea . . . while all the neighborhood goings on are discussed.

It's having time to pack a picnic lunch, find the sunbat oil, buy a new bathing suit, and take the kids to the beach . . . time to cavort in the water, not caring that the hair-dog gets wet and straggly . . . time to laze in the sun on the sand . . . time to walk along the shoreline looking for shells and stopping to build castles . . . time to listen, really listen, to conversation from your child . . .

It's having time for a patio cook-out in the cool of the evening . . . time to stretch out on a lawn chair and admire the beauty of the setting sun, watch the puffy white clouds drift overhead and imagine shapes they might be . . . listen to the goodnight songs of the birds as they wing homeward to their nesting places . . . it's also being able to sit up late and see the late, late show on TV with a husband for company while all the children are safely asleep in their beds . . .

It's no typewriter, no phone calls, no stockings, no girdle, no deadlines . . . it was being "just a housewife" for a week. It was lovely.

Another Act Faces Suit For Cancellation

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Platters have become the second top recording entertainment act within a week to face law suits because of unfulfilled contracts in Virginia Beach.

The famous recording artists were scheduled to observe their 10th anniversary with a 2-week engagement at The Shadows on 16th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Last week the group notified the club that they would be unable to appear "due to unexpected circumstances," giving no further reason for the cancellation.

Over 400 reservations had been made at The Shadows for the group's opening concert Tuesday night, a club spokesman said. The reservations and invitations had to be cancelled.

On Friday club owner Tom Lyons filed a suit against The Platters in Washington. The suit reportedly includes a stipulation that The Platters fulfill their contract at The Shadows at a later date.

Less than a week before a $1-million suit was filed against Roger Miller by officials of WCMR Radio after Miller failed to show up for two sell-out performances here on June 20.

The radio station was to have sponsored Miller in the two shows at the Alan B. Shepard

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN OPEN ANNUAL DRIVE

By Rita Vellies
Bayside Correspondent

BAYSIDE — July has been designated "Annual Fund Raising Month" for all the Volunteer Fire Departments in Virginia Beach. These Departments are strictly "volunteer". The men give their time free, as a community service. Their main purpose when first organized was to "put out fires." Now this is just part of their job. They probably answer more emergency calls with the ambulances than they do with the fire engines.

What with the high speed automobile travel, everytime there is an automobile accident, they are called for ambulance service. They also answer all emergency calls in their areas. The ones on the beach are called on to rescue bathers who get in trouble in the water, small boats in distress, lost children, and you name it.

A small portion of the upkeep of these Volunteer Fire Departments is paid by the City of Virginia Beach, but they mainly depend on contributions from the individuals to maintain their departments. So when the firemen come to your door for a donation, won't you be generous to them? They are giving their time — you are just giving money!

The "spotlight" this week is on the Chesapeake Beach and Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Departments.

The Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department was founded in 1941 with one engine. They now have ten pieces of equipment. They have just received a new pumper, two new fire trucks and a new ambulance. They have two pieces of beach equipment, a rescue squad, boat, and a portable generator. They have approximately 30 members.

Beware Of 'Free' Books

NORFOLK — "Hello, I'm with the Public Relations Staff of the . . . Company."

Sometimes later on we'll be sending sales people into this area selling one of our new products; but before we send these people out, we're going to have a few families help the company. That's by writing a letter, letting us know just what they think of this new product. Of course, we reserve the right to use the letter and for the few families that are going to help the company in this way, the company will place the entire twenty volumes of their encyclopedia in their home as an advertising premium.

This is a sales talk reportedly used by the local office of any encyclopedia firm and was turned over to the Tidewater Better Business Bureau by a former employee.

Charles A. Martak, Bureau Manager, reports that reputable book companies do not conduct such sales talks.

"There are no Santa Clauses in the book business," stated Martak.

"We know of no company who gives away 'free' sets of books for advertising as mentioned in this sales talk," the BBB Manager added.

Martak advises you to obtain the name of the salesman and company from anyone using a similar sales talk, and report these facts to your Better Business Bureau. The BBB will then seek correction of the objectionable sales talk through the National BBB. The Tidewater BBB and National BBB cooperate in eliminating objectionable practices on the part of local representatives of national firms.

Sen. Turk made the statement while speaking informally to the Virginia Beach Republican Women's Club when they met last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. LeRoy Ober at Bayside.

He also took exception to gubernatorial candidate Mills Godwin's policies on education saying that "Godwin is trying to talk out of both sides of his mouth."

"Do you know the candidate for governor, Mills Godwin, led the fight to take $13-million out of the budget for education? Virginia is 44th in the nation. Do you know Godwin has worked for destroying the public school system? He headed the group to Gov. Almond down to size by doing this. Now, in 1966, Godwin wants to put no new cost and push education like L.B.J. Godwin is trying to talk out of both sides of his mouth."

In noting the voting record of Virginia Beach candidates, Sen. Turk said "they vote only as they are told or as it will personally benefit them—not for the benefit of the people in Virginia."

"The Democrats have held the reigns too long and soon I hope the people of Virginia will wake up—I hope now," he said.

Elected in 1959, Sen. Turk serves on the following committees: Insurance and banking, agriculture, mining and manufacturing and veterans.

KELLAM GETS ENDORSEMENTS

With the July 13th Democratic Primary less than two weeks away, endorsements of political candidates are beginning to come in. The five candidates in the primary from the 3rd Senatorial district are: Del. William P. Kellam, of Virginia Beach; Sen. William B. Spong, Jr., of Portsmouth; Del. William H. Hodges, of Chesapeake; Sen. Gordon Marsh, of Chesapeake; and L. Charles Burlage, of Virginia Beach. There are three seats available in the district.

Recently William P. "Bill" Kellam has won the endorsement of the AFL-CIO, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the L & J Garden Civic League. Besides Kellam, the L & J Garden Civic League has endorsed Spong and Hodges, it was announced by the president of the organization, Victor J. Ashe. The AFL-CIO has endorsed Spong and Burlage along with Kellam.

The Executive Committee, Virginia State Legislative Board of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has endorsed Hodges and Spong along with Kellam. The Chairman of the Legislative Board, E. C. McKown, has endorsed Kellam for his "understanding concern for our problems and past assistance in numerous cases."

In addition, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has endorsed the candidacy of P. B. White and Edward T. Caton III, both of Virginia Beach, for the House of Delegates race.

Several are on inactive duty, due to being out of the area in the armed services. Three of their members live in Diamond Springs and have short wave radios tuned into headquarters and when Chesapeake Beach call comes over the airways—they head for the station!

The following men are officers in the department: president, A. L. Zavlenski; vice president, John Dunning; secretary, Charles Lamb; treasurer, William E. Watson; floor representative, Cliff Morris; Fire Chief, Fred Quist. The department has a new well-equipped fire station.

The Ocean Park Fire Department was formed 19 years ago by contributions from various people. They built a building and had one pumper, bought from the South Norfolk Fire Department, on-time, payment plan.

They now have twenty pieces of equipment which includes a rescue boat, jeeps, tank wagon, two ambulances, salvage truck, chief's car, utility jeep. All equipment has special fire fighting equipment. The department started with fourteen members and they now have forty.

George Lyon was named chief nineteen years ago and is still serving in that capacity. E. F. Caldwell is president, Lewis Thurston, 1st vice president; Bryan Glover, secretary; and John Bowman, treasurer.

In addition to the two above mentioned departments the city of Virginia Beach also has Volunteer Departments at Davis Corner, Plaza, Thalia, Setaick, Coastal, Kempsville, Princess Anne, Creeds, Blackwater and a Virginia Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

Lewis Thurston is general chairman of this combined effort. This is the first time the departments have ever put on a combined drive and it is sincerely hoped that it will be most effective.

RECEIVES BID

VIRGINIA BEACH — Donald Wayne Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Russell, has received a Presidential-at-large appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

Donald will report there July 6 to be sworn in as a midshipman. He was one of two students in the first graduating class this year at Kellam High School to receive an appointment to the Naval Academy.

George D. Brooke was the recipient of a resolution citing his service to the VMI Foundation, the endowment organization of the Institute. The resolution was presented and accepted at the meeting of the foundation's board of trustees during the commencement weekend.

The citation noted Brooke's service as a trustee since 1946, his two-year tenure as president, and his long term efforts as a member of the finance committee.

The resolution noted that "with his able direction, sage counsel, and fiscal guidance, the Foundation has grown . . . as an organization for the advancement of education." It also noted the board's appreciation for Brooke's efforts and said, "He has materially aided the progress of the Foundation for the welfare of the Virginia Military Institute."

A native of Sutherland, Brooke is a 1900 graduate of the Institute when he received a bachelor of science degree with distinction.

DEDICATED NAVY WIVES OFFER HELPING HANDS TO NEIGHBORS

by Doris Padrick

More than fifty women of the Tidewater area are busily practicing the old-fashioned virtue of helping their neighbors. This dedicated group of women are determined to "become involved" with strangers who need help. Who are they? The "Helping Hands" committee of the Navy Relief Society.

The U.S. Navy has always believed in taking care of a buddy; and that is one of the first principles learned by a new Navy wife. Because of the frequent occurrence of long absences of husbands and fathers, Navy families feel responsible for each other and to each other.

Experienced wives, well seasoned to the spartan existence faced by new brides and young mothers living in unfamiliar surroundings and feeling lost among strangers, understand the problems Every Navy wife can be assured of assistance in times of distress. An answer is as close as the telephone.

No matter what time of day or night an emergency arises, a member of the Helping Hands committee is by her telephone with knowledge and contact with the facilities that will render aid. The committee is made up mainly of enlisted men's wives and wives of retired personnel, who "stand the duty" at least once a month, and have the "Telephone Watch" for a complete 24-hour period.

Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Flora of North Landing Road, Virginia Beach. This is the highest award the State Association Future Farmers of America can make. Only two per cent of the total enrollment of boys studying Vocational Agriculture in Virginia can win this coveted award.

Ward has been an outstanding leader having served as president of his local Chapter for one year and treasurer for three years. In addition to this he was secretary for the Peanut Federation FFA last year.

He represented Kellam Chapter in the Federation Tractor Driving Contest for the past two years and was a State Livestock Judge last year. His farming enterprises were mainly corn, soybeans, swine and cattle.

Billy Hudkins, who plays a trumpet in the Kellam Band, is performing in the State FFA Band at Blacksburg this week. Billy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hudkins Star Route 5, Virginia Beach.

The livestock judges from Kellam Chapter who make up the state team this year are: David Brodeur, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brodeur, Route 2, Virginia Beach; William Menden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Menden, Route 1, Virginia Beach; and James Johnson, son of Mrs. Blanche Johnson, Holland Road, Virginia Beach.

The State Crop Judging team from Kellam High School are: Robert Dermake, son of M. T. Chief Jerome and Mrs. Dermake, Lynnhaven Road, Virginia Beach; Jimmy Farthing, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Farthing, Route 1, Virginia Beach; and Robert Kovacs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Kovacs, Route 4, Virginia Beach.

Another $32,000 will be used to furnish cable facilities for the Indian River Road subdivision, he said.

period. Chaplains, the shore patrol, the police, and the Base telephone operators have the list of Duty Wives with their numbers and know who is on the telephone watch for that particular date. Usually two or three women are standing by for each and every 24 hour period.

A new service recently inaugurated by the Helping Hands committee is the Driver Watch-list patterned after the Telephone Watch-list. It is hoped that this too will evolve into a firm and reliable list of drivers who will be available to drive one day or a half-day a month.

The telephone watch and the drivers watch are only two of the helpful services given by Helping Hands. A minor emergency situation may come about when a family arrives in the Tidewater area ahead of their household effects. They may find a home, but the necessities to make it operate efficiently are missing. If that is the case, hospitality kits consisting of pots and pans, dishes, linens, and even coats may be borrowed on a temporary basis for a slight deposit.

If sudden illness or tragedy should take the mother out of the home while the father is away, a Helping Hands committee member may go into that home and help until a more permanent solution can be found. All Helping Hands members carry official identification cards, which should be seen before allowing any stranger to come into a home.

The Tidewater area is served by the women of Helping Hands. Those who want to give need only to offer. More Helping Hands are needed to swell the ranks of this small but dynamic committee of the Navy Relief Society. Those desiring to serve may contact Mrs. Benjamin J. Morehead, chairman of Helping Hands, at 587-9736. Mrs. Morehead is prepared to tell the Helping Hands story to clubs as well as to individuals. Mrs. Rufus C. Porter is the sponsor. STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRONG COMMUNITIES

One Nation Indivisible

"... That this Nation, under God...
Words that bind a Nation's wounds — healing hearts that have affliction known.
We pause, this day, to remember and to forget:
Yet, not to forget the battles lost or victories won, or soldiers' silent sleep,

Who, by their death, gave life;
Life that throbs and pulses in this Nation's womb.
We pause to remember our gifts from God from whom our blessings

in abundance flow.
We find our God, at home in church, in hearts that this day sing out in joy.
We thank Thee, O Lord.
Now, bless us, and this Thy land and all therein... our own, our native land!

The Mixing Bowl

It's Fun To Cook

By LUCILE CLARK

Virginia Beach SUN Food Editor

Southern "pies" have European origin.

Early pies had meat fillings, as they still do in Europe. The first "pies" recorded, of Roman origin, were filled with pheasant, peacock or wild boar. Fourteen century Latin texts often mention "pye". In Chaucer's time the art of pie baking was highly praised. English holiday festivities were highlighted by the peacock pie, borne to the heavily laden tables with much pomp and ceremony.

In feudal society, the term "humble pie," appeared. It referred literally to a "humble" venison pie featuring less appealing cuts of meat, served to huntsmen or other lowly members of the household. The master and his guests dined on the more choice pieces of the deer. Also common were the "glorious puddings and immortal pies" hailed by Shakespeare; English main-dish creations of meat, game and fowl baked in deep, tender crusts—just as our meat pies of today.

English pie recipes, brought to America, were naturally adapted to native produce and game. Some ingenious colonial housewives, perhaps longing for the spicy holiday puddings or tarts of England, concocted a mince pie filling with bear meat, dried pumpkin and maple syrup, topped with a corn meal crust.

The wild fruits and berries of the New World became popular fillings for pies as noted by an immigrant living in Wisconsin. In 1851, in a letter he commented, "Strawberries, Raspberries and Blackberries thrive here. From these they make a wonderful dish combined with syrup and sugar which is called 'pie'. I can tell you this something that glides easily down your throat." Henry Ward Beecher, the noted clergyman solemnly declared, "Apple pie should be made, anointed with sugar, butter and spices to form a glorious unity and baked with a crust."

The Southern Hospitality of the Self-Rising Flour Institute gives us its adaption, American version of some very popular pies.

BASIC FLOUR PASTRY

FOR ONE CRUST

1½ cups sifted enriched self-rising flour

½ cup shortening

3 to 6 tablespoons cold water

Desired Filling

Into medium-sized mixing bowl, measure flour. Cut in shortening until pieces are size of small peas. Sprinkle with water, a little at a time; mixing lightly until dough begins to stick together. Onto lightly floured board or pastry cloth turn out dough and press together. Follow rolling and baking directions for Sweet Potato Pie, and Damson Plum Pie.

Sweet Potato Pie, still oven-warm, served with pour cream, keynotes a truly southern dinner. This deep dish pie, spiced with cinnamon, ground ginger and nutmeg and dotted with butter has a rich creamy taste. A decorative lattice top caps the whole pieces of sweet potato in this traditional delicacy—sure to please your family and friends.

SWEET POTATO PIE

8 servings

Use basic flour pastry

2½ pounds (7 medium) sweet potatoes cooked and cooled

¾ cup firmly packed light brown sugar

¾ teaspoon cinnamon

¼ teaspoon nutmeg

¼ teaspoon ground ginger

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pour cream

Set out deep 9-inch pie pan. Preheat oven to 450°. Prepare Basic Flour Pastry. Refrigerate while preparing filling. Slice sweet potatoes lengthwise in half, then crosswise in ½-inch slices. Combine brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger. In pan alternate layers of sweet potatoes and brown sugar. Dot with butter or margarine; set aside. Roll pastry to circle ½-inch thick; cut into ¾-inch strips. Reserve 3 strips for border. Crisscross remaining strips over filling to form lattice top. For decorative edge, press reserved strips of pastry to rim of pan to form continuous edge. Bake 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown.

Many pie-lovers claim no fruit has finer flavor than the damson plum. This regal fruit frequently used in preserves, appears here in a desert "truly fit for a king." The sparkling Burgundy color of the plum filling makes Damson Plum Pie most outstanding. A golden brown streusel topping adds flavor and texture contrast.

DAMSON PLUM PIE

6 to 8 servings

Use Basic Flour Pastry

2 cans (1 lb. 14 oz. each) purple plums

2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca

¼ cup sifted enriched self-rising flour

¼ cup sugar

¼ cup butter or margarine

Set out 9-inch pie pan. Preheat oven to 450°. Prepare Basic Flour Pastry. Roll to circle ½-inch thick and fit gently into pan. Trim pastry 1-inch beyond rim; turn under and flute edge. With fork prick bottom and sides to allow steam to escape. Bake 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350°. Drain plums, reserving 1 cup syrup. Combine syrup and tapioca; let stand 15 minutes. Cut plums in half and remove seeds. Gently mix syrup and plums; pour into pastry. Combine flour and sugar; cut in butter or margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle evenly over plums. Bake 45 to 50 minutes or until topping is lightly browned. Cool on wire rack. Serve slightly warm or cool.

"There never was a person who did anything worth doing that did not receive more than he gave."—H. W. Buchner.

Hello folks! This week ten of Virginia Beach's outstanding 4-H Club members are attending the State 4-H Short Course at VPI, Blacksburg, Virginia. They are: Ruth Anne Oliver, Mary Bungard, Stephanie Pescek, Johnny Moulton, Diane Frost, Faye Frost, Susan Braun, Theresa Pescek, Jim Basgier and Jim Kelly.

Ruth Anne Oliver earned her trip by submitting an outstanding Home Economics Achievement Record and winning state honors with it. Mary Bungard and Stephanie Pescek were demonstration winners in Clothing and Foods and Nutrition, respectively, at the recent Southeast District Contests. This week they are competing with winners from other districts for state honors.

Johnny Moulton, Diane Frost and Faye Frost comprised the third place livestock judging team at district contest and are now competing with 14 counties across the state to determine the winning team. They will judge 8 classes of sheep, cattle, and hogs and give oral reasons on four of them.

Susan Braun was third place winner in the City's 4-H Share-the-Fun talent contest, and earned the right to compete with more than 80 other acts across the state. Her entry is a vocal rendition of the song "Chim, Chim, Cheree."

Congratulations are in order for each of these outstanding 4-H Club members and we wish them good success in their efforts at the State 4-H Short Course.

PLAN CLOTHING FOR TRAVELING

Vacation time for many of us is fast approaching. Careful planning of clothes to pack can add much to the comfort and convenience of everyone on the trip.

A trip involving constant travel will require clothing adaptable to the different kinds of things you will be doing en route. A vacation spent mainly at one spot calls for clothing fitted to activities you engage in during the day, as well as travel clothes.

Travel clothes are most practical if lines are slim or moderately flared. They should be crease-resistant and need minimum care. Light colors show soil readily, and very dark-colored fabrics attract lint and dust. Neutral tones, multicolors, and flecked fabrics are better for travel.

For warm weather travel, cotton or synthetic jersey is a practical fabric and it packs well and resists wrinkling.

Before packing, assemble all of your clothes. Plan for each costume and consider accessories you will need. Make a list of items you plan to pack, then you can use this list to make sure everything gets back into the suitcase for the return trip.

Probably the most important thing is to take as few clothes as possible.

Probably the most important thing is to take as few clothes as possible for the different occasions. Plan clothes around one color scheme to eliminate packing different color accessories.

Select basic garments that can be given a different look by changing an easy-to-pack accessory such as a belt or scarf. You can get variety with a few mix-and-match garments.

Choose easy-care fabrics that are wrinkle-resistant, shake or hang out without pressing, resist coiling, wash easily, and dry quickly. If possible test them for these qualities in advance. Avoid bouffant skirts and petticoats and other garments that take up too much room or would be crushed by pressure. Always include clothing for rain and cool weather and comfortable shoes. Never take shoes you have not worn. Travel in clothes which can be worn after you arrive at your destination.

Vacation travel will be much more pleasant if you don't have to worry with excess baggage and clothes that need lots of care.

Guardsmen Near Admiral

VIRGINIA BEACH — A vice admiral shared honors Saturday with 23 graduates of the Virginia National Guard's Officer Candidate School.

For the first time in the seven-year history of the OCS, the land-locked Guardsmen went to sea for this commencement speaker—Vice Admiral Charles T. Booth, Commander of Naval Air Forces, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

He told the class that the qualities of leadership were prerequisites to the success of any undertaking, whether military or civilian, and he commended the National Guard for the calibre of training afforded through the Officer Candidate School.

The new graduates received their commissions as second lieutenants from Major General Paul M. Booth, the Virginia Adjutant General, after administration of the oath of office by Col. Arnold W. Ellis of Richmond, commanding officer of the 176th Engineer Group. Brigadier General Edward M. Hudgins, of Chesterfield, commandant of the OCS, welcomed the commencement guests and congratulated the graduates as they joined more than 150 predecessors in the ranks of Virginia trained commissioned officers.

The ceremonies climaxed the second and final week of summer field training for 1,700 officers and men. Largest units in the encampment were the Engineer Group with battalions in Richmond and Gate City, and the 246th Artillery's 3d Automatic Weapons battalion from Chatham, Martinsville, Altavista, and Rocky Mount.

Saturday morning, all units broke camp and reached home stations before nightfall.

The OCS graduates included Milton E. Beane of Virginia Beach.

TURTLE FANCIERS

TAKE NOTE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Two Minnesota Department of Health researchers reported recently that turtles heretofore considered almost perfect household pets (they're cheap, don't bite, are noiseless, require little care), can be the source of a serious intestinal disease, salmonellosis.

They urge everyone with pet turtles to wash their hands after handling the creatures or their bowls, or the pebbles often kept in them. No one, including other household pets, should eat or drink from the turtle's bowl. They also caution that the water in which the turtle lives should never be emptied in the kitchen sink where it might contaminate food.

Dave Clark Five Meets Press

VIRGINIA BEACH — Five young mop-headed men from England, the Dave Clark Five, descended here last Thursday, self-assured, affluent, and ready to earn their reputation as the Beatles' greatest competition.

They ensconced themselves at the Cavalier Hotel, went swimming in the side of the Atlantic they were less familiar with and sauntered into a special press conference to publicize their only singing engagement in Virginia.

There was in the air that nervous excitement which hovers and attends all celebrities, new and old. Representatives of the Tidewater area press, radio and television reporters and photographers set up their paraphernalia and scribbled on pads their questions.

Instead of a cocktail party, the press was served soft drinks. A hushed moment came and one by one, the Dave Clark Five strolled in with a studied nonchalance.

They took seats at a table upon which were placed their names, like corporation executives have. Several young girls in their teens and late teens were allowed to ask questions along with the press. They, no doubt, were somewhere between Virginia Beach and Seventh Heaven as they eyed their idle idols sitting only a few feet away.

"How do people react to your long hair?" an irreverent adult asked them. Dave Clark, their leader, piped up with a soothing London brogue, "Well, at first, we were stared at quite a bit, I'd say, but people got used to it. As he noticed there are a lot of American boys wearing their hair long now."

One of the executives for a record label the group records for was present. It was brought out by their agent that the Dave Clark disc sales in the United States are now over 10,000,000. Epic records has recently awarded Dave Clark another gold disc for over a million album sales.

They were scheduled to perform at Virginia Beach. The concert featured them for only 20 minutes and rain dampened many spirits there, but the everardent teens remained until the last lusty twang.

Twenty-two year-old Dave was asked about his movie. "Yes, I just made a film called 'Week-end in London.' The plot is almost like real life. You see, I am a stuntman, along with Lenny, Rick, Mike and Dennis."

Dave said the movie is a comedy drama about a boy and girl who want to get away from everything. It will have some chase sequences (which, incidentally, reminds one of the same sort of wild goose chase in the Beatles' wildly successful first film, "A Hard Day's Night").

The quintet are now on their fourth U.S.-Canadian tour, which will last a month. Dave (drums), Rick Huxley, 22 (bass, guitar), Lenny Davidson, 21 (guitar), Mike Smith, 22 (organ), and Dennis Payton, 22 (tenor sax) appeared to be taking their huge success in their stride. They were a stuntman, along with Lenny, the many reporters and cameramen were giving them.

They have become, along with the Beatles, a benefit to the British Treasury by erasing a large part of the British trade deficit. They also are taking home personal fortunes that would make most wage-earners' heads swim with envy.

The Dave Clark Five have recorded five albums and are working on a sixth, which will be the soundtrack from "Having A Wild Weekend."

Dave was asked what he thought of the Beatles.

"The greatest thing to ever hit show business. They're tremendous and certainly, they deserve everything they have."

They told the press that their teenage audiences were basically the same in behavior all over the world. "We had a smashing successful tour in Australia and New Zealand, you know," said Rick Huxley.

Dave Clark was a stunt man in British films before he got into the musical side of entertainment. The boys met while working out at a neighborhood gym. "Funny how life is so accidental," Dave said with a quizzical smile.

"As a stuntman, I broke everything from my little nose to my little toes," he laughed. This broke up the reporters, who had, if anything, a quotable quote.

They all agreed that they had to be careful on tour with fans who ripped off their clothes and threw objects at them. "We've been beat up, too, but it's all part of the fun," Dave said. "Everything but our trousers has been pulled off." Then, two others piped up and said they had often been in danger of that.

After the press had drained them of questions, the quintet mingled in the crowd, downed coles and posed for photographers. One British girl, here for a vacation, met her fellow countrymen and was highly excited. "Aow!" she screamed as Mike Smith met her and put his hand around her waist.

'Two For The Seesaw' Highly Recommended

A REVIEW

It takes two extremely strong persons to carry an entire production through two-and-a-half hours, and to hold the audience every minute. We have seen two persons do it so successfully that it seemed almost a shame when the play was over.

The play was "Two for the Seesaw" by William Gibson. It opened at Wedgewood Dinner-Theatre Monday night for four weeks. And it is more than worth the drive to Toano to see this production. Although only two persons ever appear on the stage, there is a third who deserves the highest accolades. Paul C. Iddings, who directed the production and designed the settings is truly one of the most talented persons we have ever known. "Two for the Seesaw" is a rough play to direct. It requires complete understanding of the sensitive and touching situation, and Paul Iddings obviously understands.

The action takes place in New York City over a period of nine months in two separate rooms, so artfully designed for this production. Both rooms are visible to the audience at the same time. One is a cold unlivable room, the other, colorful and exuding warmth. Both reflect so well their occupants.

The plot revolves around an attorney from Omaha, at odds with himself and the world. He has come to New York while his divorce is pending. He is lonely, but determined to forget his old life, dominated by his wife and father-in-law. He is a man who has a great need to be needed, but has much difficulty in giving of himself. In his loneliness, he becomes involved with a seemingly insensitive would-be dancer, who gives freely of herself, but has never known what it is to be really needed. They each impart their best qualities to the other during the action, and as it ends no moral conclusion is drawn by the playwright. That is entirely up to the audience. Both characters have learned one important thing — the necessity of being needed.

The play is billed as a comedy, and it is. There is much very funny dialogue, handled expertly by the cast. But it is also a poignant drama about two very real people. First of all it is a great play, but only the cast can make it come to life.

Claudine Iddings, as Gittel Mosca, is nothing short of superb. Her portrayal of the uneducated, unsophisticated, warm-hearted girl is a delight to witness. We have seen Mrs. Iddings in many plays, but to our way of thinking, this is her finest performance. Her every movement, gesture, glance, and wisecrack is perfect. She is the unfortunate Gittel.

Timothy L. Jones portrays Jerry Ryan with excellence. His sensitive characterization of a man torn between two loves and the struggle to know himself is a difficult one. But he does it in such a believable manner that every member of the audience no doubt wonders what he would do in the same position.

If it seems that we have nothing but praise for this production of "Two for the Seesaw," then we have accomplished our purpose. It is theatre in the finest tradition, and a must for theatre patrons.

"Two for the Seesaw" continues at Wedgewood Dinner-Theatre in Toano through July 24th. — H. J. L.

Notes from Your Agricultural Agent

CATTLEMEN SHOULD PREPARE FOR 1975

There's $38,000,000 in additional income waiting for Virginia cattlemen by 1975, if they can earn it.

This figure is the potential estimated by a university study committee, if cattlemen improve feed, pasture, markets, know-how, their competitive position, and other variables.

Get records, cull by them—not on looks alone. You won't economize with a cheap bull, but you won't need this advice by 1975 unless you improve your cow lines, too. Avoid overstocking, don't buy hay or roughage, use the whole corn plant for silage and—for heaven's sake—test it!

Avoid nostrums and highly promoted feeds with questionable ingredients. Find ways to intensify your use of pasture. Make breeding stock selections from herds where they grow well without stimulation of drugs, dope, and extras.

Some cattlemen need to increase herd size, but size alone is no cure-all. Automation is a luxury, so don't go wild on machinery, equipment, bars, and gadgets that cows can't pay for. Remember that cows have only four ways of paying; through reduced costs, greater calving percent, more growth, and improved grade.

Comfort must be provided, however. Cattle won't fatten that plow all day, and if they plow through mud—they've plowed! There's not much to be gained when man-made stress of some kind saps away all the good you've done improving genetics and the feeding program.

Jobs not done on time mark you as a careless, unresponsive, over-relaxed (lazy) individual, so paint up, cut the brush, castrate, dehorn, and vaccinate. Do something to guarantee carcass merit for your customers. It is your business what goes on—even outside your line fences.

Find a way to do without the fads in seed stock production in favor of the practical needs of the commercial man who has to make a living with what you produce for him. The "Country Club" image attached to some purebreds helps destroy confidence of country bull buyers whether it should or not. Get ready for 1975, because if you wait to do it—tomorrow may be too late.

Base Dedicates McCain Library

LITTLE CREEK — The John Sidney McCain Jr. Amphibious Warfare Professional Library, named in honor of Vice Admiral John S. McCain Jr., USN, Commander Amphibious Force U.S. Atlantic Fleet was dedicated last week in ceremonies at the U.S. Naval Amphibious School, Little Creek.

Accepting the dedication in his honor, Vice Adm. McCain said the library will serve as a research center for those who follow in the Amphibious Force. Initial action to set up such a library was originated by VADM. McCain in late 1964 to provide a repository for a ready source of information on all documents relative to the broad field of amphibious warfare.

The admiral further stated that the principle reason for the library is expressed well in the U.S. Naval Academy motto: "from knowledge comes power". The library currently has 3,000 publications and documents and plans call for about 100,000 by 1975.

Material will be both classified and unclassified on various subjects including plans and orders, staff and board studies, lesson plans, foreign publications, technical manuals, service periodicals and intelligence publications on enemy tactics and operations in amphibious warfare.

The library is located in the U.S. Naval Amphibious School commanded by Captain H. H. deLaurel, USN.

Following the library dedication, a reception was held in the Alfred Thayer Mahan room of the school, VADM. McCain officially cut the traditional ribbon opening the room. The room is primarily outfitted to provide a facility for the conduct of briefings, lectures and seminars on the subjects of Seapower and Leadership.

The room is named after the late Rear Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan who greatly influenced United States policy during the early period in the late 19th and early 20th centuries as a naval strategist and articulator of seapower. An oil painting of Rear Admiral Mahan is displayed on one wall.

BLACKWATER 4-H CLUB MEETING

by Toni Baum

BLACKWATER — This month's meeting brought with it a very interesting program. We had the following demonstrations:

Ricky Shirley gave a demonstration on how to judge swine. Stephanie Peck gave the demonstration that we are hopeful will win the state demonstration contest. This demonstration is all about beef.

Dina Brumley gave a demonstration on how to make doughnuts and we all enjoyed her samples very much.

The program was topped off by a very informative talk by Mr. Lay on demonstrations and club activities.

Committees were set up to regulate the bake sale and club social.

We are hoping that more adults will take interest in the 4-H Clubs in their community.

Broken Word 'Untrue:' Kellam

VIRGINIA BEACH — "Absolutely untrue" was Sidney Kellam's reply Tuesday to a Republican charge that he had broken his word with former Norfolk Mayor Fred Duckworth in the 1960 water crisis.

The allegation was included in the report of a committee studying Virginia Beach re-apportionment and was released also on Tuesday by the Virginia Republican Assembly of Virginia Beach. Dan Grimes is committee chairman.

"Completely unnecessary" was also the way the Republican report described the merger of former Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach.

The report said, "Sidney Kellam also broke his word to ex-Mayor (W. Fred) Duckworth of Norfolk, that he would take no action towards merger until Norfolk had settled its metropolitan government controversy."

"Then he made his move for merger at a time when Norfolk was not in a position to protect its interests, a direct disregard for his agreement with the then Mayor Duckworth."

Duckworth made no comment on the allegation.

Also charged in the report was "Sidney Kellam has repeatedly made public statements promising that upon merger there would be absolutely no increase in taxation as a result (in fact, however, an unnecessary reassessment of property has since been placed in effect that has approximately doubled the tax rate in addition to increases of from 10 cents to 20 cents on a hundred dollars of valuation)."

Kellam retorted: "I said by reason of the merger. When the people themselves vote for school improvements they, of course, understand it requires some increase in taxes."

Addressing himself to charges the merger was "unnecessary," Kellam said:

"The people passed on merger by a vote of about 7 to 1 and since then they have voted for about $12 million worth of bond issues for schools as well as millions of dollars for water and sewerage and these improvements were necessary whether we remained a county or city."

"If the Republicans want to criticize the rights of the people to vote on the issues, then of course that is their privilege."

The Republican statement also said:

"In addition, it is a fact that 'merger' was completely unnecessary in order to avoid annexation by Norfolk. If such a danger existed, it could not have been brought about for another five to six years, during which time it would have been possible to simply incorporate either the Kempsville Borough or the Bayside area."

Also charged by the Republicans was that "the annexation scare was simply a screen to consolidate and centralize power into the hands of a select few at the expense of our citizenry."

COUNCIL POSTPONED

City Council will not meet next Monday as usually scheduled because so many of the councilmen are on vacation. The next meeting will be July 26 at 10 a.m. and all matters originally scheduled for next Monday will be carried over until July 26.

"MINUTE MEN" CELEBRATION

NORFOLK — The newest Naval Marine Corps and Coast Guard Reserve Training Center in the United States, located in Norfolk, celebrates on July 11 one year of training modern-day "minute men."

Over 1500 Navy, 400 Marine and 500 Coast Guard Reserve officers and enlisted personnel train at the Center, a modern facility capable of providing adequate training in skills and trades necessary to those three branches of the armed forces. However, facilities at the Center are open to active duty personnel as well as reservists.

The citizen sailors, marine- and coast guardsmen drill weekly and monthly throughout the year developing their readiness for mobilization in the event of war or national emergency.

Forty active duty personnel support the Center's programs which include a master control radio station that provides communications to all reserve training facilities in West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Kentucky.

Trained at the Center and the Army's Fort Story in nearby Virginia Beach, the Reserve Harbor Defense Division would be responsible for defense of lower Chesapeake Bay upon mobilization.

At the present time, the Center's Ship Activation and Repair Group provides repair service for the reserve tank landing ship squadron at the Little Creek Amphibious Base. The group also provides training in naval amphibious beach group operations.

Reluctant action in the Summer Sands Playhouse as Maria and the Trapp children sing away their fears of a midnight thunder and lightning storm, in a touching bedroom scene of "The Sound of Music" being presented now through July 11. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. (See Review page 6-B.) (staff photo by Melania)

Forces To 'Invade' Beach Fri.

LITTLE CREEK — The loud sounds piercing the early morning air in Virginia Beach Friday, July 9, and the multi-colored flares shooting skyward won't be a belated 4th of July celebration.

The sounds and sights will herald the arrival of an "invasion" force off the beach of Camp Pendleton.

More than 1,500 Marine Reservists from the eastern half of the U.S. will begin landing at H-Hour, 9 a.m. sharp, in a demonstration of the Marine Corps-Navy team's amphibious assault capability.

For the Reservists it will be their "graduation day" exercise for which they have been preparing the past two weeks.

Under the guidance of Marines from the Landing Force Training Unit, Atlantic at Little Creek, these men have undergone an intensive amphibious assault indoctrination program. The landing will demonstrate how well they have learned their lessons.

This provisional-brigade size landing will be open to the public. Bleachers will be set up next to the invasion area for better viewing by spectators.

Access to the parking area at Camp Pendleton may be gained through the North Gate of the camp. This is about one mile south of Rudee Inlet on Atlantic Ave.

Reservists taking part in the landing are from (and units): Boston, Mass., Headquarters, 1st Battalion, 25th Marine, 4th Marine Division; Dayton, Ohio, 3rd Staff Group; East Peoria, Ill., 14th Engineer Co.; Grand Rapids, Mich., 10th Rifle Company.

Also: Hartford, Conn., "B" Company, 1st Battalion, 25th Marines; Madison, Wis., 4th 105mm Howitzer Battery; Manchester, N.H., "D" Company, 1st Battalion, 25th Marines; Miami, Fla., 4th Anglico Company; Port Newark, N.J., 6th Motor Transport Battalion; Rochester, N.Y., 3rd Communications Company; and Springfield, Mass., "C" Company, 1st Battalion, 25th Marines.

Two more Marine Reserve amphibious landings are planned this summer on Aug. 6 and 27.

The Sound Of Music

Kellam Supported By More Endorsements

William P. "Bill" Kellam, in his bid for the State Senate in next Tuesday's Democratic Primary, continues to receive important endorsements from civic, business, political and labor groups. Kellam had previously received the organized support of the Norfolk AFL-CIO, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the L & J Garden Civic League.

In addition, Kellam has now also received the endorsement of the Portsmouth Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. The announcement was made by William L. Redmon, secretary of the Committee on Political Education. The Council is an affiliation of 29 labor locals in the Portsmouth-Chesapeake area, and has a combined membership of about five thousand.

In another endorsement, The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks has also endorsed Kellam in the newly created 3rd State Senatorial District. The endorsement is significant in light of the earlier support of Kellam by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The Democratic Primary is Tuesday, July 13. (See Editorial Comment, P. 4A). There are five candidates for the three seats in the District, which includes Virginia Beach, Portsmouth and Chesapeake.

On Wednesday, The Voting Women of Thalia held a reception honoring Kellam at the Thalia Acres Inn. The reception was held in order to give Thalia voters the opportunity to meet

HOLIDAY WEEK-END WAS RECORD BREAKER

VIRGINIA BEACH — There's no doubt about it. Virginia Beach broke all records last week-end with the largest Fourth of July holiday party the city has ever enjoyed. For one of the few times in its history, the city had to turn away visitors for lack of rooms.

Hotel and motel owners pretty well agreed that on Saturday and Sunday nights there was not a room to be had anywhere at any price. This created a rather unusual problem for the hotelmen... they were assisting spur-of-the-moment vacationers in finding accommodations in neighboring cities.

"The Virginia Beach Innkeepers were not only filled to capacity," said Mrs. George H. Leary, president of the Innkeepers Association, "but places as far away as Suffolk were also turning people away."

The Chamber of Commerce staff had to turn a deaf ear on pleas for rooms. There simply were no rooms and they, too, were making hurried arrangements for families who popped into Virginia Beach for unplanned holidays.

The accommodations situation was so critical, in fact, that some groups of vacationers were permitted to sleep temporarily on the beach, reportedly with official clearance, until rooms could be found for them.

"I walked down on the boardwalk shortly after daylight Sunday morning," Chamber President A. B. Crews said, "and people were lined up along the beach asleep. I don't have any idea how many there were, but they looked like railroad ties."

Mrs. Leary said she could only remember one other time when people had to be turned away from Virginia Beach and that was in 1946, immediately after the war. "Of course, there were not nearly so many accommodations here at that time," she added.

Traffic also reached an all-time high, resulting in a new record for the 14-month-old Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

Between Friday through Monday, 26,532 vehicles crossed the span, about two-thirds of them heading south into Virginia Beach. Last year's July 4th total was 23,076.

Saturday was the heaviest day with 7,569 vehicles reported. This single day broke the previous record of 7,114 vehicles on the Friday before Easter of this year.

During the four days, the bridge-tunnel toll plazas took in $160,275 in revenue, considerably higher than last year's holiday total of $146,437.

But, despite the unusually heavy traffic, there were no fatalities and no major mishaps.

"We had about 60 accidents Friday through Sunday," Lt. C. R. Bailey of the Traffic Bureau reported, "but that isn't out of the ordinary for a summer week-end. There were no serious injuries, only scrapes and bruises and property damage."

Sunny skies and a clear surf added the perfect holiday touch and thousands upon thousands of bathers lined the beach from daylight to dark, enjoying a spot of the shore, even in the residential areas, was unobscured throughout the week-end.

"It was just like Coney Island," was the general description most residents, hotelmen and merchants were using in summing up the big holiday.

Even the bays and inland waters were lavishly spotted with boaters, fishermen and water skiers.

"The Chesapeake was so full of fishing boats you could almost walk across the bay stepping from deck to deck" was the way one fisherman described the scene.

An exaggeration, true, but it pretty well explains the Virginia Beach picture last week-end. It was a record-breaker. And that's no exaggeration.

The reviewing party consisted of Brigadier General Gordon D. Gayle, USMC, Commander Amphibious Training Command and the retiring officers are:

Presiding officer, John Martin, appointed a special committee headed by B. Grey to deliver into the matter and present detailed plans and cost estimates at the July 12 meeting.

It is the wish of the League that members and residents of Pembroke Manor plan to attend the important meeting for final plans for the Civic Building.

It has been announced that the Civic League will hold a Bake Sale on Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Food Fair in Aragona Shopping Center. Proceeds will aid in furnishing the soon-to-be-built Civic League building.

PEACE CORPS

TEST SATURDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — An opportunity for Virginia Beach area residents to offer their abilities to the Peace Corps will come Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Norfolk Post Office Building, room 3A on York and Granby Streets.

The opportunity is the Peace Corps Placement Test, which is not passed or failed and can't be studied for. It measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language.

The test is used as a tool by the Peace Corps in matching Volunteers and jobs. The Peace Corps application is the most important indicator of suitability for service. It must be filled out and brought to the exam unless previously submitted.

Applicants should plan on about one and a half hours at the testing center in Norfolk; unless they wish to take the Spanish or French language achievement test, which requires an additional hour.

Checks are payable to the Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival.

Flight Ends In Roanoke

VIRGINIA BEACH — Rodney Pope, 23, was scheduled to be returned to Virginia Beach sometime Wednesday from Roanoke where he had been taken into custody in connection with a theft here Monday.

Pope has been accused by police of taking about $1,300 from the Yardarm Restaurant on Laskin Road, where he was an employee.

Police said they believe the youth took the money from an unlocked cabinet about 4:30 p.m. Monday and left in his car, headed north up Atlantic Avenue. The car broke down on Shore Drive and was abandoned, police said, but Pope made his way out of the city by bus.

Pope was believed to be heading for Roanoke, police said, and an alarm was put out for his arrest. He was taken into custody in Roanoke just a few hours after the theft was discovered.

Camping Advice

If your child is campbound this summer, you no doubt have received a mile-long list of required camping paraphernalia from the camp administrators. Unfortunately, in spite of its length, this list doesn't tell you everything. Jean Kinkaid, women's consultant to The Travelers Insurance Companies and mother of five children—all of whom have been campers at one time or another—has some suggestions to offer based on her experience.

"I think the biggest lesson I had to learn was in connection with this economy now. I know that you just don't economize on necessities. Buy really good ones—and several pairs of shoes—spend the extra money for that good, heavy-duty flashlight—and don't forget to put in plenty of batteries. Splurge on a well-made zipper kit for toilet articles—and fill it with all the obvious necessities, not overlooking a deodorant, shampoo, insect repellent and lots of tissues."

Where can you economize? On fun classes, suggests Miss Kinkaid. "They're always getting lost and three $1.00 pairs are a lot better buy than one $3.00 pair."

Miss Kinkaid remembers that when her older children first went away to camp she completely overlooked the fact that there'd be rainy days and free time for them during the summer. "I packed no recreational material for them at all. When John, the youngest boy, went to camp last summer, he took along his guitar, his favorite records, several pounds of paper-back books, playing-cards, and a few other assorted treasures! It was a highly successful summer."

A few other hints from Miss Kinkaid:

1. If he needs glasses, be sure to pack an extra pair—in case. "Unbreakable" lenses are a wise precaution, too.
2. Mark his camping gear (sleeping bag, canteen, ketchup, etc.) with an op-art type symbol to make tape or one with a bright marking pencil. All items of course, should be labeled.
3. Pack in a dozen stamped, self-addressed post cards to encourage him to write home.
4. Pack a small diary or notebook to write him about.
5. Also include a small notebook to write him about.

Anne High School and is now employed as a secretary of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission.

Mr. Davis is a graduate of Princess Anne High School and attended Old Dominion College and now is employed by the City Planning Commission of Virginia Beach as a Planning Technician.

The wedding will take place Sept. 4, in the Virginia Beach Methodist Church.

BEACH PARTY

DAM NECK — A Beach Party is planned for July 21 at the Dam Neck Officers Beach from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. by the Dam Neck Officers Wives Club. The party has been rescheduled from June which was canceled due to rain.

Members and guests are requested to bring a picnic lunch, and their children for a fun-filled day.

Party Line BY OLGA EDWARDS

Saturday night and finally ideal weather for outside dancing. The crowd was large and Chuck Laskin and his band were excellent. In fact everything was perfect, except my camera and that decided to take a holiday and not work. I picked a table, had the people all set, clicked the shutter, and the flash didn't work. I tried again and still nothing. Believe me when I say my exit was one of embarrassment.

Refusing to be defeated I returned Monday to the tea dance. The crowd was not as large as it was Saturday night but everyone certainly enjoyed themselves. Those seen were: Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown of Norfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ogle, Mrs. I. T. Ballard, Bill Rice, Mrs. C. W. Ritchie, Mrs. Wm. L. Tarrall, Mrs. Maude Paul Perkey, Mrs. J. D. Hollomon, Clyde Holton, Arthur Lillienfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Harper, Floyd Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Clemens their daughter Melodie and her friend Robin Phillips.

I never seem to stop being amazed at the questions people ask when I try to get the names for Party Line. Some are so very glad to give their names and others have to think about it and then some end up by saying I am Queen Elizabeth and this is Prince Phillip. Others seen were: Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clifford, Miss Peggy Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Linnoth, Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosen, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kay their daughter Keville and son Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Cruser, Mr. and Mrs. James R. EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Let's Cross The Bridge

Once a year, or thereabouts, Virginia Beach City Council votes again to ask the State Highway Department to expedite its plans for a second span across Lynnhaven Inlet on Shore Drive. Each time the request gets pigeon-holed somewhere by the Department for any one of a number of reasons. Probably the most obvious ones are that there are so many requests that must be taken care of first, the more desperate need in other places, and a lack of money. Those three reasons alone are enough to discourage anyone, but Council keeps right on asking. Eventually, maybe something will be done, and as far as we are concerned, the sooner the better.

The fault does not lie with City Council. It has done all it can toward getting the much-needed bridge. The rest is up to the State. The way the story is told now, the new two-lane span and the widening of Shore Drive from Fort Story to a hookup with the new Virginia Beach Toll Road have been approved as part of the State's new arterial highway system. The only trouble is that the program is a long-range program, and there could be several more years' delay. We hope not. We hope that something can be done during the next biennium, after the State Highway Department is given its appropriation by the Virginia General Assembly. Of course, the Assembly does not meet again until next January.

For those of us who remember the old bridge across Lynnhaven Inlet, and who were often caught in traffic there, when any boat larger than a rowboat had to come through the draw, we can, at least, take heart in the fact that there is even one excellent span there now. The importance of Shore Drive has increased manifold in just the last year, with the completion of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Traffic, in ever-increasing volume, moves along Shore Drive smoothly and quickly most of the time on the four lane roadway all the way from Norfolk to Lynnhaven Inlet. Then it must merge into a single lane to cross the bridge, only to find more four lane highway on the other side all the way to Fort Story. Obviously traffic is heaviest on Shore Drive during the summer months as the multitudes head to and from the beach areas. But on weekends the bottleneck created by the two lane bridge is almost unbelievable. On recent weekends traffic has been backed up as much as two miles on either or both sides of the inadequate bridge. Not only is it discouraging to inch along in that kind of traffic while tempers and radiators heat up, but it is also a traffic hazard and downright dangerous.

As we remember when the first span was built, there was to be a second span as soon as possible under Virginia's pay as you go road policy. Several years have passed, and we are still waiting. We can only hope the moment of truth will not be forever in coming, and we can hope there will not be too many traffic accidents at or near the existing bridge between now and that time.

To make ourselves perfectly clear, let us say that we do not blame anyone in particular in this mess. The City is doing all it can in the matter, and will, no doubt be ready, willing and able to foot its fifteen percent of the cost of construction, when the time eventually comes. We realize the problem that the State has, too, in deciding what projects come first and how to get enough money to do everything it must. We simply feel that the State has waited too long to get busy in our behalf. We know our representatives in the General Assembly will be fighting as usual to get what we need next year. And although we are merely a small voice in the wilderness, we hope the State will take note and heed our pleas.

Much Ado About Surfing

The sport of surfing is not new, although, chronologically speaking, it is relatively new to this area. Virginia Beach is a good place for surfing; thus the city has attracted many enthusiasts. Just the other day, we watched the teenagers ply the waves. It was our first time as a spectator, and there probably will not be a first time as a participant. But be that as it may, we enjoyed watching. We regard surfing now as a pleasant sport, however not one devoid of danger.

During the middle of the afternoon the day we watched, the area on the south end of the beach allotted to surfers was literally dotted with the boards and their riders. We might safely say the place was crowded. This, in itself, causes some danger, since a considerable amount of space is necessary for each surfer as he heads toward the beach. If he happens to fall off (the expression is "wipe out," we think), a riderless board can become a hazard to others. And, as we have pointed out in another editorial on this page, the water itself is dangerous, even to the most skilled.

We looked at the license tags of the cars parked in the area. They came from everywhere. Not only were there several ocean state tags, but a great number from neighboring cities. The largest representation was from Norfolk, followed closely by Chesapeake and Portsmouth. And, of course, many were from Virginia Beach. The area, clearly, has attracted persons from everywhere, and for the most part, the surfers observed can only be described as wholesome, young, energetic. Unfortunately, we saw some who do not fit into this category, but this is bound to happen, regardless of the place and reputation of the sport.

The aspect that worried us most was the concentration of humanity in one small area. It is well supervised. It is orderly. But it is also crowded. We are now convinced that another surfing area is needed. This is not a revelation. Virginia Beach City Council has begun to take a long look at the same problem. We would prefer to keep all surfers in one place, were it possible. Apparently this is no longer possible, or it may not be possible in the near future. The sport has grown to such great proportions. There are professionals and amateurs there now, but more beginners than skilled performers.

What we would suggest is that another area be opened on the north end of the beach, if a suitable place can be found. But there's the rub. North end residents have asked Council to find an area, because their children are not old enough to drive or because the south end is too far to go. So at least, we know we have some support. However, we do not believe the choosing of an area is up to Council. Perhaps the surfers and the Surf Clubs can work together with the civic clubs and groups on the north end in finding a spot where the sport will not interfere with bathers, tourists or permanent residents. If there is such a place, then and only then would we be willing to see another surfing area opened at Virginia Beach. It must be a satisfactory solution to everyone or it will defeat its purpose. Again, we do not feel that City Council should have anything to say about it except the final approval or disapproval.

We believe the sport of surfing is a good one, however dangerous. And we encourage the growth of the sport at Virginia Beach. All we can suggest is active help by the surfers and their parents in finding another satisfactory place for the sport, so that one of the major dangers—crowded conditions—can be eliminated.

OUR NEWEST MAN IN SPACE

Tuesday Is Election Day

The Democratic Primary is next Tuesday, and it is an extremely important day for Virginia Beach. Under the new apportionment, Virginia Beach is in a State Senatorial District along with Chesapeake and Portsmouth. There are five men running for the allotted three seats. As we have pointed out before, the best setup we can think of would be to elect one man from each of the three cities. Of course we are concerned with the selection of the best available men who have offered themselves as candidates, but we are primarily concerned with Virginia Beach.

First of all, we urge you to exercise your right to vote in the primary. It is the time and place to have your voter's voice heard. Often, in a primary, very few votes are cast, probably due to the fact that there is little interest. But this time, there should be great interest at Virginia Beach, because it is the first time that we will have the chance to elect a Virginia Beach man to the State Senate.

There are two men running from Virginia Beach. To us, there is only one choice, however. Bill Kellam is obviously the better man—better qualified and better able to represent us well. He is able to work well with the present and incoming State administrations, and has the experience necessary to hold such an important and responsible job. He has received numerous endorsements from civic, business and labor groups in the district—endorsements which clearly show the faith that all have in Bill Kellam. We have faith in him, too, and look forward to his selection in the primary. We also have faith in the voters, whom we know, after examining the issues and looking at them, will vote for Bill Kellam.

So Tuesday, Election Day, is an important date to remember. Not only can we go to the polls and vote for a Virginia Beach man, but we can also support the man best for the job, Bill Kellam. The important thing to remember, however, is to VOTE. We'd like to hear of a record vote at the polls Tuesday. We hope you'll help make our wish come true.

One More Plea For Safety

The tragic drownings last week of two young Virginia Beach girls and the death of another this week, have pointed out once more the danger that water can hold. The three children, who went swimming in a sandpit, of which there are many throughout the city, were not supervised, and their moments of pleasure ended in death. No one enjoys the water and water sports any more than we do, but we are fully cognizant of the dangers in the enjoyment of these sports.

Each year there are drownings, and more often than not, we write them off as unfortunate accidents. They are accidents, and they are unfortunate, but the reasons that they occur need more exploration. In the deaths of the three young girls, we do not wish to place blame, nor do we wish to pass judgment. But we wonder what they were doing at a sand pit, alone, in the first place. All a parent can do is warn children of the dangers of water hazards. They cannot watch the children every moment. But they should forbid young children to go to the dangerous sand pits at all, and do everything possible to impress their youngsters with a thorough knowledge of the dangers. The bottom of these pits is uneven, often muddy. They offer nothing but trouble for anyone, especially for unsupervised children.

In the Bay or in the Atlantic Ocean, most drownings occur through carelessness. Going out too far, or overconfidence in one's ability in water are potential killers. Of course, illness or muscle cramps can be responsible for some drownings, but carelessness is by far the most vicious reason. Parental guidance and water safety lessons, including swimming, from an early age, are a must for children in any place like Virginia Beach where children naturally are going to be around water. Children, unfortunately, do not always see danger clearly. It is up to us to help them.

We believe something should be done about the sand pits. The only valid suggestion that we have is that fences of some kind should be placed around them with signs warning of the danger. This is not all the answer, but it is at least a deterrent for the majority. Swimming alone should be discouraged, especially in non-patrolled areas, and children should not be allowed to take part in water sports unless adults are there.

We regret having to report so many drownings each year, especially when the victims are children. They should not happen, but until each and every adult recognizes the dangers of the water and learns how to behave around it, and until each parent teaches his own children those same dangers and keeps them away from dangerous places, such as the sand pits, we will be forced to continue to our reporting of drownings and drowning victims. We only hope that day comes soon.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH
OPEN FORUM

Humanity or Surf Boards?

Surf boarding must be kept under rigid control and zoned in an area safe from where the populace relaxes, and enjoys the beaches. To those who are pressuring the City Council to permit surfing at the north end of Virginia Beach I would like to ask this question—Have you ever been a mother or grandmother watching over your loved ones innocently splashing around in the ocean and then to suddenly see a surf board being tossed madly toward them—and only a prayer in your heart to help you as you try to scream and about a warnings?

Surfing is a highly dangerous sport, and if it is to be permitted to destroy the enjoyment of men, women, and children, living in residential areas of Virginia Beach, and of the many visitors who come from near and far to gain some of the peace and beauty of the ocean, then indeed there is something wrong with our democracy.

We who own our homes in North Virginia Beach do so because we value the little wilderness remaining, and because the beach offers health and happiness, and the beauty and magnificence of the ever changing sea. The hazards of the surf boards bring terror in where terror does not belong!

The average surf boarder seems to be most selfish and arrogant in his attitude. As one said to me last year when I stopped his surf board from grazing my grandchild just in the nick of time, "Well, I have not killed anybody yet!"

Surfing should be supervised and controlled in a stretch of beach at the south end, even perhaps south of the inlet. No one has I seen using the surf in that stretch. Those persons who have traveled, for instance to Hawaii, have never witnessed the hazard of the surf boards among the beach swimmers. Children who are learning to surf on the small, child's size surf board made of a light material, should be taught to do so when and where there are no swimmers or children enjoying the surf.

Dorothy Abdill

Dear Sir:
I have just finished reading the "Virginia Beach Sun" account of the destroyer's rescue yesterday. I was appalled at the lack of true information given in the story.

I'm only a Navy wife, but at least I know the difference between Coast Guard tug boats and Navy tug boats and a destroyer. Your account said "two CG tugs—they were Navy tugs." Very possibly, your reporter mistook the gray tugs for "another Navy destroyer". A very small CG boat was also at the scene, but it was not a tugboat. There was another tugboat "boying" around—maybe that was a CG tug.

I suppose this letter is senseless to write, but I really was surprised at the amount of wrong information your paper gave out. Thank you for reading this.

Sincerely
Catherine T. Fowlkes

Ed. Note—No letter is ever senseless to write, if it makes you feel better. Apparently your letter has accomplished that purpose and I appreciate your writing it, regardless of your attitude.

May we say that for a Navy wife you are most observant. But even we newspaper people know the difference between a Navy destroyer and a gray tugboat.

To our best knowledge, the information in the story was accurate as given to us, only a few minutes before we published it. We are appalled that you are appalled.

The thrilling—but rather distant—view of the multi-colored spinners of the Annapolis-Newport Sailboat Race fleet off the Virginia Capes last Sunday prompted the thought that such race could offer an important opportunity to Virginia Beach.

The race begins in Annapolis, proceeds down Chesapeake Bay and around the Chesapeake lightship and thence up the coast to Newport.

Instead of the Chesapeake lightship as the point of turning, I wonder if the race's officials could not be persuaded (a Virginia Beach award for 1st in class crossing the "Virginia Beach Line") to extend the race around a buoy about a mile out and off, say Rudee Inlet.

Such an Annapolis-Virginia Beach-Newport Race could be an outstanding annual event for a Virginia Beach "spectator fleet"—and beachfront audience.

Respectfully yours,
Donald Webb
Ed. Note—Good question. And a good suggestion.

Firemen Need
Penny-A-Day
For Departments

BAYSIDE — This is a good question for residents of the huge city of Virginia Beach—Did you know that—with the exception of the Borough of Virginia Beach—Fire Protection is maintained by more than 350 volunteers in 12 Departments?

These men stand ready to serve you twenty-four hours a day without pay. All they ask in return from you is your interest and support.

July is Annual Fund raising month for these Departments. You can help by giving just "A Penny-a-Day" to the Department in your neighborhood. $3.65 a year from you will guarantee the Departments the funds they need for purchasing and maintaining equipment.

Last year these twelve departments responded to more than 1050 calls for assistance. In addition, those with ambulances answered over 4,000 calls. None of the men who serve received any pay of any sort. Their satisfaction—was—in serving their neighbors.

They need your help. Give during July when a representative calls on you. The following Departments are taking part in this drive: Davis' Corner, Plaza, London Bridge, Ocean Park, Chesapeake Beach, Oceana, Creeds, Seatack, Kempsville Courthouse, Thalia, and Blackwater.

SPECIAL SERVICE

LONDON BRIDGE — A panel discussion of the Baptist World Alliance Meeting will be presented at London Bridge Baptist Church at this Sunday's evening service at 8 p.m.

Those who attended the Alliance which was held in the Miami Beach Convention Hall and the Orange Bowl were Mrs. C. M. Roper, Mrs. C. M. Martin, Harold Smithson, and Rev. and Mrs. G. Edward Hughes.

ON DEAN'S LIST

VIRGINIA BEACH — Miss Ann Christian Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelley, 7909 Olive Grove Cl., has been named to the dean's list for the second semester of the Virginia School of Nursing of the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

She was a freshman.

VOTERS OF VIRGINIA BEACH:

The 1964 Special Session of the General Assembly of Virginia, under order of the Federal Court, reapportioned both the Senate and House of Delegates of Virginia. A new senatorial district was formed comprised of the cities of Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach. The reapportionment was based upon the 1960 census and the population factor per senator was approximately 99,000 persons. The 1960 census populations of these three cities were: Chesapeake—78,647, Portsmouth—114,773, Virginia Beach—85,218.

Portsmouth's extra population, as you can see, was used in the combined new district (from which three senators are to be elected) to stifle the rapidly growing cities of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake to have an opportunity to elect resident senators.

There are five candidates seeking nomination on July 13th for the three seats. Each has recognized that we should have one Senator from each of the three cities. Only one candidate is from Portsmouth. He is the incumbent, Senator William B. Spong, Jr., a member of the General Assembly since 1964.

RE-ELECT
Senator
WILLIAM B. SPONG JR.

A native of Portsmouth... 44 years old... educated at Woodrow Wilson High School, Hampden-Sydney College, University of Virginia (LL.B. '47), University of Edinburgh, Scotland... veteran of 8th Air Force in World War II... member of Monumental Methodist Church... married Virginia Wise Galliford—two children... Chairman, Board of Trustees, Portsmouth General Hospital... Trustee, Hampden-Sydney College... Board of Managers, University of Virginia Alumni Association... served in House of Delegates, 1954... in the Senate since 1956... Chairman, Virginia Commission on Public Education (Spong Commission), 1958-62... Chairman, Hampton Roads Committee for Area-wide Cooperation, 1964-65.

Senator Spong's FIVE POINTS for PROGRESS

I. PUBLIC AND HIGHER EDUCATION

In May of 1962, while addressing the graduates of Madison College at their commencement exercises, I said:

"Much has been done during recent years toward improving the schooling of Virginia, but the world is too much with us for a provincial view of progress in education. Our gains must be evaluated on a national basis. Our progress should be measured by more than a regional yardstick and our comparisons must be with the best in the nation now rather than with our own efforts of past years."

This has been my firm belief during all of my years in the General Assembly, and I shall, if re-elected, continue to support measures that will improve our public school systems so that our graduates may compete on a national basis for either employment or college admission. I favor increased pay for school teachers and will support the $5,000 minimum salary proposed by Lieutenant Governor Godwin. I will support improvement of the teacher retirement system, expansion of vocational education systems and programs, and will continue efforts to see that all federally impacted funds to which our localities are entitled are received under fund distribution formula.

I support immediate expansion of higher education facilities in Virginia and pledge, if re-elected, to continue efforts in behalf of Old Dominion College and Norfolk Division of Virginia State. I endorse separation of the Norfolk Division from Virginia State at Petersburg.

II. HIGHWAYS

The Hampton Roads Area must have a complete system of highways and bridges much sooner than presently planned if we are to realize the full economic potential of this area. A sound and modern approach of current borrowing for highway construction is necessary so that the entire burden of highways designed for years of service will not fall upon today's taxpayers.

The imposition of so many tolls in this area is a bar to economic development. In 1964, I was one of the sponsors of legislation creating a commission to study tolls in this area with a view toward reducing this burden wherever possible. Almost one half of all highway funds come from the cities of Virginia. The present formula for distribution of highway funds allocates only fourteen per cent to the cities. This is inequitable and should be revised.

III. PORT DEVELOPMENT

I pledge continued support of the Virginia State Ports Authority and cooperation with the Industrial Commissions of the cities of Chesapeake, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach.

Development of general cargo facilities at Pungue Point in Portsmouth, as well as development of deep water terminals in Chesapeake, will provide economic benefit to the entire area and these projects will have my support.

IV. MENTAL HEALTH

I approve in principle the recent report of the Commission on Mental Health. My support of measures designed to relieve unsatisfactory conditions in mental institutions began with the successful fight for additional funds in the 1964 General Assembly. If re-elected, I pledge continued support of measures to promote remedial services at these institutions.

The Commonwealth should support and promote local mental services, particularly regional mental health centers.

V. TOURISM AND RECREATION

The Third Senatorial District with Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Portsmouth has more than its share of tourist attractions. Tourism is now one of Virginia's largest industries and I promise continued support of measures designed to attract tourists to Virginia and to this area. I endorse the establishment of a state division of planning within the executive branch of our government. Virginia is changing rapidly and we must be in a position to deal constructively with urban development during the next twenty-five years.

Virginia has incomparable outdoor recreation resources—these must be properly conserved and developed. I favor pleasured conservation of the Dismal Swamp, as well as other recreational facilities for the Hampton Roads area.

NATIONAL SAFE BOATING WEEK

The week of July 4th through 10, 1965 has been designated as Safe Boating Week. During this period the boating public is asked to pay particular attention to the observance of safety rules and regulations, and to make a mid-summer check of all boating safety equipment and devices. Have an approved life saving device in good condition on board for each person. Have proper lights, and if required, a fire extinguisher and sounding device, all in good working order.

Use common sense and courtesy while you are on the water. Do not overload your boat, pay attention to weather conditions and rules of the road.

Even though recreational boating has become the nations number one family sport, boating accidents are on the decline. Let's keep it that way! A major reason for this favorable trend in Virginia is the continuous educational programs by your Game Commission, Coast Guard Auxiliary, U.S. Power Squadron, American Red Cross and other interested groups.

Let us all take extra safety precautions during Safe Boating Week, and then stick with these safety habits for the rest of our boating career.

TIGERS POUNCE SPORTS' 23-0

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Rotarians beat the Cubs 9 to 6 Friday night in the Virginia Beach American Little League. Winning pitcher was John Givik. Rotarian Billy Almond doubled in the second inning, driving two runs and John Dewitt doubled in the third, driving in two.

The Tigers pounced the Sports 23 to 0 with the shut-out pitcher Claiborne Manson. Manson hit a homer in second and fourth innings.

The Little League has secured a Dewey Weber surfboard and the Little Leaguers are handling tickets for 50 cents each. The money collected will go as a donation to the Little League for equipment and uniforms.

The board may be seen at the Western Auto Store on 17th St. Chances may be purchased from any of the boys or officers of the Little League and at Western Auto. The drawing will be held July 27 at 7 p.m. and the winner does not have to be present.

GAME LAWS BOOKLET

The "Summary of Virginia Game Laws", distributed each year by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has a new look this year. The informational piece has been expanded to a 24 page, pocket size booklet and incorporates additional hunting season maps and copy.

In addition to the season maps incorporated last year, the publication includes maps on raccoons and fox seasons and bag limits. Also included are more local regulations on carrying firearms on or hunting near public roads. The expanded format makes the booklet easier to read.

The 24 page booklet is now being distributed to clerks, license agents and sporting goods dealers throughout the state and will soon be available from these sources. Single copies may be obtained from the Game Commission office, Box 1642, Richmond, Virginia 23213.

SCUBA DIVING

Undefeated Are Defeated

VIRGINIA BEACH — The undefeated are defeated no more. Show down week was last Tuesday in the Men's Unlimited league, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Recreation Department.

Walker Realty and Arrowhead Building Material met on the field of battle at Kempville to settle who was to stay undefeated. Going into the contest both teams had 9-0 records. After the umpire had called the last out and the dust had settled on the field, Walker Realty had come away with a hard won victory, 10-5. The contest went back and fourth many times in the early innings. Walker finally came thru on the hard hitting of Linwood Strickland who had an outstanding night at the plate with a homer and triple, double good for four rbi's and the victory. Pat Smith played a fine game going four for four all doubles and scoring four runs himself. Kempville beat the De-MoLay, 13-5. Ping Foxwell had three for three. The ITT Giants defeated the Coast Guard, 7-5.

The Virginia Beach Seven-Ups had a battle with Crepe, before pulling out the win in the bottom of the seventh, 10-9 on Ray Davis game winning home run. Chesapeake Beach routed the Beacon Restaurant, 18-2. Wayne Herndon belted a homer, double and single to lead the winners. Byrns Electric won their seventh game in a row with a 9-4 win over Seaboard Photo. Leo's restaurant beat Brown's Body shop, 23-6. Lawrence Doss blasted a homer with the bases loaded. Have an interesting bird story this week . . . but need help from any bird watchers or possible experts on bird activities for the real motive of the bird or birds involved . . .

Early in the spring, a year ago, a home gardener became aware of receiving unusual attention from a red-winged blackbird every time he worked in his garden. The garden is bordered on one side by a marshy area and a few tall swamp willow trees. In this area are many kinds of birds. Most of the time the birds stay away from the garden and yard when any human being is around, but it seemed that one red-winged blackbird was different. It took up a position in the tallest tree watching for the gardener to appear. If the morning grew long with no appearance of the man, the bird called and scolded from the tree. If other members of the family came into the yard, the bird might fly overhead for a moment or two, but seeing it was not for whom it was looking, would return to the tree top scolding louder than ever.

But let the grey head of the gardener come into sight and down it would swoop to about a foot over the silvery head, making piercing whistles and beating his wings so that it could follow the man. The bird stayed almost within reaching distance all the time the man was in his garden, chirping and whistling and swooping. Being a kindly-type man who loves all things whether animal or vegetable, the gardener wondered if the bird might have a nest in the area and considered him a threat. Yet if the bird felt threatened, why was the gardener the only one singled out for this special attention? As a gesture of friendship the man brought bread crumbs to a far fence for the bird. The bird would eat, chase all other birds away, and come back for more winged dancing over the gardener. This went on for many weeks, then all the blackbirds disappeared with the coming of the mockingbirds into the area. The gardener wondered about his experiences with the frolicking blackbird.

With the coming of spring, the man began his gar-ning again this year. The birds came back to the marsh. And one morning, not many weeks ago, while he was hoeing, he was startled by a rush of wings and a piercing whistle. Over his head was a red-winged blackbird.

Now for many weeks this bird has taken up the same position as one did last year. There are other blackbirds in the area, but no others came into the garden. The bird flies only to greet the grey head in the garden. His questions are—could this be the same redwinged blackbird who followed him last year? And does the bird consider him friend or foe? Who knows?

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STROG COMMUNITIES

STILL WATERS

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
For on each for the church character and good citizenship.
It is a church of spiritual values.
Without a strong church, politics, democracy, no civilization can survive. There are four solid reasons why every person should attend services regularly, and support the Church. They are:
(1) For his own sake. (2)
For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his help and material support.
Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Who would guess that just out of sight there's a peaceful place every day, and never know it exists. Occasionally, through a break in the sheltering trees, someone glimpses shining water and green pastureland in the distance... then the road curves, and the lovely scene is forgotten.

Many travelers hurry along life's road with empty hearts and unseeing eyes, never realizing what the transforming beauty of the Christian faith could mean to them. Because they always expect to find happiness around the next bend, they overlook the still waters of spiritual peace.

In the quiet, hallowed atmosphere of the Church, God answers man's deepest needs. Through prayer and worship, our souls are strengthened and comforted. And when we continue our journey, we are not alone. God is with us.

The Mixing Bowl

It's Fun To Cook

By LUCILE CLARK

Virginia Beach SUN Food Editor

That summer dress doesn't fit! Something made it shrink during winter months.

You may have gained a few pounds while "hibernating" in the bulky winter woollens. Oh-just a few inches here and there, perhaps. But not that much. Not there! No—

You can't still get into last year's perfect swim suit size—Diet? A word we don't want to hear? Better to say THINK and don't eat away your pretty
eat so you can maintain that pretty figure.

Begin with a Basic French Dressing, easy to make, easy to eat and easy on the figure.

Possible variations are infinite. One can either add a few special ingredients to the Basic French and come up with an entirely new salad dressing or one can add variety in the choice of fruits or vegetables.

Just think of them, lovely crisp greens are everywhere... all shades and varieties of lettuce, the deep forest green of spinach, the long, crisp sticks of celery, the shiny enameledlooking green of peppers.

And if these thoughts aren't enough to chase away the diet doldrums, think of the luscious fruits that go so well in salads; berries, cherries, peaches, melons of all sizes and shapes, plums, grapes and the all-year rounders—pineapple, avocados, oranges and grapefruit.

Variety can also be created in the way in which one prepares the vegetables and fruits for the salads. They can be chopped, sliced, diced, grated, juliened or sectioned; used in chunks, wedges, strips, flowerets or balls.

But shouldn't calorie counters be especially leery of salads and salad dressings? Quite right!

With this Basic French Dressing, the calorie count can be controlled with the use of oil.
(The real dieter might like to eliminate the oil all together.
Flavored vinegars, such as tarragon, cider and wine vinegars, have enough body to make a delightful dressing even when used without the oil.)

BASIC FRENCH DRESSING

1/2 cup Heinz Vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
Combine ingredients. Shake vigorously. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1 cup.

Note: For a tangier, lowercalorie dressing, use 1/4 cup Heinz Vinegar and 1/2 cup salad oil.

For vegetable salads, these two variations add only flavor, not calories, to the original Basic French Dressing. They are Roma Dressing and Basil French.

ROMA DRESSING

To 1 cup Basic French Dressing add 2 cloves garlic, split. Let stand overnight to blend flavors.
Makes 1 cup.

BASIL FRENCH DRESSING

To 1 cup Basic French Dressing, made with Heinz Wine Vinegar, add 1 tablespoon crushed basil leaves and 1 clove garlic, split. Makes 1 cup.

Fruit salads can take the lighter fresh flavor of Mint
French Dressing.

MINT FRENCH DRESSING

To 1 cup Basic French Dressing, made with Heinz Vinegar, add 1 or 2 tablespoons crushed mint leaves. Makes 1 cup.

You may find other members of your family not as enthused about dieting as you.

But they will be. Just try this Mint French Dressing over a Garden Fruit Salad.

GARDEN FRUIT SALAD

4 cups salad greens, torn into bite-size pieces (lettuce, spin-ach)

1 seedless grapefruit, peeled, sectioned

2 salad oranges, peeled,
sectioned

1 red-skinned apple, diced

1/4 pound Tokay grapes, halved, seeded (1/4 cup)

1 small avocado, peeled, diced

1 banana, sliced

Mint French Dressing

Combine salad ingredients;

chill thoroughly. Before serving, toss with sufficient dressing to coat greens and fruit. Serve remaining dressing in bowl. Makes

1 1/4 quarts (5-6 servings).

COORDINATE ACCESSORIES WITH HOME FURNISHINGS

Do you choose accessories for your home with the same care you choose accessories for your clothing? Just as your clothing accessories are used to tie together and complete the outfit you are wearing, accessories for the home add the finishing touch that gives distinction to your furnishings. They make your room truly your own.

You are the only one who can select the accessories for your room to give it the mood you want to create. You probably have many objects which have been given to you, or which you have bought. Some may fit into your decor—some may have no purpose in your room.

There are certain questions you should ask yourself about each thing you use. If it has no real purpose, put it away—or give it away—it may be just what someone else needs.

Ask the same questions you ask about the necklace you buy for a new dress. Do you like it? Do you need it or does it tend to give a cluttered look? Does this pick up the color in the room?
Is it in scale with other furnishings?

Lamps are perhaps the most important accessory for they serve a dual purpose. They must give the quantity and quality of light you need, and the lines of the base and shade should be in proportion with each other. The lamp itself should be in scale with the furniture with which it's used. The combined height of the table and lamp should be such that it furnishes light where it is needed.

Pictures and wall hangings can be the keynote for your entire room. They can help you point up the colors and theme of your room. You'll find that if you keep these in proportion to the space in which they're hung, and in proportion to the size of the room, they will give more satisfaction. They should always be hung at eye level with no visible wires and hangers.

Magazines and books may add just the color or interest you need. Plants and flowers can be very effective if selected carefully.
Don't use plants just because you have them—they must serve a purpose, have pleasing proportion and shape, and the color should enhance the overall color pattern.

Most of all, be yourself! Don't just copy others—look around to see what you have that you can use to add this touch. It may be an old stone jar in which you put some leaves or greens. It may be a wooden bowl you can fill with fruit, or a colored glass vase of good design that picks up the color you need. But whatever you use, give it the test of good design and consider shape, scale, proportion, color, and texture.

Have a nice Week-End Everybody!

OCEAN HIWAY ASSN. IN NEW LOCATION

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Ocean Hiway Association moves into expanded office facilities this week in the Cavalier Building at 2008 Atlantic Avenue in Virginia Beach. Executive Director Fred Brinkman announced.

Association activities at the former headquarters in Wilmington, Del. are being phased out this summer under the consolidation plan that brings all administrative activities of the 30-year-old non-profit organization to Virginia Beach.

As a part of the recently adopted expanded program, a Virginia-based headquarters was agreed on as a central location in the north-south Ocean Hiway network.

Through the cooperation of the City of Virginia Beach, the Ocean Hiway Association's temporary Virginia office was located at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center for the past year.

In its new location, the Association will occupy rooms 105 - 108 on the second floor of the Cavalier Building. Future plans call for the establishment of an Ocean Hiway information office on U.S. 13 in the Virginia Beach-Norfolk area.

A number of extra benefits will come to Virginia and Virginia Beach as a result of the Association's move to this area.

The Association's Virginia Beach address will appear on one million Ocean Hiway Map Folders and 500,000 Motorists Guides that will be distributed during the 1965-66 year. Other printed materials, including envelopes, letterheads and special folders, will all carry the Virginia address.

The Virginia Beach postmark will be carried on almost 100,000 pieces of outgoing Ocean Hiway mail during 1965-66, based on the Association's postal activity of the past year and current plans for expansion. Outgoing mail during 1964-65, most of which was sent from Delaware, included 62,202 mailings to individuals who responded to advertising and promotion, approximately 7,000 bulk mailings and other contacts with travel bureaus and auto clubs, and approximately 14,000 mailings to members and others within the Ocean Hiway area.

Sidney S. Kellam, Virginia Beach businessman and civic leader, is the Association's 1965-66 President.

'SOUND OF MUSIC' PLEASURES

THEATRE REVIEW

One of the nicest stories about one of the nicest families comes to life in "The Sound of Music" now playing at the Summer Sands Playhouse, 19th Street and Arctic Avenue, through July 11.

Virginia Beach's only tent-theater-in-the-round held its premier opening last Thursday evening to a small but appreciative audience of "first nighters". No finer musical could have been chosen to whet the appetite for the better cultural entertainment fare.

The performers were equal to their material and seemingly enjoyed lending their voices to the lovely Rodgers and Hammerstein melodies. "The Sound of Music" is the story of the Trapp Family Singers and of how they became exactly that.

It begins in the Nonnberg Abbey in Austria early in 1938 where the nuns are concerned about Maria Rainer, the postulant, whom they feel is not ready for the cloistered life. In the part of Maria is Faye MacKinnon. Mary Jane Udey is the Mother Abbess who understands Maria's joy for living, and she sends her back into the world to the home of Captain Georg Von Trapp (John Chester) to be the governess to his seven motherless children. The children are charmingly portrayed by Mary Jo Kellam (Lied), Greg Bancroft (Friedrich), Gail Whitaker (Louisa), Stuart Manore (Kurt), Elizabeth Gress (Brigitte), Lynne Jarrett (Maria), and Leslie Jarrett (Gretl).

Enchanted by Maria's unexpected warmth and unorthodox method of caring for them, they fall in love with her... as does their father after the obstacle of Elsa Schraeder (played by Jane Garrison), a rich widow, planning on becoming his wife, is overcome.

Their escape from Nazi-held Austria is unwittingly aided by Max DeWeller, a free-loading bookie agent, adeptly characterized by Danny Gunn, who has them appear at the concert hall. After singing for the festival, they flee and hide in the garden of the Abbey and are allowed to go unchallenged even when discovered by Liesl's beau, Rolf Gruber, (Frank Martorano) who had joined with the Nazi searching party.

It would be difficult to give star billing to any one in particular as each player sang and acted with unusually professional finesse, but perhaps the shy little blonde pig-tailed Leslie Jarrett generated the most audience appeal the most. Doesn't it always?

Other fine members of the cast playing supporting roles were Theresa Worral as Sister Berthe, Peggie MacArthur as Sister Margaretta, Virginia Opalio as Sister Sophia, John MacArthur as Franz, the butler; Claire Roy as Frau Schmidt, the housekeeper; Charlie Warburton as Herr Zeller, James Stamos as Admiral VonSchreiber; Kay Gore, Dee Bancroft, and Betty Hewitt as the Nuns; and Bill Hanlon and Gerald Keefe, the storm troopers.

A word of praise for the speedy scene changers whose running activities in the dark were almost as fascinating as the musical production itself.

"The Sound of Music" was produced by John Chester and directed by Anne Pennington. Musical director was Walton Smith; choreography by Don Gillooly. It is highly recommended as a musical treat and fine family entertainment.

LOTUS HISTORY INTERESTING

by Mrs. Cecil Henderson Reed
Virginia Beach is not only rich in its heritage of being the beginning of the new world, but it is rich in flora rarely to be found elsewhere.

The last substantial growth of native American Lotus (Nelumbo lutea) which does not grow naturally in any other country in the world, flourishes in great profusion, growing in Tabernacle Creek, in Virginia Beach, a natural water garden that requires no labor. It is protected by the marshy area which surrounds it by poisonous snakes (cotton mouth water moccasins) which are often seen swimming in the water. The garden is edged with beautiful white water-lilies floating on the surface of the stream for more than a mile on the north east end of the garden toward Little Bay. Here, too, cypress trees send up their curious shaped knees, swamp malow, both pink and white, violet blue pickerill (Ponederia cordata) blue as the summer skies, grasses, brown cattails, graceful tall ostrich ferns and other marsh-loving plants. It is a natural wild habitat. In the summer the great American Bald Eagle, Osprey, and Red-wing black birds nest along its shores. In the winter wild duck, geese, and aquatic birds feed here.

During late July the earth lifts up her power in a spectacular display of bloom that rivals the sun, creating a path of pale golden loveliness more than three miles in length on a sea of great round ribbed, blue green leaves eighteen to twenty-four inches in diameter. These great leaves are smooth above and hairy beneath. The hairy surface acts as an absorbent to protect the leaves from clogging with vapors that arise from the water beneath; they look as if they were specially arranged to make the bud and flower more fragile, more lovely. There are thousands of many petaled pale golden blossoms six to ten inches wide filling the air with a faint sweet fragrance, and both leaf and flower are born on individual stems standing high above the water. The flower opens in the morning, and closes when the shadows begin to lengthen in the afternoon, lasting about four or five days. This period in the afternoon is nature's way of protecting the flower from the heat of the afternoon sun.

The flowers which are female when they expand far enough for a pollen laden guest to crawl into, are afterwards male, securing cross fertilization just as the yellow pond lily does; only the small bees must content themselves here with pollen.

The flat top seed pods are perforated at the flat summit like a giant pepper shaker with large nut like seeds showing at the perforations, ready to be picked out by aquatic birds and distributed by them in their wanderings.

The germination of the ripened seeds is of a most peculiar nature. When first shed, the seeds sink to the bottom of the water but after a few hours they float to the top again, and remain for about half a day while sprouting goes on; then they sink again. The twelve hours floating period gives them a chance to drift into new areas to colonize. The seeds in their immature half ripe condition are delicious either raw or cooked. In flavor they are much like a chestnut.

The ripe seeds have to be thoroughly parched to loosen their inner kernel, then after crushing and winnowing to dispose of the loosened hard shells they may again be parched and eaten dry, baked or boiled.

The young leafstalks gathered in the early summer are said to form a palatable pot herb. The very long rootstocks often become fifty feet, in length, bear tuberous enlargements which become filled in the Autumn with starch. These tubers when baked are said to have a pleasant mealy quality suggestive of the sweet potato.

To preserve them for winter use they must be dried—being first peeled, and cut into pieces about an inch long.

The Lotus has always been used as an Indian food and predates the coming of white man to this country.

In 1607 when the first permanent English colonists landed at Cape Henry, the native wild yellow lotus was found growing in water gardens tended by the Indians—while many hunting tribes carried on an agriculture of greater or less complexity, all relied to some extent upon wild plants for their vegetable fare.

The native American Lotus was among the few aquatic plants cultivated by the Indians. In lakes and still streams of Virginia, Tennessee, and Cumberland Rivers, it was abundant in the tributaries of the Mississippi. It was carried northward to Ontario, eastward to New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, established westerly along the Plate and Missouri Rivers, and in the shallow ponds of Eastern Nebraska.

This lovely flower has been destroyed by trampling of cattle in the west and by dredging in ponds, lakes, and streams of the Southeastern States because it interfered with navigation and fishing.

The Cape Henry Woman's Club after considerable research and verification through correspondence with known authorities found that the colony of lotus growing in Tabernacle Creek was the last substantial growth of lotus in the world and that rapidly expanding subdivisions and housing projects were destroying every vestige of primitive and unspoiled nature in the country.

They decided to establish permanent legal protection for this lovely wild flower as a project. Following this decision, members of the Fine Arts Department met in an outdoor Boxwood Chapel in Princess Anne County for a service of dedication to the work.

Four members called on the late Mr. Raymond V. Long, Director, Virginia Department of Conservation and Development, Richmond, Virginia. After hearing the story of the Lotus and the plans of the Cape Henry Woman's Club for the proposed conservation and a Lotus Festival, Mr. Long submitted the plans to the Board of Directors. They gave their endorsement by letter dated October 12, 1954.

The Lotus Festival is an annual event sponsored by the Cape Henry Woman's Club in cooperation with the Virginia Department of Conservation and Development to bring to the attention of all flower lovers the natural treasure of Lotus in the City of Virginia Beach, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the nation as a whole.

Not only has the native American Lotus (Nelumbo lutea) been added to the conservation list but it is being propagated in other localities and perpetuated in a complete specimen preserved in three dimensions to show its natural habit housed in a cypress shadow box and added to the John Clayton Collection of early colonial flora of Virginia taken in the early Seventeenth Century, now housed in the British Museum, London, England, which contains more classified data of the early flora of this region than is to be found in any other place.

Notes from Your Agricultural Agent

YOUNG PEACH TREES REQUIRE EXTREME CARE

If orchardists are going to get adequate profits from their peach trees, they must take great care with their initial plantings. Select a site well above the surrounding area, preferably on an east, northeast, or southeast slope. The soil should be well drained, of good fertility, and plowed deep; if it bore a cultivated crop the year before, all the better.

Consider your proposed market outlet in choosing varieties to plant. Actual planting distances will be determined by the varieties, soil, fertility, and cultural practices.

Order strong, one-year-old, three- to four-foot-tall peach trees with about one-half inch diameter trunks. Open the burlap and examine the roots and tops for winter injury, withered bark, or root damage. Look for peach tree borers on the roots.

If you're going to hold the trees in storage for short periods of time, place straw or sawdust over their roots and keep them at about 36 degrees. If you're going to store them for a longer period, choose some shaded spot and heel them in there. Be sure you put a good firm covering of soil over the roots; this helps prevent possible freeze damage.

I also suggest dipping the roots in DDT, just before planting, as a preventive against the peach borer. I recommend deep plowing and sub-soiling the tree rows.

Transport the trees to the field in a tank of water. Keep the roots covered with moist burlap bags after you remove the trees from the tanks. Never let those tender roots dry out. Prune only broken roots from the root system. Tamp the soil well and set the trees an inch deeper than they stood in the nursery.

Frequent fertilizing during March, April, and May is advised. I suggest one-quarter to one-half pound of a 16 to 20 percent fertilizer for each tree each month. Cultivate or use a chemical weed control in a four- to six-foot diameter around each tree.

Orchardists also should take adequate measures of control against such pests as oriental fruit moths, peach tree borers, and peach leaf curl.

Young peach trees can't be neglected if we expect them to perform to their full capacity.

ODC Summer Classes

by Douglas Arnold Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH — As Festus said to Paul, "Much learning hath made thee mad." This quotation could apply to the forty-six students—men and women, teachers, housewives, grandmothers, psychologists, and parents—who, for a variety of reasons, took the postgraduate course "Teaching the Gifted Child" at the Martha Washington Hotel. But the wise and down-to-earth instruction of the college professors and teachers made the class, Education 511, glad, not mad.

The instruction and lectures were given by Dr. Milton Gold, Dr. S. Krause, Dr. Carl C. Garison, and Dr. Franklin Ross Jones.

The three-week seminar began with Miss Louise Luford, pinch-hitting for Frank Cox, Supt. of Virginia Beach Schools; Dr. Ruth Harrell, psychologist at Old Dominion College; and Dr. Jones welcoming professors and students and giving an overall view of the subject matter at a reception held at the Methodist Church on 18th street.

This writer took only the afternoon class for credits, but others took both classes. The morning classes were entitled "Teaching the Retarded Child." All classes were held in the dining room of the hotel. The library was under the direction of Mrs. E. T. Penzold, Jr., teacher at Norfolk Academy.

The highlight of the week was the understanding and gentle handling of two superior children by Dr. Harrell demonstrating the "Benet Achievement Tests." Dana Ballard, 10, and Burnett Thompson, 13, proved highly gifted with no sign of nervousness, upset stomach, nor tears. A piano concerto was presented by Burnett, which was masterfully performed and greatly appreciated by the group and guests in the lobby.

What did we learn? Plenty. Academically, we tell all in our term paper and exams which will be graded. Educationally, we made new friends and contacts, and hold the realization that we have a golden opportunity of learning more of our teaching profession which is a challenge and a sacred trust, for it is being a part of educating everyone upon which depends the future of America.

ON HEART BOARD

VIRGINIA BEACH — William M. Campbell of Virginia Beach was one of 14 men from all over the state elected to serve on the board of directors of the Virginia Heart Association.

The elections took place recently at the association's annual meeting in Roanoke.

Contract To Norfolk Firm

LONDON BRIDGE — Postmaster General John A. Gronowski has announced that a contract has been awarded to Fine & Salzberg, Inc. of Norfolk, to build the new post office at London Bridge and lease it to the Post Office Department.

The announcement of the award to the successful bidder advances the new building closer to the construction stage. "When fully operational," the Postmaster General said, "the additional space and more modern equipment will, in the long run, more than offset the extra cost involved in producing more efficient handling of the mail, in accordance with President Johnson's directive to provide the best possible postal service at the least possible cost."

We are also constantly seeking to develop new postal techniques and new ideas, such as ZIP Code, to help process the mail more efficiently and economically. The new building at Great Neck Road in London Bridge Park will represent $81,000 Estimated Construction Cost by the successful bidder. It will be leased to the Department for ten years with renewal options, at an annual rental of $6,499 for the basic term.

The new one story building will be air conditioned. It will have an interior space of 4,075 square feet, compared with a total of 800 square feet for the existing building. The area for parking and movement of postal vehicles totals 17,934 square feet.

The post office is expected to be completed six months after the plans are approved.

Mr. Gronowski explained that the Department's capital investment is limited substantially to postal equipment. The building will remain under private ownership, with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

CONVENTION SET

VIRGINIA BEACH — There will be fifteen district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in the United States this summer. Earl H. Jacobs, Jr., presiding minister of the Virginia Beach Congregation, stated recently.

"These conventions are sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York," he added.

Jacobs said the members of the Virginia Beach Congregation would be attending the Convention at Yankee Stadium in New York City, August 24-29th. The expected attendance is 50,000.

The assembly in New York will run for six full days. Sessions will open at two o'clock on August 24 with the chairman's talk on the appropriate theme, "God's Word Keeps Your Faith Alive."

ART SHOW OPENS AMID PAGEANTRY

VIRGINIA BEACH — An air of pageantry will prevail at the 10th Annual Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show when it opens this morning on one of the largest assemblages of artists and their works ever before presented in the state.

The 24-piece School of Music Band from Little Creek, under the direction of Chief Musician B. A. Waltrip, will contribute to the festivities by offering a lively concert from opening time at 10 a.m. to noon. The band will be stationed at 14th Street.

HOLDUP SUSPECTS SOUGHT

ARAGONA — Police are looking for a young man and woman believed to have robbed the Arlington Finance Corp. office in Arlington on 1001 in cash Monday afternoon.

Police described the man as about 30 years of age, six feet tall, weighing about 160 pounds, tan complexion, hairline mustache and wearing a green business suit, dark straw hat and wrap-around sunglasses.

The woman, believed to have assisted in the getaway, was described as about 30 years of age, weighing about 140 pounds, brown hair fixed in a bun, wearing a white skirt, blue and red candy-striped blouse and carrying sunglasses and a purse.

Police said the men entered the office about 4:15 p.m., pretended to have an appointment, but pulled a blue steel automatic from under his coat and ordered cashier Ann McElroy to empty the bills from the cash drawer into a manila envelope he carried under his arm.

He ordered the cashier and two male employees to lie on the floor and remain there for five minutes. He was last seen running east in the shopping center.

Police said the man was seen a few minutes earlier in a nearby drug store with a woman companion and believe that she may have driven the getaway car.

Anyone who may have seen the couple or possibly the car should contact Detective Sgts. A. E. Smith and C. W. Simmons, investigating officers.

Headquarters for the entire operation will be located in the gaily striped tent at 13th Street, home base for the numerous volunteer workers of the Virginia Beach Art Association.

Association members will be kept busy during the five days of the show, running errands, assisting in sales, answering questions, giving directions, baby-sitting, with paintings and numerous other services and duties.

The Association will have its 1966 art calendars on sale during the show. Programs giving information on the artists and their locations along the boardwalk will also be available. Both items may be purchased at the tent or from hostesses.

Prizes in this year's show will hit an all-time high of $2,400 with the king-sized portion of $1,000 going to the best-in-show winner.

Each artist will self-judge his own works prior to the official judging, selecting only one piece for his representative entry in the competition to be held Saturday morning at Star of the Sea Catholic Church Recreation Hall.

Two nationally known art authorities will select the final winners. They will be J. Carter Brown, assistant director of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and Gunderm Vigdel, head of the Museum of the Atlanta Art Association, Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Ann Penington, president of the Art Association, said "show officials hope the winners will be announced early Saturday afternoon 'but with this many artists, it's impossible to predict what time the judging will be completed.'"

A number of special features have been scheduled in connection with the show's 10th anniversary. Many of the previous best-in-show winners will again exhibit and will be recognized by the Association's new, turquoise and white Distinguished Honors flag which will fly above their locations.

Another highlight will be a composite painting to be developed throughout the show with each of the exhibiting artists adding their own bits of color and design.

All area teen-agers are invited to hear his inspiring message.

Burial Fund Falls Prey To Thievery

by Ruby Jean Phillips

Somewhere in Virginia Beach someone has $2,050 in stolen money. The possessor of this money is aware that it was taken from the inside pocket of a coat hanging in the men's room at the local bus station. But there are other aspects of the theft of which the person is unaware. Perhaps if he knew the situation, that money would lay heavy in his hands.

Is the thief a young man, a capable man? His victim is 55 years of age, badly crippled with arthritis. Is the thief able to earn a living? His victim is quite feeble and can hardly walk; the money was his lifetime savings. Does the thief plan to use the money to buy a car, clothes, a few luxuries? His victim had saved the money for his burial, hoping it would grant his last wish—that he be buried in his home cemetery several thousand miles away.

Time is precious to the victim in this tragedy. So precious, in fact, that he has written the Virginia Beach Police Department asking their assistance—not necessarily in apprehending the thief, but in publishing the fact that he desperately needs at least a portion of the money for his burial and that he hopes the thief might return a part of it through the mail.

"If the party who took it has any heart of respect for a poor old man," the victim wrote, "I think he would at least be enough of a human to send me a part of the money, which was all in $100 bills, except three $50 bills, if he could send it without trouble or exposure to himself."

The responsibility of the Police Department is, of course, in bringing to justice those persons who violate the law. But, as compassionate human beings, the officers have been deeply touched by the plight of this elderly victim. The theft occurred, not through negligence, but because the man had shed his coat after becoming extremely ill through the grueling bus trip from Maine to Virginia Beach. The money was pinned to the inside of his coat pocket. When the man had recovered and reached for the coat, the money was gone. And so were his hopes of being buried in the family plot in Iowa. In a matter of minutes, the world crashed upon the frail shoulders of the 55-year-old victim.

Despite the tragedy that has befallen him, the man still has enough faith in his fellowman to believe that the thief's principles and conscience will prompt him to return part of the money once he learns of the circumstances. "I know this is like a needle in a stack of hay and I am hanging on to a straw," he wrote, "but if the individual knew the position it put me in he might have a little mercy and divide at least."

Police officers have little cause to believe that the thief has enough conscience to return part of the money directly to his victim. But they, too, are grasping at straws in hopes that a published plea might bring results. They are plagued by the pathetic letter in which the man says he is so discouraged and asks them to "please do something, if possible. This is only a straw, but I am still hanging on."

Somewhere in this large city someone is secretly making plans for that $2,050. Can such plans ever be enjoyed if they deprive an 55-year-old man of his wish, his long-earned right, to be laid to rest beside other members of his family? If this person has enough compassion for his victim to return—without risk—a portion of the money, it may be sent directly to: Mr. Carl Brown, 59 Pleasant Street, Richmond, Maine 04357.

Juvenile Judge In Satisfactory Condition Following Collision

VIRGINIA BEACH — Juvenile Judge L. Travis Branch is reported in "Satisfactory" condition at Norfolk General Hospital where he is recovering from injuries received in a 2-car collision on Laskin Road Thursday night during a heavy rainstorm.

Police said that Branch's car struck a car driven by Don Walker, Jr., 17, of 728 North Alanton Drive, after Korte's vehicle ran through a puddle and skidded across the road into the path of Branch's car.

The accident took place about 8:10 p.m. near the Professional Building on Laskin Road. Korte was headed west in the left lane and Branch was traveling east in the right hand lane, police said.

Officer W. R. Phillips said that when Korte ran through the puddle during the heavy rain the car began "to fishtail" and when the youth attempted to turn into the direction of the skid, the car bolted across the road into the east-bound lane.

Branch's small compact car, valued at $1,800, was declared a total loss. There was about $500 damage to the other vehicle.

The 34-year-old judge reportedly suffered a broken ankle and dislocated leg, chest bruises and internal injuries and facial lacerations. He was still reported under intensive care at the hospital Monday.

Three From Beach Hurt In Norfolk

VIRGINIA BEACH — Three Virginia Beach residents were injured in two separate traffic mishaps that occurred Tuesday morning in Norfolk.

William R. White, 48, of 601 Reynolds Drive, reportedly suffered lacerations of the head and possible internal injuries when his motorcycle struck a brick wall.

Douglas R. Cramer, 21, and his wife, Phyllis A. Cramer, 22, were injured when their car was struck at the intersection of Princess Anne Road and Llewellyn Avenue by a car driven by Gay A. Corn, 21, of Norfolk.

Miss Corn was issued a summons by Norfolk Police for failure to yield and with having no drivers permit.

Mrs. Cramer reportedly suffered undetermined head injuries and her husband had lacerations of the forehead and undetermined neck and back injuries. Both were treated at Norfolk General Hospital and later transferred to Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

White was also taken to Norfolk General where he was admitted. According to reports, White ran his motorcycle into a brick wall on the Colonial Chevrolet parking lot. He is employed by the firm as a fender and body man.

BEACH VOTERS FAIL BURLAGE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Delegate William P. Kellam, after capturing a seat in Tuesday's election in the State Senate from the Third District, said Wednesday after his victory, "I am deeply grateful for the confidence expressed in me by the voters of Virginia Beach, Portsmouth and Chesapeake."

Taking second place in the voting, Kellam and Del. William B. Hodges built up large leads in Virginia Beach and Portsmouth.

"As I stated at the beginning of this campaign," Kellam stated, "I believe in close cooperation among the political subdivisions, and I will make every effort to bring this about."

"I congratulate Mr. Hodges and Mr. Spang on their nominations in the Primary." He expressed appreciation to Sen. Gordon F. Marsh for the "high type of campaign he conducted."

Kellam also thanked "all those who assisted me and supported me in this campaign. It is my hope that I will prove myself worthy of their support and confidence."

"Now that the Primary is over, it is my hope that all Democrats will unite and work for the election of the nominees in November."

"It was late in the election before Kellam and Hodges could be sure of their victory, when 70 of the district's 71 precincts had been tabulated."

Before that point, the two voters were threatened by Marsh's votes which would in heavily favor his supporters in Chesapeake.

The unofficial tally Wednesday morning was:

Kellam, 13,518; Hodges, 11,007; Spang, 11,078; Marsh, 11,011; L. Charles Burlage, 10,582.

The voting precincts outside their hometowns at Virginia Beach decided the contest between Marsh and Hodges.

The latter ran in conjunction with Kellam. Burlage polled only 2,815 votes in Virginia Beach. Marsh and Burlage got more votes in Portsmouth than Kellam and Hodges.

Marsh faced opposition from the Constitutional, a factional group of the Chesapeake Democrats who ran Hodges against him. The other faction is the Progressives, who are aligned with political and civic groups in both South Norfolk and the old Norfolk County area of the city that recently elected a three-man ticket to the City Council.

Burlage hurried charges of bias against the Kellam organization at Virginia Beach and conducted a strong campaign throughout the district.

In the November general election the three Democratic candidates will face opposition from Edgar S. Everhart of Chesapeake, Republican senatorial candidate selected at the tri-city GOP convention Tuesday night.

Making his first try for public office, Everhart is president of the Associated Naval Architects, Inc., a West Norfolk boatbuilding company.

House Mover Charged With Moving Garage

BLACKWATER — The John Matyko, 48, of Blackwater, has been charged with grand larceny in the theft of a garage. That's right, a garage. An entire garage. It seems this garage was standing on a right-of-way for the Virginia Beach Toll Road and, like other buildings in the area, was sold at public auction.

The garage was purchased by A. E. Fustons of Indian River Road, but when Fustons went to move the structure from its Waverly Drive location, it was gone. Someone had already moved it.

Detective G. F. Roberts was assigned to the case and upon his investigation Matyko was taken into custody Sunday about 7:30 p.m. by Officer L. L. Thompson. Matyko is in the house moving business, police said.

Hospital Now Completely Equipped—It Has Patients

The new General Hospital of Virginia Beach has appeared ready and waiting ever since its dedication three weeks ago but it wasn't until Monday that it was actually ready for what it was waiting for—the patients. The move from the old hospital to the new went without a hitch and by noon, about two hours after the changeover started, 34 patients were safely bedded down in the sparkling new air-conditioned building. The staff, Hospital Auxiliary members, volunteer firemen and police officers joined efforts in making the transition. Hospital Board President Hunter Phelan and other officials were also on the scene to give a helping hand. When dark came the lights illuminated the building to make it appear as a beacon to the sick and afflicted—long-awaited sight for the citizens of Virginia Beach. (Bohn photos)

Do A Dilly Soup And Burger Sandwich Meal

Who's to fight the popularity of the burger? Nobody. But here's a new sandwich idea—with the pickle in the middle—that will add a festive note to any impromptu brunch, luncheon or supper party:

PICKLE BURGER

(Makes 4)

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
- Dill pickles

Combine beef, cheese, and grated onion. Form into 8 thin patties. Put sliced dill pickle between two patties. Broil 5 minutes on each side. Serve on half a burger bun. Garnish with radish cup filled with mustard (the mustard-on-the-top).

This sandwich needs only hot soup and ice cold Coca-Cola to complete a perfectly balanced meal. But be a little creative with the soup.

DILLY SOUP

(Serves 4)

- 1 can pea soup
- 1 can (16-1/2 ounces) beef
- 1/4 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/4 cup water
- Onion, heat and serve.

Boil Cokes as both the beverage and sweet for this meal and two total containers made of foil. To make petals simply draw a circle three times as large as bottom of a bottle of Coke. Mark off four points and sketch petals. Cut around petals and place bottle in center. Decorate cooler for extra bottles in the same manner.

Two Arrested In Burglary Of Food Store

VIRGINIA BEACH — An adult and a juvenile were arrested early Tuesday morning in connection with the break-in of Seaside Market on 23rd Street.

Both Paul Edward Anderson Jr., 20, of 1802 Bradford Road, and his 17-year-old companion, who police said resides on Cullen Road in Lake View Park, have been charged with burglary.

Although the youth reside in other areas of the city, they had rented a room at 205 1/2 25th Street for the summer months and it was there that they were taken into custody about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Arresting officers were Detective Sgt. A. E. Smith and Detectives E. L. Knowles and W. L. Grant.

Their arrest came less than 24 hours after the break-in was discovered. Reported missing were $81 worth of meats, $26 worth of champagne, 20 cartons of cigarettes valued at over $32 and about $50 in currency.

Police said a portion of the merchandise was recovered when Anderson and the youth were taken into custody.

Party Line BY OLGA EDWARDS

Miss Margaret Butt of Whitehorse Road is introduced in the receiving line to Rear Admiral E. R. Crawford, Commander Amphibious Squadron Two.

Friday night at Rockwell Hall, versatile building of the Amphibious Base that converts from a sports arena to a ball room in a matter of hours, became a dream come true to most young women who were fortunate enough to attend the Midshipman Ball.

Soft lights and dreamy music for over 700 couples who attended the 1965 NROTC Midshipman Ball surely added the finishing touches for these lovely young ladies. I am sure that many an hour was spent deciding on gowns to wear, hairdos and finally the proper makeup.

In the receiving lines were: Vice Admiral and Mrs. C. K. Duncan, Brigadier General and Mrs. G. D. Gayle, Rear Admiral F. W. Vancoy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. E. R. Crawford and Rear Admiral and Mrs. R. G. Anderson, Captain and Mrs. N. P. Watkins, commanding officer of the Amphibious Base and his wife headed the list of hosts and hostesses for the evening.

Dancing lasted from 8 until 12 p.m., and at times during the dancing of the Waltz, Juke or twist, you felt as if the building occasionally rocked.

Those seen during the evening were: Miss Elizabeth Taylor, Midshipman John Vannatta, Miss Nancy Holland, Midshipman Gordon Elbert, Captain H. H. deLaurcal, Brigadier General Gordon D. Gayle and Mrs. Gordon D. Gayle, Miss Mary Joy, Midshipman Paul Standte, Miss Kathy Bass, Midshipman Mike Nolte and Miss Margaret Butt.

Saturday night was really an ideal night for the Sidewalk Cafe at the Capes. For those who have never been to the Capes, the Sidewalk Cafe is very much on the order of the Cavalier Beach & Cabana Club for outside dancing.

The buffet table was really outstanding. The decorations were sea shells designed out of ice. Jim Carroll, who works at the Capes, surely deserves congratulations on a job well done.

Of course the food was everything your heart desired: steamship round (roast beef), ham, turkey, red snappers, shrimp, chop suey, fried rice, egg roll, potato salad, tuna salad, tossed salad, salmon mousse. In fact it was a feast for the gods and I am on a diet. Well, I wasn't hungry anyway.

Frank Sorrell and his band are now at the Capes and will be until the 15th of July—a wonderful band for any type of dancing. Al Denhamis and his band will follow Frank Sorrell.

Moving around the club, those seen were: Commander and Mrs. Fred Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shook, Ted Carr, Joanne Hamill, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Malbon, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Burton, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Flacomia, Grayson Whitehurst, Linda Ford, Mrs. W. H. Brown, Randy Carter, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Snow, Henry Folles, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Welton, Mr. and Mrs. George Crump, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wood and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George Aldridge, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Rattle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom B. Rave Reynolds who were celebrating their 22nd wedding anniversary.

I left the Capes, went to the American Legion Club but only a few people were there at 11 p.m. Jimmie Fox, who runs the club now, told me the people leave the other clubs on the beach, then come by there, which is usually late. Some week-end when I feel full of pep, I shall try to stay awake long enough to cover the Legion.

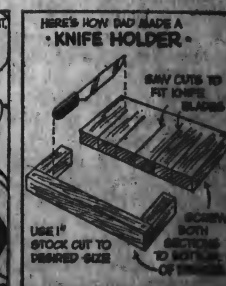

Miss Kathy Bass of Pinetree Drive and Midshipman Mike Nolte of Cornell University.

Miss Mary Joy of Plantation Road and Midshipman Paul Standte of the University of Mississippi.

Wash Woods - The Prophet

Wash Woods precinct of Virginia Beach has for many years been the predictor of the outcome of elections in national, state and local elections. It's few voters always cast their ballots early in the morning, before many people, except for the poll workers, even get out of bed. They are apparently people of one mind and purpose, because they invariably all cast their votes for the same candidate or candidates. And more remarkably they are invariably correct in their choice, since, when all the votes are in, they have voted for the winner or winners. Because of this outstanding record, political buffs turn up at the remote community at the crack of dawn to see how Wash Woods has voted. Newspapers, radio and television stations, and even the wire services are usually there too. Wash Woods has proved to be as correct in its early predictions as the most complex computers used for the same purpose.

And so, of course, we were most interested to find out the returns from Wash Woods in the Democratic Primary. Shortly after the polls opened on Tuesday, Wash Woods had voted and made its prediction. All of the precinct's ten votes had been given to Bill Kellam, Bill Hodges and Bill Spong as the Democratic nominees from the newly created Third Senatorial District of the State of Virginia. From that time until all the votes were finally in from the three cities of Chesapeake, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach, we were not even worried. We knew the outcome. Wash Woods had told us. We moved confidently through the day, even somewhat smugly, that we already knew the winners, long before the polls closed and the tiresome job of counting ballots began.

Wash Woods had turned out en masse to vote. Unfortunately this was not true elsewhere. Never has any vote been large enough to please us, but we were slightly disappointed that more votes were not cast in this Primary. But, at least, we have always had confidence in the electorate, knowing that they would pick the best three men from the five candidates. We believe they did, even though they were not quite as unanimous as Wash Woods.

We congratulate the winners, and look forward to their representing our District in the State Senate. They are dedicated men, intent upon giving us the best State Government possible. We are proud to number them among our friends. And we wish them well in Richmond.

We are particularly glad that the electorate saw fit to choose one nominee from each of the three cities. We believe this is the best possible way that representative government can work successfully. And we are more especially glad that Virginia Beach is now on the road to having a State Senator of its very own. This is the first time this has been possible, and it took a reapportionment battle to make it possible.

Now we look ahead to the fall campaign and General Election. We have supported the candidacy of Bill Kellam in the Democratic Primary. We are glad he has won the nod from the voters. Now we would like to be one of the first to go on record as supporting Kellam this fall. Never is it too early to support, endorse and praise a man for whom we have the highest regard and in whom we have the greatest faith. We also support Bill Hodges and Bill Spong in the fall, since they are the Democratic nominees, but we wish to make it clear how we feel about our friend, Bill Kellam.

This has been an interesting campaign. It has been hard fought, but someone always has to lose. We know now that the two losers will do their best to aid the election in the fall of the winners, the nominees of their own Democratic Party.

This Is A Noisy World

There is a growing interest in the "noise problem" in the world today, that ranks right along with the interest in air and water pollution. The question has even been raised by leading scientists and physicians concerning noise as a public health problem.

If this is the case, where are we headed? It has been said that if the noise level continues to rise in the next forty years as it has in the last forty, the decibel rating will be unbearable to the human ear. Two of the greatest noisemakers that we know today are the automobile and the motorcycle. In a way, it is not the fault of the individual vehicle. It is the fault of the ever increasing number of such vehicles on our roads. The single automobile or motorcycle is not necessarily loud, with the possible exception of one that tears down your street in the wee hours of the morning. But basically, automobiles and motorcycles are built to run as quietly as possible.

Just the other evening, we sat in front of our own home which is a full two miles from the nearest thoroughfare. We kept very still, in order to hear all the sounds available. We could hear conversations, automobiles on distant roads, crickets clicking, trees rustling and far away airplanes. It set up a collective hum which broke the stillness. A few minutes later a couple of cars took off and it was, of course, enough to drown out all other sounds. Then we drove to Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center and parked near Virginia Beach Boulevard. The noise level there was almost unbelievable as trucks, automobiles, motorcycles, the sound of brakes set up a hum that would register at least forty per cent on a decibel meter.

The sounds of any metropolitan area are on the increase with more and more means of transportation along with more people talking and more machinery in use. Even the old pleasant countryside is not as quiet as it used to be with all the automobiles passing through and the sound of farm machinery and distant airplanes.

We do not know what can be done about this problem, or if anything can be done. But with the increasing suspicion that noise can be a health problem, we hope somebody has some suggestions. Statistics that have been released recently state that seventy-five per cent of all Americans are suffering from some sort of mental illness (in varying degrees), and there is a move afoot to link this with the noise problem.

We begin to understand the noise level business quite well. As we write this, the office is certainly less than quiet. We can hear the hum of the air conditioner, two other typewriters, a printing press, the ring of a telephone, and two reporters talking, to say nothing of the noise of traffic from Pacific Avenue. We will not say it is upsetting us completely, but we are considering a soundproof office with a noiseless typewriter.

JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED!

A Rose By Any Other Name

Several thousand persons have signed two separate petitions that have now been presented to the School Board of the City of Virginia Beach. The petitions which were circulated separately are seeking to influence the Board on the naming of the new high school to be constructed at Alanton on First Colonial Road.

One group is seeking to name it simply Virginia Beach High School, while at the same time making the old Virginia Beach High School a junior high with a new name. The other group is seeking to name the new school, to be completed in the fall of next year, Robin H. Owen High School after the man who was for many years principal of Oceana High School and later an Assistant Superintendent of Schools, supervising secondary education.

A real controversy has developed over the naming, and to our best knowledge, it has not been resolved. It began quite a while ago. In the latter part of 1963, Virginia Beach City Council adopted a resolution, introduced by Mr. Whitehurst and seconded by Mr. Darden and passed unanimously. The resolution had earlier been passed by the Princess Anne Ruritan Club. It sought to recognize R. H. Owen (affectionately known as "Pinky") for his work in the field of education in Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach, and asked that the next secondary school in Virginia Beach be named for Pinky Owen. The next secondary school was Bayside High School; thus the resolution was not heeded, and there are indications that it may never be.

We do not wish to pass judgment, but we do believe it would be a fine gesture and tribute to name a school for Mr. Owen, and that because his life was devoted to secondary education, the naming of a secondary school would be fitting. However, we would hope that if the School Board cannot see its way clear to name the new school for him, that all of those concerned will be satisfied to see a junior high or an elementary school named for R. H. Owen. We knew Pinky Owen well, and we believe it would be a magnificent gesture to name this or any other school for him. Precedent has already been set in naming schools for individuals. On the high school level, we have Cox High School and we have Kellam High School, but we fear real controversy over the naming of future schools, if this matter is not settled now for once and for all.

We absolutely do not favor the naming of the new school Virginia Beach High School. It seems to us that this would be an insult to all the other high schools in the city. It would sound like this one were the only Virginia Beach high school. This is not done elsewhere.

And the new school will not even be in Virginia Beach Borough. It is in Lynnhaven Borough. We can see no reason that the new school should be named for the city. In fact it seems somewhat ridiculous. We would much prefer to have it named for Pinky Owen, although we have some doubts there too.

Since the naming of the new facility has already caused a certain amount of controversy, we feel that it should be resolved soon. Perhaps even a compromise is necessary.

We repeat that we feel it would be a fine thing to name this school after Pinky Owen, but if sentiment is so strong against, another name should be found.

As a compromise, why not First Colonial High School?

The New Offspring

Today you are reading our NEW newspaper. Editorially it is the same. Where news is concerned, it is the same. The staff is the same. The dedication behind this publication is the same. Our promise to produce the very best weekly newspaper possible remains the same. Our vow to make this a Virginia Beach newspaper for and about the citizens of Virginia Beach remains the same. Even the name remains the same. But there the similarities stop.

With this edition we enter a new era, where the Virginia Beach Sun is concerned. The most obvious change is the reduction in size. This has not been an arbitrary change. It has been done to conform with other newspapers and to modernize our publication. We now feel that we have a better looking and more efficient newspaper.

In addition to the cutting down of the paper, we have added this week a new type face. It is a shade smaller and more condensed, which actually means we have room now for more news than before. The new type face is more up to date, and it is easier to read.

When you first looked at your copy of this edition, you no doubt were aware of another obvious change. We have a new nameplate. We feel that it is in keeping with the new and modern look we have endeavored to find.

We hope you approve of our latest changes. There will be more in the future. Perhaps later changes will be more subtle, but we shall continue our policy of building the Virginia Beach Sun into a newspaper worthy of our fine city.

So this edition is our new offspring. The changes have been made for you and for the betterment of this newspaper.

(Eleventh in a series on Communism to be published each week.)

(In the coming weeks this series will present quotations from the speeches and writings of prominent leaders, past and present, of the communist world.)

Communist regimes attack all religions, restrict the exercise of public worship, persecute religious faiths, harass, and in some cases dispose of, clergy, and teach atheism and anti-religious doctrine in the public school system. They vigorously discourage the practice of any religious faith. For a true picture of Communist religious suppression we shall examine what their leaders say and write.

ANTI-RELIGIOUS DOCTRINE: LENIN

"Every religious idea, every idea of god, even every flirtation with the idea of god, is utterly vile, vilest of all, is greeted even tolerantly (and often even favorably) by the democratic bourgeoisie—and for that very reason it is vilest of the most dangerous kind, 'contagion' of the most abominable kind. Millions of sin, filthy deeds, acts of violence and physical contagions are far more easily exposed by the crowd, and are therefore far less dangerous, than the subtle, spiritual ideas of a god decked out in the smartest 'ideological' costumes."

ANTI-RELIGIOUS DOCTRINE: KARL MARX

"He who has only found a reflexion of himself in the fantastic reality of heaven where he looked for a Superman, will no longer be willing to find only the semblance of himself, only the subhuman, where he seeks and ought to find his own reality . . ."

"RELIGIOUS misery is in one mouth the expression of real misery, and in another is a protestation against real misery. Religion is the moan of the oppressed creature, the sentiment of a heartless world, as it is the spirit of spiritless conditions. It is the opium of the people."

SOVIET PUBLICATION—SCIENCE AND RELIGION

"The pulpits of churches must not be used for political and other statements unconcerned with religion and in contradiction to the interests of the Soviet states."

"Members of the priesthood and sectarian preachers often infringe these requirements of the law. They do not confine themselves in their sermons to the treatment of religious questions but refer to the most diverse subjects of a political character, even THE UPBRINGING AND EDUCATION OF CHILDREN . . ."

Every religion, every church, every sect is harmful to the cause of building communism and the ideological war must be directed against any form of religion in general . . ."

'ITCH' FULL OF SORES

THEATRE REVIEW

The performances of the two main characters in Tuesday night's Summer Sands Playhouse production of "The Seven Year Itch" flawed what might have been satisfactory theater.

Speaking, however, from general audience reaction, nothing much was amiss. The whimsical story could well have been pleasing no matter how well-suited the players were for their parts.

"Itch" is, of course, dated comedy now. The jokes about psychiatry, publishing and adultery are trite, warmed over casseroles of corn and pseudo-sophisticated dialogue. This play was most useful only as the basis for the movie which made vast improvements.

George Axelrod weaves a story of a typically American Manhattan dweller named Richard Sherman (Foy Shaw) whose wife Helen (Floss Lawson) and son Ricky go vacationing, leaving hubby in a mood to dally when he falls for The Girl Upstairs (Honie Sue Plaskett).

Suffice it to say that no actress could possibly recreate the qualities of the late Marilyn Monroe brought to the part, though Honie Sue tries. She is too much in a rush. Her lines are delivered as if she were getting money for how quick she can say them. Words fall on top of each other, breathlessly and often can't be understood. Her reactions are false, mechanical and lack warmth.

The immaturity of the characterization is evident in her failure to feel her lines or to play in response to what the husband is saying. Hers is a cold, stony soliloquy, full of irritating and inappropriate teenage mannerisms.

Less disappointing was Foy Shaw, who showed emotional comprehension for his lines and the meaning of his part, but his passion for the girl was unconvincing. He was quite good in suggesting the middle-age, bourgeois husband and his lines were understated and said with a naturalistic naivete.

The play's saving graces were in the two lesser roles. Dr. Brubaker as rendered by Donald W. Wilson was a complete realization of the part. He had mastered the proper European accent and possessed instinctive timing. Helen Lawson was excellent as Helen because she was mature enough for the part, believable and the only person in the show that could be accepted as sophisticated.

"The Seven Year Itch" could have received better treatment from the Summer Sands Playhouse by making the costumes more vivid. They were half-hearted as were the skinny stage properties. These trappings are vital in establishing mood, especially when casting is weak and the script needs revision.

Sound effects and music could have been used more dynamically, especially in the dream sequence, but instead, they were small help to the proceedings. Little was done by the lighting crew, yet these elements of a play are entirely within the reach and potential of amateur theater.

On the positive side, direction under John Hancock was brisk enough to keep the show moving. In spite of weaknesses in individual performances, Hancock manages to hold the play together whereas it could have tumbled itself to death with sores.

Alfred Cistola hands over the deed to Pembroke Manor to M. F. Foster, President of the Princess Anne Historical Society.

Pembroke Manor, a splendid pre-Revolutionary War plantation house recently deeded to the Princess Anne Historical Society.

Society Gets Pembroke Deed

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Pembroke Manor House, scene of rich historical memories since the nation's emergence from English domination, was deeded to the Princess Anne Historical Society July 7.

The house was deeded by Alfred Cistola, representing the developers of Pembroke Manor. It is currently closed to the public but plans for its restoration and eventual opening will be announced by the new owners.

Pembroke Manor House is a proud, old Georgian structure that has witnessed the progress of our civilization since before the American Revolution.

Soon, it will have a new, permanent role in the history of this area.

It will be restored to its former grandeur and take its place as the proud focal point of a totally new type of residential community.

The community will also be called Pembroke Manor and it will open this Spring by the Terry Corporation.

Louise Venable Kyle has written a historical vignette on the "Pembroke Manor House." Built in 1764, the old Georgian house, standing on the property today, will be preserved by its present owners.

"Pembroke was one of a number of large plantations once located in the western part of Princess Anne County. The people who came over from England in the 17th century to make their homes in this part of the county were, for the most part, Cavaliers who fled their homeland at the time of Cromwell's Rebellion."

She traces the history from their reputation as "aristocrats who brought culture and enterprise to this part of Virginia" to the many owners of the manor.

Pembroke was a self-sustaining plantation, having the Great House and various other buildings. There were shops for weaving, shoe making, furniture making, a blacksmith shop and storehouses for food, a smoke house, barns and slave quarters.

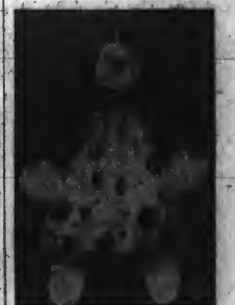

These settlers brought with them from England jewels and family portraits. They acquired their fortunes in the new colony through shipping interests, shipbuilding and growing tobacco.

"In tracing the history of the property," the writer states, "now known as Pembroke Manor, one finds that many people have been its owners, some families living there as long as four generations."

Travelers Win Double-Header

PLAZA — The Lake Wright "Travelers" defeated Hicks Beauty Academy 12-6 in the Fast Pitch opener of a double header of Women's Softball at Lufford Field on Friday night.

In the second game (slow-pitch) the Travelers gave up a 3 run lead in the bottom of the seventh inning on an outfield error and had to settle for a 9-9 tie after 11 innings when the game was called.

Betty Ripley, pitching both games for the winners struck out 11 batters in the fast pitch game and allowed only 1 earned run. Last year Miss Ripley pitched 4 consecutive games in helping her team win the state tournament.

On July 24, the Travelers will defend their title in Portsmouth. Anyone interested in entering please contact Mr. Hank Wolf, 118 Seneca Road, Richmond, Va.

If you've got a pocketful of empty, here's a little trick millions of Americans use: save money before you get it. Then forget it. The Payroll Savings Plan supplies the will power.

Just give your employer the go-ahead to set aside a small amount from each paycheck and apply it to the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds.

Before you know it, the Bonds will start rolling in. It's a mighty good way to put those loose coins to work. The ones that always seem to burn a hole in your pocket.

The theory behind the Plan is simple: what you can't see, you won't miss. And it works—for millions of Americans.

If you think it hurts a little, you'll only think so at first. And remember that this is probably the only part of your take-home pay you'll ever see again.

Then the next time you pass your payroll department, stop in and see how pleasant it is to start hanging on to some of your money—with U. S. Savings Bonds.

"The Indestructible" PEUGEOT 404

The thousands of people who have driven Peugeots over the years have nicknamed this unique car "The Indestructible". While we don't agree that anything is indestructible, the fact is that the oldest car now running in the United States is an 1891 Peugeot. No one knows the life span of a 404. And there's a reason. Peugeot still builds modern cars the old-fashioned way . . . with integrity. Every car is test driven. Every part is inspected, before and after assembly. We use stainless steel for trim, bumpers and wheel covers because it lasts indefinitely. And Peugeot gives you heavier body steel, a sliding sunroof, 4-speed synchromesh transmission, power brakes, an economical 4-cylinder engine and a raft of "extras" like reclining seats and Michelin X tires, that don't cost a penny more than the basic low price. Drive "The Indestructible" and see for yourself.

DORIS PADRICK'S VIEW of VIRGINIA BEACH

"Come on, Tiger," coaxes the tanned swimming instructor to the small hesitant figure standing on the edge of the pool. With just a hint of nervousness the child leaps off into the water towards the outstretched arms . . . and comes up splashing and smiling.

"Very good!" praises the teacher as the little one scrambles up the steps and sits on the edge of the pool, and another member of the non-swimming class takes the position eagerly awaiting the signal to jump.

The ritual is being repeated over and over again in thirty pools throughout the city as hundreds of non-swimming children learn water safety and how to swim in a remarkably short time.

Classes of small children are the most fascinating . . . each child is an individual and gets individual attention when necessary. It is important that each child understand and know the importance of what is being taught. The aim of the instructor is to take a child's natural love of water activities and childish fearlessness and channel it constructively.

A little shy at first, the children get right into the business at hand as the instructor calls the roll then lines them up for a short period of warming-up exercises based on swimming motions . . . "Reach, pull, reach, pull!"

Familiarizing them with being in the water is the first lesson. They walk in the neck-deep water while the instructor keeps up a lively bit of chatter, always praising, always encouraging. Putting the face into the water accomplishes at least two purposes—not being afraid of having the face submerged and of breathing out.

As each child's turn comes, the calm, confident tone of the teacher encourages participation on the part of the prospective swimmer. Being in the water is fun. They learn early that by floating face down, their bodies are buoyant. "Take a deep breath," instructs the teacher. Lungs filled with air make floating easier. "Make bubbles under the water" sounds like fun . . . and they are learning correct breathing methods. Kicking is learned first by holding on to the edge of the pool. How they love that! But it is correct kicking—ways to curl the toes, hold the knees, and in rhythm. A small foam float may be used to venture into the deeper water, kicking to propel themselves forward.

After a couple of lessons, many of the children are swimming, kicking, breathing properly, floating, and jumping off the diving board! (Parents may become alarmed if they stop by to see what progress is being made and see their child on the diving board to take a leap into the deep water.) Some are more timid than others and require more encouragement. Those who are progressing faster are free to practice . . . but the instructor is watching at all times.

The trained Red Cross instructors give more than their time and the benefits from their training: teaching water safety and proper swimming techniques is a lifetime gift to help prevent a possible, unnecessary drowning tragedy. ALL children in this seashore city should take advantage of lessons offered . . . and so should adults who do not know how to swim. Trouble is, there just aren't enough pools available.

Pedestrian Hit By Car

VIRGINIA BEACH — A 20-year-old sailor was injured Thursday night when he reportedly stepped in front of an oncoming car on Atlantic Avenue at 16th Street.

Police said that Gerald S. Richardson of Oceana Naval Air Station suffered a fractured skull, severe lacerations of the head and multiple abrasions about the head and legs.

Officer William D. Haden identified the driver of the car as Virginia L. McCullough, 46, of Goldspring Road.

Mrs. McCullough was headed north on Atlantic Avenue when

RINGS BRING ARREST

VIRGINIA BEACH — Michael Grant Waters, 20, of Baltimore, Md., has been charged by police with one count of grand larceny, two counts of defrauding innkeepers and one count of false registration at a motel.

Waters reportedly took two rings from a couple of local women and had run up a high bill at a motel where he was registered under an assumed name.

Both the rebroadcast and a 1966 new version of the test will be sponsored by Shell Oil Co.

The rebroadcast was seen in 18,000,000 homes and was number one in the Nielsen Top Ten in its May 11 report.

The program is timed for four days before the start of the Labor Day weekend.

PAPER RECORDS HISTORY, LAUDS VIRGINIA BEACH

VIRGINIA BEACH — If you want to know where to find written down in distilled form the essence of Virginia Beach and its history, it can be found in the semi-monthly "News Topic" issue of July 2.

Published by the C and P Telephone Co. of Virginia, the World's Largest Resort City is praised for its combination of nature and metropolitan advantages.

The newspaper records: "Its history as a town starts in 1880 when a clubhouse was built on the ocean front at what is now 17th St. A group of sportsmen from Norfolk used it for a hunting and fishing lodge.

"In 1883 a corporation was formed to build both a railroad and an elaborate hotel. They were completed in 1887 and Virginia Beach was born."

Railroad commuting, in case you wonder when the Norfolk-Va. Beach trek got its start, became the vogue and necessity at the turn of the century.

By 1906, Virginia Beach was incorporated, had a town hall and a jail.

"The original 1,600 acres, purchased by the development company for the beach in 1883, seems small compared to the 172,000 acres encompassed by the city's seven boroughs today."

In 1963, the paper continues, by annexing adjacent Princess Anne County, the resort city became a metropolis of 125,000.

One of the unique things about Virginia Beach is the fact that five military bases are here in its environs.

The largest base is the Oceana Naval Air Station, the most active jet base on the east coast. Others are Little Creek Amphibious Base, Fort Story, Dam Neck and Camp Pendleton.

The popularity of Virginia Beach, the publication points out, is due to the fact that "to a great many people, this city means sunshine and surf and summer fun."

"To others, it is a hometown, fast-growing and quite cosmopolitan."

Mrs. Lambe Co-Head Of State Promotion

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Laura Lambe, of Virginia Beach, has been named co-chairman of the promotion committee of the Virginia Travel Council, and will preside at the committee's initial 1965 meeting on September 15, at The Chamberlin, in Hampton.

The appointment was announced by Lloyd C. Pulley, Jr., of Warsaw, the president of the Council. The committee is the agency that screens the program of the Council and announces its final draft to the board of directors for approval. Chairman of the committee is immediate past president S. Cooper Dawson, Jr. of Alexandria.

This year the committee conducted promotions in travel shows in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Richmond and New York, with two promotions also in the New York World's Fair, and its fourteenth year of exhibiting in the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The Council has just notified its Virginia Beach members of ways and means to supply it with folders at Toronto, where the Exhibition opens on August 20 and continues through September 6. The Council expects twenty to thirty volunteers to augment the staff in this promotion, which will reach three million Canadians and Northern USA Citizens.

During the 1966 promotion year the Council expects to increase its show schedule by three or four additional offerings. Within the next ten days its brand new exquisite exhibit of Virginia will be delivered by Richmond artist Roger Shepperson. In accordance with the wishes of CNE, Virginia each year presents a new exhibit.

Preceding the meeting at Hampton at which Mrs. Lambe will preside, a ballot will be sent each member to vote on all future promotions. Virginia Beach members will have 30 votes. The voting will guide the committee in its selection of the 1966 program.

JOHNNY MATHIS HERE SAT., SUN.

VIRGINIA BEACH — Chances are Johnny Mathis will bring his crooning talents here for local audiences Saturday and Sunday nights at 8:30, July 17 and 18.

Stated to perform at the Civic Center, internationally-known Mathis visits here on his "Country swash across the country. He has completed his 1965 winter-spring tour of nations in Europe, South America and the United States.

Virginia Beach is part of his ten-week summer tour which will cover most of the Northeast and parts of Canada.

Last October, Johnny formed his own company, Rojon Productions, Inc. While Mathis, the Young American Singers and his orchestra were wowing audiences all over the United States, back in Hollywood Rojon was busily setting up engagements all over Europe and South America.

Mathis is enjoying what might be called "The Big Time." His records sell millions, he's mobbed wherever he goes as if he were a teenage idol and he's very, very rich.

He has returned recently from Germany where he sang for the Bambi Film Festival in Munich. He has done television shows in London with the British Broadcasting Co. and recorded more records.

Johnny received warm welcomes from every country he visited. Paris audiences gave him a standing ovation after his first number. Munich was so impressed by the performance that fan clubs sprouted like weeds.

He has even been invited back to talk over a movie deal with a major German studio.

And so it went. He broke records everywhere he went and made show business history, according to his publicity staff.

"Cheers of 'bravo, ole, encore, mehr and more' were heard from all audiences," his staff reported.

Johnny first hit his stride in America after his cameo appearance in the film "Lizy." This was a story about a multiple personality woman, played by Eleanor Parker, who is mousy at day but turns into a woman of the streets by night.

On one of her nocturnal forays,

Arts Festival Gathers Speed

NORFOLK — Art, music, displays, theater and dance are the attractions now being seen at the Fifth Annual Norfolk Arts Festival.

Tidewater area residents and visitors may see the festival activities until Aug. 1 at the City Park in Norfolk. There is no admittance charge.

The Norfolk Arts Festival is produced by the Tidewater Arts Council, Inc., which is made up of all the major cultural organizations in Norfolk, such as the Symphony and Choral Association, Little Theatre, and more than a score of other prominent civic and performing groups.

In its central and appealing setting in and around the City Park's amphitheater, the festival will open at 10 a.m., on July 3rd with an art show, sponsored by the Tidewater Artists' Association. At 2:30 p.m., the CINCLANT Fleet Band will offer a concert. At 8:45 that same evening, the Norfolk Civic Ballet will start a three-night ballet run.

This is the fifth festival to take place in Norfolk. The 1961 festival was a modest six-day "show case" of what a festival could be. 1962's full-fledged three-week run attracted an estimated 50,000 persons.

The City, as a result, has annually increased its budget allowance for the festival and helped to make the entire production what its producers, the Tidewater Arts Council, long hoped for: a festival of the best of the arts for all of the people. A crowd of over 35,000 persons attended the 1964 production.

And for the fifth year, the festival is again sponsored by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and the Department of Parks and Recreation.

Lizy rolls into a nightclub where Mathis is purring sweet, sophisticated songs into his mike.

Ever since the movie (which did not do good business at the box office), Mathis' star has steadily risen.

Dog Causes Cyclist To Fall

PRINCESS ANNE — A 19-year-old youth suffered serious injuries Thursday about 6:30 p.m. when his motorcycle struck a dog and he was thrown from the bike.

John E. Joyce of Princess Anne Road was reported in "satisfactory" condition Monday at Norfolk General Hospital. The youth reportedly suffered an injured right arm and possible concussion.

Officer R. L. Taylor said Joyce was heading southwest on Princess Anne Road just west of Nimmo Methodist Church when a dog ran across the road in front of him. The motorcycle struck the dog, killing it, and Joyce was thrown to the road.

The officer said that no charges had been placed.

Artists Invited To Tour Post

FORT EUSTIS — Artists who wish to enter the second annual Fort Eustis art show scheduled for Oct. 29 through Nov. 7, are invited to a tour of the installation, beginning at the parking lot near the post entrance Thursday, July 15, at 10 a.m.

Show entries must be based on scenes or activities of contemporary or historical Fort Eustis or Fort Story.

K. P. Kilgus, art show chairman, said that inquiries about the show have been received from artists living as far away as California, indicating that this year's show will have representation from a much larger geographical area. Purchase prizes totaling $1,350 in various categories will be offered for prize winning entries.

She was taken into custody Sunday about 10 a.m. by Detective Harry Seager. She was employed by a restaurant on Virginia Beach Boulevard, police said.

SERVICE CENTER GETS NEW HOME

by DORIS PADRICK

VIRGINIA BEACH—Servicemen at "loose-ends" during liberty weekends at Virginia Beach may tie up at 300 15th street, and be assured of a warm welcome.

The rambling two-story house has been made available through the generosity of Commander Algere (retired) who donated it to the Ministerial Association of Virginia Beach for the summer and for the use of servicemen and their guests.

With the closing of the Lutheran Service Center last summer, a suitable location had to be found to take care of the thousands of visiting military men who come to the beach for relaxation. They often wander aimlessly, not knowing exactly where to go or being able to pay tourist prices for simple needs. The problem has been solved through the efforts of in-

BAND PROGRAM

VIRGINIA BEACH—The United States Navy Special Show Band will be featured in a special program on WAVY-TV Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The band, under the direction of Chief Musician Frank Forgnone, USN, will present a program called "That Big Band Sound" and will feature the Navy Band in a special musical program that includes the theme songs of all the big bands of today and yesterday.

The program is the first in a series of monthly public service programming that will be featured on WAVY-TV.

Capt. D. C. Rumsey, II, commanding officer of Oceana Naval Air Station, presents a beneficial suggestion award of $515 to Donald P. Dollens, supply systems analyst in the NAS supply department. terested citizens, church members, the ministry, and the armed services.

Though empty and neglected, the house was the answer to many prayers. Volunteers from the churches and the nearby military bases worked together to change the house into a home. The grass was cut, trash hauled away, interior scrubbed, and then donations of furniture and fixtures and recreational items began to appear.

Every home must have a mother, and one has been selected in the person of Mrs. Douglas A. Barnes, a warm and understanding grandmother who had an integral part in the running of the now-gone Lutheran Service Center for many past seasons. She will be assisted by junior and senior volunteer hostesses from the area church groups.

"It's like playing house," says Mrs. Barnes. "We never know who will come to work nor do we know what much needed item will be donated. And it's like birthdays and Christmas rolled into one. Each day brings surprises and gifts. We are so pleased and so grateful."

A refrigerator was given by Prices, a TV from Chief Subroval, lockers from the U. S. Navy, rug and other furniture by Galilee Episcopal Church, to name a few. Still needed are cups and spoons, and a floor lamp. The large front porch often sprouts much needed items which are presented mysteriously from "unknown friends of the project."

The house of hospitality boasts at least eight spacious rooms—a large living room with fireplace, a smaller den with soft drink machine, a game room with ping pong table, a kitchen with grill, refrigerator, and sink; and the upstairs runs the entire length of the house divided into four open rooms. An outside shower and a side door leading directly to the upstairs makes it unnecessary for the wet sandy swimmers to go through the main part of the house. It may be hot under the eaves but privacy for changing clothes is assured.

Serving on the committee for the establishment and maintenance of the hospitality house are Rev. Edmund Berkeley of Galilee Episcopal Church, Chaplain Warren L. Bost of Oceana NAS, assisted by Chaplains Sherman B. Richards; Chaplain Gordon H. Griffin of Dam Neck, Rev. Dickson Taylor of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Rev. George Wollett of Beachlawn Baptist Church, Chaplain Ralph E. Handron and Fathers Bernierick and Kollar of Star of the Sea Catholic Church also help.

Doors are open to all servicemen on Saturdays at 10 a.m. till 5 p.m., and on Sundays after church till 5 p.m. and on Labor Day.

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRONG COMMUNITIES

We spend our summers by the Inlet. Eddie and I love to walk the beach, watching with fascination the wild churning of the water where the ocean waves meet the strong river current.

"That's my name," he said, when I told him the churning water was called an "eddy."

It's more than his name. It's a picture of his life — and every child's.

Growing up is a succession of crosscurrents. The influences of the home meet those of the school — the playmates — the community — the times. Strange, new experiences must be fitted into the child's ever-widening world.

Religious training is the surest stabilizing force in this turbulent period of growth. Strengthened by parental faith and example, a child discovers in his Church that there are values greater than whim or adventure. He realizes that his own and his family's standards are rooted in the truths of God. And he learns with the firm rudder of faith to steer a bold course — out of the Inlet's swirling eddies — across the sea of life.

Why is Sealtest the buttermilk to buy?

Consistency is a reason why

Sealtest Old Fashioned Flake Buttermilk delivers that old-time, fresh-churned flavor... glass after glass after glass. Here's buttermilk with a zest and tang and "bite" that you look for in buttermilk. And with Sealtest you get it every time.

That's the big difference in Sealtest Old Fashioned Flake Buttermilk. Goodness you can rely on... consistently.

VA. NAT. BANK OPERATIONS UP

NORFOLK — Operations during the first six months of 1965 have resulted in the most profitable half-year since the formation of Virginia National Bank.

Net operating earnings after taxes totaled $2,078,878 during the first six months of 1965 compared to $1,875,287 in 1964 — an increase of over 10% in the annual rate.

Per share earnings are $1.19 compared with $1.07 in 1964.

These figures and other information are revealed by R. Cosby Moore, chairman, and W. Wright Harrison, president, in the bank's mid-year report to its shareholders now being published.

Operating results are reported on a comparative basis matching current figures with those reported by all banks comprising Virginia National Bank during a similar period.

Deposit growth described as "substantial" has boosted the bank's size to nearly one-half billion dollars. Average deposits for the period have increased over 5% over the comparative six months in 1964, and average loans are up 12%.

Additionally, the bank has increased its branch system to total 53 offices throughout the state.

Both Moore and Harrison pointed to increased income from an expanded loan volume as the most significant factor in greater earnings, increasing 13.6% over the amount reported a year ago.

In Virginia, after a day's fishing beer's the one... for good taste, good fun

Wherever you fish for sport—on the ocean, by the booming surf, or on some quiet country pond, it's great at the end of the day to head for a rewarding glass of beer. While you're talking over the ones that got away, or pan-frying the ones that didn't, you enjoy the hearty taste and cool refreshment only a glass of beer can give you so well. Yes, whatever your sport—bowling or strolling, golfing or gardening—a frosty glass of beer makes a naturally great accompaniment.

NEW SCHOLARSHIPS

RICHMOND — Two scholarships in the amount of $500 each will be awarded each year by The American Legion, Department of Virginia, according to Joseph B. Holloway, state commander.

The scholarship program was authorized by the Legion's Executive Committee last March, with the awards being made from the revenue of the Legion's Endowment Fund. This new program will be in addition to the annual awards amounting to $500 in its oratorical contest for high school students.

The scholarships will, according to Holloway, be awarded to children of honorably discharged war service veterans, who have been found acceptable by an accredited college or university and in need of financial assistance to attain a higher education.

Application may be made to Wilbur Walker, Department Adjutant, The American Legion, 1808 Chantilly St., Richmond, Va. 23201.

Capt. Jim's TIPS for SAFE BOATING

BY JIM KERRICK, SAFETY OFFICER
Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries

COURTESY IS MARK OF GOOD BOATMAN
Courtesy is our cheapest commodity, yet it seems as though there are a few poverty stricken people in this respect.
Few skippers will knowingly do something deliberately to disturb the enjoyment of others, but thoughtless discourtesy is entirely too commonplace.

Boatmen should avoid being "show offs," or nautical "hot rod-ders." This type is never popular. Never run close to a pier or float, swimming area, anchorage or fisherman at high speed.

When anchoring leave enough space for the boat next to yours so that you don't foul each other's anchor line or bump against each other if the wind or tide changes.

Don't anchor in a channel and block traffic, and don't under any circumstances tie up to a buoy or navigational aid.

Don't land at a private pier or float unless you are invited.
Keep your refuse aboard your boat until you can deposit it in proper container on shore. Don't be a litterbug on the water.

It is an unwritten law that all boatmen render assistance to other boatmen in distress. When you see a disabled vessel, pull along side and render all possible assistance.

Don't have the idea that everyone on the water has to look out for himself. Be prepared to take care of yourself, and also to lend a helping hand whenever it is needed. Courtesy is contagious, and some day the disabled boat may be your own.

WTAR-TV EQUIPS FOR COLOR

NORFOLK - NEWPORT NEWS - Robert M. Lambie, President and General Manager of WTAR-TV, Channel 3, announced today that an order in excess of $250,000 has been placed with Radio Corporation of America to purchase necessary equipment to enable the CBS affiliate to telecast all programs in full color. According to Mr. Lambie, some of the components are scheduled for delivery this fall.

Channel 3 already carries all network color programs fed by CBS together with locally originated slides and film. The new equipment will make it possible for WTAR-TV to transmit local programs in full color both live and by instantaneous video-tape.

"The decision to go full color," said Mr. Lambie, "is the result of careful study and research both locally and nationally. CBS recently announced the network's intention to telecast over 50 per cent of its programs in color this fall plus an impressive number of network specials. The public's acceptance of color is also demonstrated, according to national research estimates that 5 million color sets will be in use by the end of this year. In Tidewater, over 15 thousand homes are already equipped to receive color programs. Finally," said Lambie, "the equipment we have purchased represents the latest in technical refinement in color TV, the result of years of experimentation and development by the manufacturers."

The WTAR-TV/CBS programs to be seen in color beginning September 13 are:

Sunday: "Lassie," "My Favorite Martian," and the "Ed Sullivan Show."

Monday: "The Lucy Show," "The Andy Griffith Show," "Hazel," and the "Steve Lawrence Show."

Tuesday: "The Red Skelton Hour" and "Peterson Junction."

Wednesday: "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Green Acres," and the "Danny Kaye Show."

Thursday: "Gilligan's Island," "My Three Sons," and "The CBS Thursday Night Movie."

Friday: "Hogan's Heroes," and

"Gomer Pyle-USMC."

The regular color schedule on CBS will be augmented by a roster of color specials including four National Geographic presentations, a new special starring Barbara Streisand and one starring Carol Channing, and another starring Andy Griffith, Don Knotts and Jim Nabors; also, "The Wizard of Oz," "Cinderella," a number of major sports events and various CBS News broadcasts including several "CBS Reports."

Locally, the color schedule includes "Sting Ray," "Death Valley Days," and others, including movies, which are being contracted for.

Transmission Line Complete

VIRGINIA BEACH - Virginia Electric and Power Company has announced the recent completion of a 115,000 volt transmission line from its Portsmouth Power Station to the City of Virginia Beach.

The cost of the new line was $3,100,000. It is designed for future operation at 230,000 volts between the Portsmouth Power Station and Dam Neck, and its towers were constructed with provision for a second circuit.

Vepco said that the new facility was built to supply the constantly increasing power consumption in the area. The use of electricity in the eastern part of the City of Virginia Beach in 1965 is expected to be three times that of 1955. By 1970, the load is estimated at twice that of 1965.

The new line and its provision for higher voltage and a second circuit will improve the reliability of service and will supply the area's power requirements for a number of years.

Lifeboat Becomes Frigate For Drama

WILLIAMSBURG - A rejuvenated lifeboat which thinks it is a French frigate makes its familiar voyage across Lake Matoaka again each night in Paul Green's famous outdoor historic drama "The Common Glory."

Now in its 18th season of summer production, "The Glory" shows nightly, except Sundays, through August 28.

The critically acclaimed presentation has a number of important changes for the 1965 season, but the frigate which appears in the climactic scene of the Battle of Yorktown has remained the same since the drama's first showing in 1947.

Though it appears only in the final scene, questions bombard officials about it.

Credit for the mechanical ingenuity responsible for the ship's appearance goes to Technical Director Al Haak. Associated with the "Glory" since its inception, Haak has received national recognition for his technical innovations.

Starting with an old lifeboat commandeered from the Newport News Shipyard, Haak salvaged an abandoned elevator which to use as the source of the ship's power.

Using an endless-returning line which employs four sets of pulleys, the ship is powered by the old, weather-beaten winch across Lake Matoaka and back again sixty times each summer.

During the latter part of Act One the former lifeboat, now decked out as a spanking new French frigate, is sent across the lake back of the main stage unit and unnoticed by the audience.

At a designated time later in the show, a costumed stagehand rows out to the frigate, boards her, and loads the ship's fifteen simulated cannons.

At the height of the Battle of Yorktown the overhauled lifeboat is illuminated and proceeds to pummel the land-locked British troops as it makes its return journey across Lake Matoaka.

The former Navy lifeboat, however, is not the only technical device which has incited curiosity. The Yorktown battle itself is something of a stage wonder in its own right. Cooperating with Haak to produce the desired effect of Revolutionary fervor is Director Howard Scammon.

A scene which contains so much action and so many (40) actors on stage simultaneously, is a directing nightmare in its potential for confusion.

With the technical director devising the mechanical effects for the ship, cannons, rifles, etc., Scammon dramatically choreographs the action of the battle to convey the reverberating vitality of the Revolutionary War years.

To complement these traditional highlights of the drama spectacle, the staff of the "Common Glory" has instituted several changes for this year's production that have proven crowd-pleasers.

Notable among these are the return of the 20-voice a cappella choir under the direction of Dr. Carl A. Fehr, Professor of Music at the College of William and Mary. In addition, playwright Paul Green has made script changes that align the historical events dramatized on stage more closely with the actual actions of the "Founding Fathers."

The excellent dance company of Choreographer Myra Kinch is a feature of the production; as are the colorful, authentic 18th century costumes of Designer Sue Sherman.

Curtain time for "The Common Glory" is 8:45 p.m., D.S.T., nightly through August 28. Information and tickets may be obtained from the Jamestown Corporation, Box 288, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

Farmers... Beware of Cheap Seeds that produce High-Cost Crops

• Cheap seeds, inferior seeds, poor quality seeds—now expensive they really are to plant! You invariably get skimpy yields that raise your cost per unit. Each ton, each bushel becomes mighty high-priced. Saving a few pennies on seeds at planting time can lose you many dollars at harvest time.

• For low-cost high-profit crops, plant Southern States Quality Seeds. You harvest maximum yields at lowest possible cost per ton or bushel. Down go your per-unit expenses. You come out way ahead with Southern States Quality Seeds. See your Southern States Agency now and reserve your fall needs.

June is the season when whole battalions of stinging insects, mosquitoes, hornets, flies, wasps, bees, gnats, scorpions, and some species of ants, sharpen up their "stingers" for use on animals and man, most often, notes Aldridge & Chambers, Inc., Exterminators, for reasons of self-defense.

BEE CAN BE DEADLY

The bee is a friend who, usually without meaning to, can become a deadly foe to man, says George L. Aldridge, Aldridge & Chambers, Inc., Exterminators. Aldridge today issued a general warning to be wary of stinging insects especially active at this time of the year.

Commenting on the increased frequency of news reports of deaths by insect stings, Aldridge pointed out that bees alone caused 50 deaths in the United States during one five-year period. Stinging insects—bees, wasps, hornets, yellow jackets and ants—cause as many deaths annually as snakes and all other venomous creatures put together.

Reactions from insect stings vary widely among individuals, some persons being relatively immune and others very allergic to stings. The suffering or reaction, Aldridge pointed out, is generally believed to be an allergic one since the individual stung reacts to an allergic substance in the venom of the stinging insect.

Humans can sometimes build immunity to insect stings, this expert pointed out, and beekeepers have been known to withstand as many as 50 stings in a day without serious aftereffects. Some persons are much more sensitive to stings, however, and may suffer severe shock and even death because of a relatively few attacks.

"Perhaps the most important thing to consider about the sting of an insect is that it should not be treated lightly," Aldridge emphasized. "Scientists at Cornell University have come up with findings which prove that the venom of the bee is just as deadly as that of the East Indian cobra, and to people who are sensitive to bee stings, this is certainly true."

Aldridge noted that the bee, which is found almost everywhere because it is in a sense "domesticated" by man, is the most common source of insect stings, but added that wasps, hornets, yellow jackets and ants also sting and can cause serious human reactions. In fact, the scientist noted, while the honeybee can only sting once because it loses its stinging "weapon" in the skin of its victim, the other stinging insects can strike many times.

In offering advice on how to avoid getting "stung," Aldridge suggests the obvious: "stay away from stinging insects." For people with severe reactions to insect bites he says that this is a "must," but that for others, certain simple precautions may save serious discomfort at the least.

If you must be in an area where stinging insects are known to be, wear white or light clothing, keep face and body covered as completely as possible, avoid hair oils and perfume and remember that stinging insects are attracted by strong odors such as perspiration.

If hostile bees are encountered, Aldridge says that the best strategy is a cautious withdrawal and that running away can result in infuriating the insect. He also notes that if, after these precautions, one is stung, the stinger should be removed as quickly as possible.

Where bees or other stinging insects set up housekeeping in a dwelling place, garage or other outbuildings frequented by humans, the best recourse is to call in a professional pest control operator who will have the chemicals and equipment to control or eradicate the unwelcome—and frequently dangerous—guests.

Shakespeare Play Starts

WILLIAMSBURG — The Williamsburg Shakespearean players, a group formed each summer by personnel of the outdoor drama "The Common Glory," has announced its decision to present a Sunday night Shakespearean offering again this summer.

The Players, necessarily formed anew each summer due to changes in "Common Glory" company and staff, will present Shakespeare's delightful comedy-fantasy "A Midsummer Night's Dream" beginning July 25 and continuing on Sunday nights through August 15.

Howard Scammon, Director of the "Glory" and President of the Players, announced that performances will again be free of charge, but a silver offering will be taken to help defray expenses for costumes, sets, scripts, and other production costs.

Serving with Scammon on the elected Board of Directors are Don Smith, Russell Hastings, Lucy Blandford, John Reese, F. D. Gossage and William Hicks. As spokesman for the Players, Scammon stated that the past popularity of the Shakespearean program, both among the actors and staff of "The Common Glory" and the Shakespeare-lovers from all over the area who have seen the productions, clearly indicates that this type of activity is worthy of becoming a permanent part of the Williamsburg theatrical scene. In two seasons of production, over 10,000 persons have witnessed the Players' shows. Curtain for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be at 8:30 p.m., D.S.T. at the "Common Glory" amphitheatre.

Brigadier General Donald C. Clayman, 805 Bay Colony Drive, Virginia Beach, receives the Distinguished Service Medal at ceremonies marking the culmination of his 30-year career. Presenting the decoration, the nation's highest peacetime service award, is Lt. Gen. Harvey M. Fischer, Deputy Commanding General, Headquarters, United States Continental Army Command. Cycle Rams
Car, Two Boys Injured

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two 19-year-old boys from Portsmouth on a Honda motorcycle pulled out of line in traffic Tuesday and rammed into a car, causing extensive injuries to both.

Clifton Agusta Scholt Jr. of 96 Gills Rd., Portsmouth, sustained lacerations of the back and right leg and his passenger on the cycle, Charles T. Parker, of 3223 County Road, Portsmouth, was injured with lacerations of the scalp, multiple bruises and abrasions of the lower extremities, police said.

An unidentified car stopped on the left hand northbound lane at the intersection of Pacific Ave. and 19th St. at 5:15 p.m. to make a left turn.

A 1964 Ford, driven by Ruth Weas-Roberson, 18, of 409 34th St., began turning left also from the left hand southbound lane of Pacific Avenue.

The motorcycle approached the left hand northbound lane and swung around the unidentified car which had stopped, and hit the Ford in mid-turn.

The Roberson girl's car was damaged in the right fender, hood, grill, and right headlight, estimated at $150.

The damage to the Honda was placed at $300. It was smashed in front fork and engine.

Scholt was charged with reckless driving.

LINKED

OCEANA — Twenty-two Navy-men attached to the U.S. Naval Air Station Oceana were presented letters of commendation recently for having salvaged a Navy aircraft and possibly saved the lives of its crewmembers.

The awards were presented in formal ceremonies held at Fentress Field, an outlying activity of Oceana Naval Air Station.

On May 27, an S-2E aircraft from Air Antisubmarine Squadron 26 (VA-26) caught fire while approaching the landing facility at Fentress for carrier landing practice.

The men on duty at the installation sprang into action, working effectively and professionally to extinguish the fire and save the lives of the plane crew.

By using exact firefighting techniques and acting with necessary speed, the men limited the fire to one engine of the aircraft and none of the crewmembers were injured.

As Cdr. C. H. Rockcastle of VS-26 expressed in a letter of commendation, "Their expedient, professional efforts certainly saved the U.S. Navy the loss of a million dollar aircraft and perhaps averted the loss of life as well."

Lying in a field only yards away from houses in the Carriage Hill section of Princess Anne Plaza near the South Lynnhaven Road is the Navy plane that crashed Friday.

Plane Narrowly
Avoids Tragedy

VIRGINIA BEACH — Crashing only a few hundred yards from heavily populated residential Bowling Green near Bow Creek Country Club about 4 p.m. Friday was an F-4 Navy Crusader jet fighter from Oceana Naval Air Station.

Safely ejecting was the pilot, Ens. David Kent Johnson, 24, of Ontario, Calif., who landed near the plane's wreckage in a soybean field bordering South Lynnhaven Road.

Cause of the crash was said to have been a flameout, or power failure while the plane approached the field.

The lucky pilot was picked up 15 minutes after the crash by a Navy helicopter and whisked to the Navy dispensary, where he was examined and released.

A "debriefing session" with Navy investigators followed and the cause of the crash was studied.

"Boom" was the way one South Lynnhaven Road housewife described the scene when she saw Johnson land in harness in the field.

"I saw him stand up, then he was picked up by a helicopter. I never did see the plane crash."

No one, according to reports, saw the crash, although many could have been tragically involved had the plane nosed down only hundreds of yards where homes are located.

A crowd surveyed the crash site on the edge of the irrigated soybean field as Navy investigators and security officials arrived to dig through the wreckage.

The ill-fated aircraft skidded 200 yards over the wet field, cutting a 75-foot swath and plunged into the ground 300 yards from houses.

BRANCH RITES HELD SUNDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — The funeral of L. Travis Branch, juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judge, was held Sunday at Charity Methodist Church. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Judge Branch died Friday of internal injuries received in a traffic accident of July 8. He was the ninth traffic victim in Virginia Beach this year.

The judge was a native of Hopewell in Prince George County and lived in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area 27 years. He attended Creeds High School in Princess Anne County. Branch joined the Coast Guard after his graduation from Creeds in 1948 and was stationed in Norfolk, Va., where he was a Civil Service court reporter for the Norfolk Naval Recruiting Station. After 18 months he returned to school and received the bachelor's degree from the Norfolk Division of the College of William and Mary (now Old Dominion College) in 1958. In 1959 he graduated from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in Williamsburg. He worked his way through college with a paper route.

He joined the Norfolk Law Office in the summer of 1959, and in early 1961 moved to the old resort city of Virginia Beach. In April he was appointed assistant judge of Virginia Beach Police Court. Upon merger of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County, he was appointed judge of Traffic Court in Virginia Beach borough and juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judge, posts which he held at his death. His appointment as permanent judge was confirmed on July 14 of this year.

He is survived by his wife, the former Joyce Etheridge of Back Bay, and children: Melissa Hope, 5, and Courtney Travis, 3. He was 34 years old.

Surviving also are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer L. Branch, and two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Lee Aygarn and Mrs. Emily B. Whitehurst, of this city.

New College
Gets Started

VIRGINIA BEACH — The construction of Virginia Wesleyan College, on the Norfolk-Virginia Beach boundary line, was begun Sunday with groundbreaking ceremonies.

Tidewater mayors turned up dirt at the site where, it is estimated, between 1,300 and 1,500 students will eventually study.

The college's building program began its first phase for the first of four academic villages. This first phase will cost $1.5 million and should be ready for 300 freshmen in September 1968.

Principal speaker was Lt. Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., Democratic nominee for governor. Second District Rep. Porter Hardy Jr. also spoke.

The importance of a college education was emphasized by Godwin.

He said, "The premium on a college education is rapidly being increased. Already a high school education is an absolute necessity for any kind of start in life, and the increase in college enrollment will soon make the same thing true of a bachelor's degree."

Godwin described the educated man as one "with a perspective of history, a familiarity with literature, with the arts, and most of all, a firm grounding in a religious faith."

After his speech, Godwin joined with Mayors Roy B. Martin Jr. of Norfolk, R. Irvine Smith of Portsmouth, Howard R. McPherson of Chesapeake, Frank DuCharme of Virginia Beach and Major T. Benton of Suffolk in the groundbreaking.

Best Policeman
To Be Selected

VIRGINIA BEACH — Nominations began this week among policemen below the rank of sergeant at the two precincts of the Virginia Beach Police Department for determination of Policeman of the Year.

Sponsored for the first time by the Virginia Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, the honor will come to some local policeman who will be selected by a distinguished committee of citizens from the nominations.

He will be recognized at a banquet August 26. The nomination forms must be filled out by police and mailed by Aug. 8, according to Bob Stanton of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Stanton wrote Chief of Police J. E. Moore Monday:

"It is with pleasure that I am sending you the enclosed nomination forms for our 'Policeman of the Year' project. The purpose of the form is to allow qualified persons to nominate the officer that they feel best exemplifies those qualities found in a truly outstanding policeman."

The Junior Chamber of Commerce handed over to Chief Moore on Monday the nominations gathered thus far and thanked him for the Police Department's interest and cooperation in the program.

Banquet details, Stanton said, will be announced later.

Midshipmen
Invade Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH — The shore of Virginia Beach will become a battleground once again as more than 1,000 midshipmen and Marines conduct on July 26 a full-scale amphibious assault across the beaches of Camp Pendleton.

Pre-invasion activities begin at 9 a.m. Largest of several invasions scheduled at Camp Pendleton this summer, the landing is a unique graduation exercise in which midshipmen of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps, representing 34 major colleges and universities in the eastern U.S., demonstrate the effectiveness of a three-week training program at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

College students compete on a nationwide basis for enrollment in the NROTC program, and upon graduation are commissioned ensigns or second lieutenants in the U.S. Navy or U.S. Marine Corps.

Training of midshipmen at Little Creek is conducted under the direction of Rear Admiral Frank W. Vannoy, Commander Amphibious Training Command, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

For the assault on July 26, and for practice invasions on July 25 and 27, ten ships of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force will be joined by destroyers, mine sweepers and various aircraft units to transport the landing force to the objective area and support the landing.

Landing operations will begin as Navy frogmen and Marine pathfinders parachute advance reconnaissance units into the landing zones.

High performance jet aircraft conduct close-air support by bombing and strafing enemy beach emplacements as the first waves of landing raft and amphibious tractors hit the beach; helicopter-borne assault troops unload behind enemy lines to cut supply routes and capture inland strongholds.

As the assault progresses, successive waves of landing craft bring ashore additional men and machinery to secure the beachhead and inland areas. The entire operation is completed when the mock enemy is routed from their emplacements.

Midshipmen training activities at Camp Pendleton, which in past years have been witnessed by thousands of Tidewater residents, are open to the public. A comprehensive narration will explain various aspects of the assault and point out other items of interest.

Area Men Arrested In

by Henry Melnia

VIRGINIA BEACH — Close cooperation between the police departments of Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth and the Virginia State Highway Patrol and the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation has made a major crack in an interstate appliance theft ring with seven arrests this week.

Thirty-nine single appliances have been recovered after intensive investigation by Tidewater police departments.

They include seven refrigerators, three washers, four dryers, seven ovens, seven ranges, three dishwashers and eight television sets.

Virginia Beach Police Department men who helped make dents into the complicated and daring theft cases were Lt. W. W. Davis, Detective Dan Creelman, Detective R. L. Baanight and Sergeant C. W. Stignons.

Those arrested were: Floyd M. Martin Sr. of Chesapeake and Harry W. Golsan of Norfolk, both arrested in Portsmouth.

Archie Curtis Bond and Leonard M. Millikan, both arrested in Norfolk.

Melvin Thomas Lashley and Willie Lee Lashley, and Jasper Spruill, all of Norfolk.

EXPANDS

PLAZA — Lawrence A. Sancilio, president of Larasan Realty and Insurance Corporations, announced that the expansion program at the Princess Anne Plaza office has been completed. Larasan has just added 2,000 square feet to the Plaza office, now giving us over 7,100 square feet of working space.

Sancilio said, "Since we desperately needed additional working space in the Plaza office, we decided to try and project our needs not only for the present but also for the next two years. We then reorganized the interior of our enlarged office into both executive offices and working departments.

By carrying out our program of specialization. With the additional space we plan to expand the personnel in each of the following departments: insurance general and life, residential sales, new home sales, residential rental, commercial rental, and property management."

Larasan has closed the office at 25th Street, thereby enabling all personnel to be under one roof at the Princess Anne Plaza office.

Sancilio said, "We fully believe that this overall expansion program will help our 50 employees better serve the clients of both Larasan Insurance and Realty Corporations."

In this way we can more effectively "investigate," said Detective Dan Creelman, "is continuing on other appliances reported stolen in the Tidewater area. A lot of these stolen goods have come to this area from break-ins in other localities outside Tidewater."

Creelman credited the recovery of appliances thus far with the relaying of information between police departments.

"If anyone has bought an appliance that is suspicious, they should contact police and let us check it out and see if the merchandise is legal," he said.

The appliance theft cases got underway with a warehouse break-in June 3 at Carolanne Farms.

Stolen were 16 appliances worth $1,400, all Westinghouse brand which included ovens, refrigerators, dishwashers and ranges.

On June 13 another break-in erupted in the 600 block of Nottingham Road located at the Kingston section of Virginia Beach.

Three houses were entered—all unoccupied, newly-constructed homes. Taken were three refrigerators, three washers, three dryers or an estimated $1,000 worth of goods; all Westinghouse brand again, police said.

The Nottingham Road theft was witnessed by a person who took down the license number of a truck which was said to have been driven away after the theft. The truck belonged to the Leigh-Ann Corp., and was traced to the Hewitt Farms section.

Investigation continued, and meanwhile, certain items were recovered in Portsmouth. Merchandise taken from Carolanne Farms was all recovered in Portsmouth.

Found in various homes in Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Norfolk were appliances believed from the Kingston section robbery.

Investigation has revealed other break-ins in Norfolk, North Carolina, and the Eastern Shore.

Some of the stolen goods from these localities have been found in Norfolk homes, police said.

WOMAN, OTHERS
HURT ON TUESDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — The driver of a small foreign-made truck was charged Tuesday with reckless driving and following too close after he struck another vehicle near the Cavalier Hotel, causing it to ram the curb, strike a stoplight apparatus which in turn hit a pedestrian.

Thomas Bradley Rose, 22, of 116 Linkhorn Dr. was operating the truck Tuesday at 10:45 a.m. at about 150 feet north of 40th St. when police said his vehicle, a 1960 sedan, driven by Margyola Martin Thompson, 48, of 714 19th St., who was injured in the right leg.

The sedan then struck the curb and knocked a stop light down which injured a pedestrian, Patricia M. Miller, 30, of College Park, Md. Injured were both feet and knees.

Brian J. Huddy 18, of 508 W. Plantation Road, a passenger with Rose, was cut on the forehead.

Damage to the special type stop light, owned by the Cavalier Club, Inc., and which allows pedestrians to change it themselves, was estimated at $500.

Rose told police his brakes weren't "quite right."

The truck had reported $500 damage to the front end while the sedan was damaged at an estimated $350 to trunk, hood and front fender.

The parade will be held on the Amphibious Base parade field, adjacent to Rockwell Hall.

The public is invited to attend.

Friday night at Fort Story Officers Club, the Virginia Beach High School Class of '65 celebrated their class reunion with cocktails, buffet dinner and dance.

In two short years, it was almost unbelievable to see just how grown up these young men and women have become. I listened to them talking to one another about their families and plans for the future. Their values were high but certainly not without a down-to-earth attitude. Parents, in raising their children, want the year teenagers, wonder if all we have tried to teach them wasn't a complete waste of breath and time.

Having known so many of these young men when they were teenagers, I know they are now adults in the real world.

If I have one piece of advice for these young men and women, it is to keep on learning. The world is changing so fast that it is essential to keep up with the times. The only way to do this is by continuing to learn and grow.

Those attending are Margaret Kern, president; Nancy Austin, vice president; Kathy Brinkley, secretary; Nara Fulcher, treasurer; and Miss Elizabeth Hetchcof, chaperon.

Now therefore, our God, we thank thee. — (1 Chron. 29:13).

If we can gather the courage to say "Thank You, God, for everything!" when we experience a trial or tribulation — and mean it — then we shall have taken the first step toward overcoming the difficulty. Every challenge is an opportunity to prove our faith in God and His goodness.

TIPS FOR TOURISTS

How to Treat Feet

If you're bound for far-off places, the home folks may wish they were in your shoes. But how will you like being in your shoes — after days or weeks of trotting around to see the sights?

Protect your "basic transportation" — by heeding these foot-saving pointers from experienced tourists:

1. Take only shoes of proven comfort — leave home the new pair that needs "breaking in." You may break first!

2. Take along enough shoes to permit several changes. Don't wear the same pair two days in succession. In hot weather, many people find comfort in changing shoes two or three times a day.

3. Favor leather shoes over synthetic materials. Leather has pores which "breathe" and let moisture evaporate — important in guarding against athlete's foot.

4. Be sure socks and stockings as well as shoes fit properly — tight hose not only cramps the feet, but interferes with ventilation. If your feet perspire excessively, you may be helped by wearing cotton socks.

5. If you suffer from athlete's foot, see your doctor before you leave. He can prescribe a new fungicide, Tinactin, found to cure 75-80% of clinically tested cases. Taken along and used at the first flare-up of athlete's foot, Tinactin can help make your trip more pleasant.

6. At day's end, soak tired toes in a warm foot bath. But don't forget to dry feet thoroughly!

7. Limber tired feet by wiggling your toes. Each night, try this 5-minute exercise: sit in a chair with shoes off, extend legs, move feet up and down as far as they'll go.

Season Tickets On Sale

VIRGINIA BEACH — Season ticket sales for the 1965-66 productions of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre are now being conducted. Mrs. Ruth Drew, chairman, urges all who wish to reserve particular play nights to do so as soon as possible.

The season will open October 1 with "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" and will be a gala black tie affair. All who wish to attend the premiere openings should send requests in now in order to be accommodated.

Selections for the season include the opening play directed by Penny Martin, "Silent Night, Lonely Night," directed by Liz Sills; "Night of the Iguana," directed by Angela Walker; "Life With Father," Bill Britton directing; and "See How They Run," directed by Chichi Lively.

Reservations should be directed to P. O. Box 1053, Virginia Beach, Virginia.

CHITA RIVERA NAMED
N.Y. WORLD'S FAIR
SUMMER FESTIVAL HOSTESS

Musical comedy star Chita Rivera will be official hostess for New York's 1965 World's Fair Summer Festival season. Chita, dynamic star of the Broadway hit "Bejour," was named by New York City's mayor, Robert Wagner in ceremonies at City Hall.

In naming Miss Rivera as Festival hostess, Mayor Wagner said that she "personifies in a wonderful way the warm welcome we want to extend to each of our guests."

Chita said, "I welcome this opportunity to help bring to the attention of visitors the wonders of the World's Fair and the exciting attractions that make New York a Summer Festival."

Among the most popular of these attractions, according to the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, are the Empire State Building, Lincoln Center, Rockefeller Center, the Statue of Liberty, Times Square, and the United Nations.

In addition, summertime visitors to New York can enjoy a wide range of sports events, musical performances, Broadway and off-Broadway theatre, and other entertainment and cultural attractions — all these plus the fabulous New York World's Fair.

For a free Calendar of Events during the World's Fair Summer Festival season, as well as a Map and Guide to New York's fascinating attractions, write to Miss Chita Rivera, care of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, 90 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

"ANYTHING GOES" AT SUMMER SANDS

THEATER REVIEW

"Anything Goes" opened Tuesday night for a three week run at the Summer Sands Playhouse on 19th Street and Arctic Avenue to a good sized audience liberally sprinkled with young people. It was a fun show.

Cole Porter's musical comedy set aboard an ocean liner has a big cast, big songs, and a big star. Arnyce Anders, blond and buxom, is a perfect "Reno Sweeney," the role first styled by Ethel Merman on Broadway. And like Merman, she puts everything she has into every song and she has nine of them. She's light on her feet and executes her dance numbers with grace and agility. Co-starring with her is Welton Smith as "Billy Crocker." His singing, dancing and acting with deft comedy relief as the London-bound stowaway keeps the show "zinging."

"Moonface Martin," the gangster disguised as a preacher, was ably handled by James Stamos, though his Brooklyn accent slurred somewhat. Bouncing Shirley Fentress as his moll "Bonnie," whether scotching around on the stage or up in the air on the trapeze, was with it every minute.

Nightly performances are at 8:30 p.m. except Monday. Tickets are $3.50, but servicemen and children are admitted for $1.50. "Anything Goes" runs through August 8.

Wall-Mounting For Fire Extinguishers

More than 1500 homes across the country are hit by "needless" fires daily — causing almost a million dollars in damage and extensive human suffering.

Started by everything from a firecracker to a frayed wire, fire is basically a do-it-yourself business of carelessness and neglect. Fortunately, you can prevent most house fires, or at least bring them under control quickly, with routine household maintenance and a little common sense.

Along with a constant family war on fire hazards, a home fire extinguisher is, perhaps the best defensive weapon your house can have. Economical at any price, extinguishers have become available in relatively small sizes in the last few years.

Choose the right spot for your fire extinguisher; be careful to keep it out of the way of small hands and place it where it won't detract from your household decor. A good spot for your compact lifesaver is in the basement or laundry — out of sight but always near-by.

If you are fastening the bracket of the extinguisher into concrete, or concrete block, there are two ways this can be done. The first is by drilling into the concrete block and then tapping in an expansion type masonry anchor to fasten the bracket, which will hold the extinguisher.

The second method can save you a lot of time and effort. You use a Shure-set tool, available at your local hardware store. This tool eliminates drilling and the cost of toggle bolts, or expansion anchors necessary with ordinary installation techniques.

Simply insert a 1/4-inch by 1-inch long fastener into the Shure-set tool, line up the bracket, and with a few raps of the hammer on the tool's drive rod, the fastener is securely imbedded into the concrete or concrete-block wall. (On a brick wall, the fastener should be set into the mortar joints because brick itself is too brittle.)

The Shure-set tool fastens fire extinguisher brackets — or almost anything for that matter — securely to concrete or masonry. Each such fastening holds as much as 100 pounds.

In basement areas where decor is not a factor, your fire extinguisher should be mounted at eye level. Make the fire extinguisher readily accessible by keeping the area around it free of clutter. You'll feel safer with the extinguisher in the house and perhaps a little less concerned about your home becoming a fire station.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Let Sleeping Dogs Lie

Even after the kind of campaign he had waged, we were still shocked at the vicious attack made by L. Charles Burlage after the Democratic Primary. We had hoped that after the election that Mr. Burlage, who was soundly defeated, would have accepted the will of the electorate and let the matter be. But, the day after the Primary, Burlage accused his opposition here at Virginia Beach of "Mafia type tactics." This is probably the most ridiculous charge we have ever heard of from anyone, especially a candidate for high office. The charge defies comprehension, and certainly calls for no answer. It is just too ludicrous. However, as we have suggested to Mr. Burlage in the past, if he has any hard, fast, concrete evidence of anything illegal or any unreasonable tactics, a newspaper is not the place to air "dirty laundry." The place to do so is with the proper authorities, and as soon as possible. We hope Mr. Burlage will heed us this time, and pass along anything he has of this nature. If he does not, we can only assume he is bluffing, or that he has nothing... which is what we expect.

He also called for Federal observers at the polls of Virginia Beach. Fine. We will welcome them, too, but it is a shame to ask for so much expense.

He says his charges are not "sour grapes." If they are not, we wonder just what they are. It certainly sounds like "sour grapes" to us.

Mr. Burlage had his own poll watchers at the precincts on election day. At one, according to our information, they even sat in with the workers and judges, which in our opinion, is a real violation. At another that we know of, his poll watchers even stayed around and watched closely while the ballots were being counted. And at still another polling place, we know his own poll watchers did not even get out of their easy chairs to hand a voter a guide ballot. They just sat there languidly in the sun.

He says as many as 41 city officials and employees were at still another polling place. According to our best information, this statement is completely false. But Mr. Burlage says he has pictures to prove it. We wonder, since his workers actually took a picture of one of our employees who was working that day at the polls. He is not employed by the city in any capacity.

Even if city employees were there, they certainly have the right to be, and to express themselves, and to vote. Many, that we know of, were taking a day of annual leave that day, just so they could work at the polls for the candidate of their choice, who incidentally was not Mr. Burlage.

Maybe the charges are not "sour grapes." But they certainly appear to come from a bitter man, grabbing at straws in the wind, in order to attempt to discredit the successful candidates.

We are extremely pleased with the outcome of the Primary, and as far as we are concerned... Nuff said about the election. Perhaps it is time for Mr. Burlage to accept the same philosophy.

The Law And Civic Pride

Just a few weeks ago, we noted how happy we were that the Safety Department and the Council of Garden Clubs, along with the newly-created Beautification Commission of Virginia Beach, had started a war on litterbugs. We were pleased to see signs warning of a fine for littering appear all over the city. We were pleased with the promise of cracking down on violators. We were pleased at how much civic pride was being exhibited in attempting to keep the city clean. But apparently, the war was over before it began. There is nothing we would like more than to be absolutely wrong in this case, but we have the distinct feeling that the entire anti-littering campaign has done little or no good whatsoever.

In the past few days we have made a point of looking at the beautiful median strip on Virginia Beach Boulevard, and we have been appalled at the amount of litter which mars the appearance of the grass and shrubs. And much of it lies within a few feet of the nice signs warning potential lawbreakers. We have looked at the beachfront, and we have seen the same disgusting result of the campaign. We have looked at the city streets. Again we see no appreciable change in the amount of junk and litter all over the place.

We have a great amount of civic pride where Virginia Beach is concerned, and we want to see it as an example of cleanliness and beauty. Many others like us have that same civic pride. Apathy may have something to do with the lack of results of this campaign. We cannot say for sure, but that is the way we feel. Everyone seemed quite fired up at the beginning, but the enthusiasm seems to be on the wane.

Of course, we are certain that it is not only the residents of Virginia Beach who are the litterbugs. We know the tourists are equally responsible. But we must of them some incentive to keep the city clean, by setting a good example.

Then there is the final step, which we now suggest. We would like to see a real crackdown on litterbugs. We would like to see an example made of these offenders. We would like to see them apprehended by Police. We would like to see them arrested. We would like to see them convicted. And we would like to see them pay the fine for the offense. Furthermore, we will be glad to publicize the fact that war has actually been declared on litterbugs, in the hope of not only reducing their number, but also of completely exterminating them, if possible.

We would like very much to drive along the roads and highways in our city and note the lack of litter and the cleanliness. We would like very much to see a clean beachfront. We would like very much to be able to point with pride to our beautiful city. Unfortunately, such is not the case, so far.

We again applaud the work of those who have started the anti-litter campaign, and we congratulate those with enough civic pride to cooperate. We also congratulate our lawmakers for realizing something must be done. Now we would like to see an intensive campaign designed to do something about the problem.

The fact of the matter is that we believe strongly in our right of free elections, and once the voters have had their say, we are satisfied. Anyone who says it is impossible to hold a free, democratic election at Virginia Beach, as Mr. Burlage has implied, is, in our opinion, way off base. And once an election is over, there are always campaign wounds to be healed. It seems a shame that a defeated candidate appears to be so intent upon opening new wounds, instead of trying to patch up those already there. We believe strongly in Mr. Burlage's right to say what he likes, but we certainly do not have to agree with him. By his sound defeat at Virginia Beach, we feel that quite a few voters do not agree with him either.

PERIL OF THE JUNGLE

His Gavel Silenced

We have lost a friend. Countless others have too. His family has lost a father, a husband and a son. Virginia Beach has lost one of its most conscientious, loyal and fair-minded Judges it has ever had. His death has created an ominous void for all of us who knew him, and for all of us whose life was touched by his. Travis Branch has been taken from our midst at the prime of his life, and even before his judicial potential reached full fruition. His hopes and dreams of the future of Virginia Beach reached enormous proportions. We have no doubts that, had he lived, those hopes and dreams would have taken shape, and Virginia Beach would have been a better place for them. In his thirty-four years, everyone who met him was better for having done so.

Travis Branch was made of the stuff that heroes and statesmen are made of. He made light of his accomplishments, but was so proud of his successes where others were concerned.

Our News Editor knew Travis Branch far better than did we. The following are her words.

H. J. L.

Sometimes in our lives there comes a loss so deep, a void so vast there are no words to express it. Now is such a time and the lack of words are no less a barrier to this editorial than the inadequacy of the writer. Yet, on behalf of the many, many friends of Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judge Travis Branch, there are many things that must be said, a grief that must be shared.

One had but to see the large, mourning crowd assembled in final tribute at Charity Methodist Church Sunday afternoon to realize the high esteem the community held for Judge Branch, the wide and indiscriminatory fields from which he drew his friends. The workers stood beside civic leaders, the rich beside the poor, the white beside the black. There were no thoughts of social or financial or racial significance. Only a deep, inconsolable grief for the tragic passing of a young, vital man who had scarcely begun his life's work in guiding and directing the wayward young, of dealing with justice, not by a set of rules, but by the careful study and understanding of the individual.

There were no hasty or patterned decisions in Judge Branch's court. He allowed each case, no matter how heavy the docket, not an allotted time, but the necessary time it took for a full understanding of why the person had been brought before him. He looked not at an offender, but rather inside an offender, handing down a penalty only when he had erased all doubt as to the person's guilt. No decision was ever made without an explanation as to why it had to be made, why the person would, in time to come, benefit by the ruling. He loved and understood the young people with whom he dealt. He knew their problems and frustrations and often carried their worries with him long after he had left the judge's chamber. He earned their respect, never once demanding or expecting it.

There were many, many sides to this remarkable man. He was called friend; not by a select few, but by the masses. To his court he gave truthfulness, fairness, encouragement and compassion. To his law practice he gave knowledge, openness and understanding. To his faith he gave love and devotion. To his city he gave intelligence, honesty and sincerity. To all with whom he came in contact, from all walks of life, he gave of himself, drawing on these personal characteristics to advise, cheer and guide.

His loss is felt, directly or indirectly, by every person within the city. To the many thousands who did not know Judge Branch personally, the loss is felt in the knowledge that his young wife and small children have been deprived of a kind and loving husband and father. To those who knew him well, the loss penetrates far deeper: the station owner who recalls young Travis Branch, then a law student, operating the station while the owner was hospitalized; the parents who relied on his persuasive guidance in preventing their teenage son from making a wrong decision; the couple who placed the future welfare of their children in his hands in the event of the parents' deaths; the man who welcomed him at his door when all other friends seemed to have forsaken the man; the friend whose livelihood was directed toward financial security through his advice and assistance; the unknown number who sought his understanding no matter what the hour; and the many, many more who remember the major and minor problems they faced with him at their side. To these, as to his family, there can be no words of comfort.

There were many things left undone by Judge Branch's untimely death. He had many hopes and dreams for the City of Virginia Beach and especially for its youthful citizens. Despite the alarmingly high number of juveniles who appeared before his court each week, he had a deep faith in the young people, sincerely believing that, given the opportunity, they would develop into responsible adults, capable of meeting and molding their future. He believed that most of the juvenile offenders could, and would, make better lives for themselves if they were out of an inadequate or corruptively influential home environment or off the city streets. He did not want them in a penal institution where they faced the influence of older, less desirable persons. He wanted a place where they might live in home-like surroundings, in a wholesome atmosphere, away from city congestion and temptations, out in the open where they might work off their frustrations and energies by building, digging, cultivating. Judge Branch wanted, above all else, a home for boys, a farm within the Virginia Beach boundaries, for the youth of Virginia Beach. He did not live to build it. But he planted the seed.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:

Allow me to congratulate you and your staff on the improved appearance of the Virginia Beach Sun. The new nameplate, typeface and the reduced size all contribute to this improvement. Your last issue was, indeed, a most attractive paper and was the best looking paper to be published in Virginia Beach in the ten years that I have been a resident.

I would like to say that I have noticed that a great deal of changes have taken place during the past five months. These changes have not all been in appearance, but I have noticed that the editorial page has taken on a tone of seriousness and has attempted to bring to the attention of its readers questions of an important nature. Too often weekly newspapers in a metropolitan area forget that they too have a duty to their readers and ignore controversial subjects. This, I'm happy to say, does not seem to be true with the "Sun."

Again, thank you for the new and improved Virginia Beach Sun and may you have many more years of successful publication. I believe that your newspaper may play an important role in the development of the "new" Virginia Beach.

Sincerely,
Wade J. Duke, Jr.

Dear Sir:

I was privileged to read your Editorial "A Rose By Any Other Name."

The writer had known Pinky Owen for many years and was familiar with his numerous acts of civil responsibility.

Pinky never hesitated to be of service to any cause, and for many years served as President of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne chapter for Crippled Children.

The tribute of naming our new school The Robin H. Owen High School definitely belongs to this "Great Public Servant." Pinky was a kindly, considerate man, and a Christian in every sense of the word.

I truly hope and trust this decision will be the final one.

Sincerely,
H. I. Jaffe

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

A Paradox

By Senator E. L. BARTLETT (D-Alaska)

We are a wealthy nation, the wealthiest in all history. Yet it is a paradox that within our own borders, in the midst of plenty, there should be American citizens as poor, as hungry, as unfortunate as any in the world.

OUR GENEROSITY
We have used our wealth with unparalleled generosity to rebuild Europe and to assist the developing peoples across the world. We have used it to stamp out pellagra and yaws in cooperation with the World Health Service. We have used it to save many millions of people from starvation through our food-for-peace program. Our Peace Corps is bringing encouragement, hope, and friendship to the illiterate and poor across the world.

We are a generous nation. It is time this generosity was harnessed for the benefit of our own unfortunate.

President Johnson recognized the importance of looking after our own unfortunate when he asked the 88th Congress "to move against this enemy," poverty, and to meet it with "the same strength and determination which brought us victory in war."

Congress now has the opportunity to evaluate the success of the War on Poverty Program. We must bear in mind as we review the activities in this field that the problems which create poverty did not come into existence overnight, nor are they going to be eliminated overnight. We must review this program constructively to strengthen and improve its implementation.

WHAT WAR HAS DONE

The War on Poverty efforts are impressive. Already over 200,000 young men and women have volunteered for the Job Corps. Every major city has instituted poverty planning and 500 community action programs were funded by June 30, twice the number originally anticipated.

Operation Headstart, established to reach pre-school children, is in operation. It will bring 600,000 children to Child Development Centers where they and their parents will be prepared to participate more fully in American life.

In the first six months of the program 15,247 Americans asked to become VISTA volunteers. Many more have since sent in their applications. Those selected will work with migrant laborers, on Indian reservations, in urban and rural community action programs, in slum areas, hospitals, schools, and in institutions for the mentally ill and retarded. Some are already doing so.

Michael Harrington has written eloquently of the ironic persistence of "the other America," the America of the poor, in a context of national affluence.

We must work to eliminate this "other America." It is our responsibility to see that 35 million Americans who now live without hope are given the opportunity to improve themselves. We must eliminate what George Bernard Shaw called the worse crime of all—poverty.

Your Faith and You

These days we're living like a heavy toll in emotional distress and mental illness. People are finding it more and more difficult to cope with the pressures of day to day life, for any number of reasons. Some of them may be real, but many are imagined, for people today seldom ever work themselves into a nervous breakdown. Rather, they worry themselves into it.

But there are a number of responsibilities—real enough—which we have to carry if we are to be responsible adults. Sometimes the load of these alone seems so burdensome and gigantic that we give up in frustration. How, then, shall we bear our burdens?

One small suggestion which may be helpful is to be found in an old saying: "Life by the yard is hard; by the inch, it's a cinch." The burdens which seem so unbearable will be reduced to proper size if we break them up into smaller pieces and handle them a piece at a time. That is God's way. That is why He divided the day into minutes and hours. We can manage a minute; we can handle an hour. If we take our troubles one at a time, with God's help, we shall be greater than they.

CIVIL WAR BATTLE AT SOUTHERN 500

DARLINGTON, S.C. — A Civil War battle re-enactment between Confederate and Yankee troops has been awarded to the Southern Festival, in Darlington, as part of the week-long pre-race program attending the annual Labor Day Southern 500 stock car classic at Darlington Raceway.

The announcement, made by Major General E. L. Gehrey, of the Confederate High Command, set Saturday, September 4 for the battle to be known as the "Battle of Darlington." Veteran troops from Maine to Florida will re-enact the engagement that took place 100 years ago.

The action, using authentic guns, uniforms and deployments of 100 years ago, will be a part of the final time trials on the race track for the holiday event.

Assigned to command the "Yankee" forces from Ohio, Maine, Illinois and Indiana is Colonel Joseph Robbins of East Liverpool, Ohio while the Confederate commander will be General J. K. Williams of Marietta, Georgia.

The Southern troops will come from units in North and South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia. More than a hundred of these battle re-enactments have been carried out during the past four years in commemoration of the War between the States that took place 100 years ago.

TIPS FOR TRAILOR SAILORS

Is your trailer too large or too small for your boat? It is a good idea to match your trailer to your boat and car. If the weight of your boat is within 100 pounds of the recommended maximum trailer capacity, get the next larger trailer. Remember you will more than likely put the motor on the boat, fill the gasoline containers, hook up your battery and place additional gear in your boat. This is all added weight.

Here are some pointers that might assist you in matching your trailer to your boat and car.

(1) Are the rollers, bolsters and other contact points adjusted to the boat contour? (2) When making a turn, does any part of the boat or trailer come in contact with the towing vehicle? (3) Do your safety chains have sufficient slack to allow for turns?

Now that you have a trailer-car-boat matching rig, check these points before you start off on your first (or any other) boating excursion: (1) Does your trailer equipment, such as lights, reflectors and brakes, meet state requirements? (2) Are the trailer tires inflated to the correct pressure? (3) Are your tie downs secured? (4) Do all lights work? (5) Is the trailer hitch secured? (6) Are the trailer wheel bearings properly greased? (7) Is all equipment secured and evenly distributed in the trailer?

While underway remember to swing wide on the turns and always use signal lights to warn other drivers. When stopping, allow yourself enough space to avoid causing the trailer to jack-knife on you with a sudden stop.

Upon arrival at the launching site, select a gradually sloping shore to give your trailer tires plenty of traction.

Remember when backing your trailer that when you turn your car left your trailer goes right, or vice versa. Remove your tie downs, tilt the motor, check to see if the drain plug is in and be sure your launching cable is attached to the boat before you launch.

In taking your boat out of the water the procedure is just reversed. Remember accidents don't just happen they are caused.

FOOTBALL CONDITIONING

Is your boy one of the several hundred thousand American youngsters who will soon be "going out" for football at his junior high or high school?

If so, you will be vitally interested in the new six-point joint recommendations of the American Medical Association and the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations that will help to insure that your boy is properly conditioned for this vigorous contact sport.

Beginning with a satisfactory pre-season medical examination, there is no substitute for requiring a standard of physical fitness that assures sufficient strength and endurance, a good level of skill, and acclimation to hot and humid weather, before exposing any individual to the rigors and risks of tackle football.

Following is the AMA-NFHSAA program for readiness of schoolboy gridders for participation:

● The boys should follow faithfully a personal conditioning program during the summer, based on information gained through the school's health and physical education classes plus some specific training for the demands of tackle football.

● At least the first week of practice should be limited to non-contact drill with emphasis on conditioning and fundamentals. Shorts, T-shirts and football shoes are the recommended training uniform in this period because of the heat. The boys also should wear their mouth protectors to begin, to become accustomed to them.

● The second week should include only controlled body contact drills and avoid wide-open play.

● Practice games or game-condition scrimmages, should be prohibited until after at least two weeks of practice.

● A minimum of three weeks of carefully planned practice should precede the first regularly scheduled game.

The two organizations also pointed to two factors that should be considered in schoolboy football:

● Participation in interscholastic football is not a right but a privilege for those who can demonstrate the high level of physical and emotional fitness necessary to play aggressively, skillfully and with sportsmanship.

● Participation in high school football should not detract from keeping up with a broad-based physical education program and from sampling other sports during the off-season.

DORIS PADRICK'S

VIEW of VIRGINIA BEACH

Preserving beauty already established is easier and less expensive than trying to recreate beauty since it has been destroyed. Virginia Beach abounds with a number of beauty spots still untouched. Saving them from the encroachment of progress and a mushrooming population is a task noble but sometimes unappreciated. Those who fight the cause know of what they face—disinterest, apathy, moneyed interests, and unplanned development for profit. Some battles are won; some are lost.

This past week has seen the eleventh annual Lotus Festival celebration. It is still not a big event. But so much has been accomplished, it gladdens the heart of those who sponsor it.

It has been eleven years since the existence of and the possibility of extinction of the rare lotus was brought to the attention of the Cape Henry Woman's Club. Last Thursday the Lotus Gardens were dedicated with proper ceremonies and dignitaries present, and figuratively speaking "the corner stone" was laid. Now the woman's club with the cooperation of the Virginia Department of Conservation and Development can go ahead with more ambitious plans of turning the area into a lovely spot of tranquility and escape from modern life pressures.

Nature often hides its beauty in strange places to be sought out by man. When its treasures are discovered, it is the moral responsibility of those who know its value to preserve and make accessible the unspoiled wilderness to others. As Harold S. Whitehurst, director of Parks, Recreation and Physical Education of Virginia Beach, pointed out at the dedication, "We are the generation who has the natural resources here now. We have to save it for the future generations to enjoy. We cannot let it be lost."

Modern times beset us with noise and crowds and problems. It is said that even insects and animals suffer mental illnesses from overcrowded conditions!

The quieting effect of a lovely lotus blossom floating on slow moving water, the rustle of leaves in the wind, the cool feel of grass under bare feet, the buzz of bees around the flowers—all are more beneficial than a pill or medication.

Virginia Beach might be compared with an energetic teenager—forging ahead with vision but often overlooking time-honored basic necessities for a full life. The responsibility of the city fathers (and mothers) to guide its teen-age city toward maturity often takes many forms. But as the teen-ager eventually learns that good manners and consideration for others makes himself a more contented individual, so the young city is now listening and is keeping its priceless gifts for generations to come.

And we see that it is good.

PUT 'SNAP' IN YOUR SUMMER WARDROBE

Summer's soaring temperatures and stepped-up tempo of activities present special wardrobe problems—many girls find that no matter how carefully they try to plan, they never seem to have enough summer outfits on hand.

One way to beat the problem without breaking the bank: sew your own! A few carefully chosen fabrics and patterns can be multiplied into a seemingly endless parade of costumes for daytime or dress-up wear.

Coordination is the key—but this sensible-sounding word can produce wardrobe results that are as bright and gay as you please. For example, start with a bold, many-colored Madras plaid for a dashingly casual summer suit. Make two blouses: one in crisp white, another in a solid color, "borrowed" from the plaid. Fashion a skirt from the same solid, black or Jamaica shorts from the Madras—and you're on your way to a dazzling array of mix-match informal outfits.

Black and white is a classic summer duo. A stunning costume look could combine several coordinated pieces in solid black or solid white with several others of small black and white checks. Add a dash of brilliant color—in the form of a scarlet red or lemon yellow blouse or jacket—and you'll rate fashion raves.

Coordination is the keynote in patterns, too, with pattern designers seemingly determined to help you pull an entire summer wardrobe out of one pattern packet. McCall's, for example, which has been a leader in this kind of fashion multiplication, has a pattern packet which yields at least seven different summer garments!

A sleeveless coat with interestingly detailed front panel, a classic Chanel jacket, also sleeveless, an easy-fitting shift, sleeveless blouse, slim skirt, slacks and Jamaica shorts can all be mined from McCall's No. 7801, available in both misses and junior sizes.

To make things even easier for the summer fashion planner, almost every pattern in the packet leads a double life. The coat pattern also makes the jacket, the shift pattern makes the blouse, the slacks pattern, stopped short above the knee, makes the trim shorts.

With this kind of coordination, you can keep in the current fashion swim without half trying. For example, you can team jacket and slacks to form the newest fashion entity: the pants suit. In sleeveless form, it looks especially crisp and up-to-date for summer.

But patterning yourself after the current mode takes more than a knowledge of silhouettes: you must also know which fabrics are favored for Summer '68. Sleek corded fabrics have special fashion significance right now: anel whipcord, new and new-looking, combines well with the recently developed non-will plaques of Dacron, cotton or nylon.

Poplin is popular—especially in a crease-resistant cotton and polyester combination. Linens and linen-look fabrics take on brighter, truer tones: blazing orange, grass-green and enamel-blue are a few of the exciting new possibilities. Paisley, in bigger bolder patterns that team daring combinations of pink or blue with brown, looks fresh in summery fabrics. A pink cotton coat with a paisley shift is a stunning possibility with pattern No. 7801.

Don't overlook the importance of accessories in bringing freshness and versatility to a summer wardrobe. Long rope necklaces, reminiscent of the '50s, are favored for the "zing" they bring to simple shifts and A-line dresses. Combine several, in different colors, for a personal touch of pure fashion.

Shoes have a bare, cut-out look that's sheer delight in summer weather; a two-tone pair, chosen to match predominating wardrobe colors, can look right with most of the outfits you own. But even more in summer than in winter, it pays to have several pairs of shoes and to avoid wearing the same pair two days in a row; for maximum foot comfort, many people advocate changing shoes twice a day.

Summer comfort is, of course, half the battle for summer fashion. Whether you make your own clothes or buy them off the rack, favor easy-fitting styles that will help you look and feel better as the temperature mounts (for one thing, they won't crease as fast as tighter garments).

If you pattern yourself after the newest style trends and mix-match clothing and accessories for unlimited chic, you're bound to breeze through summer in style.

PENNY EARNED, PENNY SPENT, PENNY KEPT

VIRGINIA BEACH—For every penny saved, they earned another one. The artists spent here about half the money they earned during the 1965 Boardwalk Art Show.

But artists and the City of Virginia Beach were economically and culturally richer Monday as they left.

Those who reported their earnings disclosed they had sold $31,585.50 worth of art, or slightly more than in 1964.

The 191 exhibiting artists reported spending more than $15,500 at the beach during the show.

Mrs. C. K. Masterson, general chairman, added that some refused to tell the Art Show committee how much they sold and some artists were out of touch.

The city could collect more than $600 in sales tax imposed on artists for the first time.

Art is among taxable articles under the retail sales tax which went into effect June 1.

Donald T. Fantone, sales tax administrator, instructed artists to collect the 3 per cent tax on each sale up to $200. Any amount above that on a single sale is not taxable.

The 191 exhibiting artists reported spending more than $15,500 at the beach during the show.

"We are indeed pleased over the results," Mrs. Masterson said, "and we feel the artists are too."

However, not everything was coming up roses with some artists. Dottie Mella, a Washington professional who paints under the name Domel, said people expected to get paintings for nothing.

She blamed the situation on amateurs who set prices too low and said the show should be divided into two sections: one for novices and one for professionals.

Lost Colony Workshop Courses

MANTEO, N.C. — An opportunity for permanent and summer residents of the Dare Coast—Outer Banks to join the cast and staff of "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama in theatrical workshop-type courses has been announced by the College of the Albemarle at Elizabeth City.

J. Travis Wicker, director of adult education for the area community college, is in the process of organizing five weeks of classes for "Lost Colony" performers and technicians in such subjects as: Choreography and dance production, Stagecrafts (such as scenery design and construction, lighting, makeup and other technical aspects of the theatre, plus the history of drama), speech and voice projection and control for the theatre, and art (painting and drawing).

"We will be very happy to have anybody interested join 'The Lost Colony' cast and staff in these workshop-type courses," Wicker stated. "They may contact me by letter or phone at College of the Albemarle, or 'The Lost Colony' office, Box 68, Manteo," he added.

Wicker said the type of courses offered—"by competent theatre artists"—will depend upon the interest shown. Other courses may be added, if at least 10 persons can be enrolled in each, he explained.

Workshop sessions are planned in the daytime at the Manteo High School and at "The Lost Colony" theatre. Wicker said the registration fee will be only $2.00, and the tuition for each five-week course will be $15 per person.

It is planned to start the courses next week—and not later than July 26.

FUND URGES PUBLIC HELP

VIRGINIA BEACH—The United Community Fund, which raises money each year to help support over 50 community service agencies, began its campaign strategy plans Monday with an organizational lunch and meeting.

The campaign will be held from Aug. 5 to Aug. 19.

Chairmen for the Virginia Beach Borough division of the drive, which will be conducted throughout the Tidewater area, are Michael Savides, manager of the Black Angus and Bob Gay, manager of the Virginia Electric and Power Co.

"We were pleased with the response in last year's United Community Fund campaign, but we hope it will be even more successful this year."

All funds raised go directly back to Virginia Beach community agencies such as the American Red Cross, the King Daughters Hospital, Boys Clubs and Boy Scouts.

Savides urged the public to respond when campaign workers come to call at Virginia Beach businesses.

He said, "These workers are not getting paid. When they come to solicit, it would be unfair to turn them away or put them off, he believes."

The fund will be raised by dividing up businesses into divisions. Division chairmen are:

Hotels and Motels, Richard Kline; Restaurants, Bob Stanton;
Small business firms, Eric Brestrup.

SWIMMING CLASSES

VIRGINIA BEACH—Swim and survive! Due to popular demand, the YWCA has found it necessary to offer an extra class of Advanced Beginners' swimming for boys and girls. Classes will begin July 26 and end on the 30th. They will be held at the Cavalier pool from 9 to 12 N.

To qualify as an advanced beginner, the youngsters must be able to swim 50 feet.

Enroll now! Help your child to water safety through the Y program. Call 428-8228 for an application.

Registrations accepted by mail for prior registrants: Others may register on Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the YWCA office, 303 30th Street.

MEET AT CAVALIER

VIRGINIA BEACH—The board of directors of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce will hold its quarterly meeting here at The Cavalier today and Friday.

Topping the board's agenda will be reports on two of the Chamber's current studies involving the sales tax and industrial facilities financing.

Cat-Like Johnny Mathis Purrs With Warm Success

By HENRY McINNIS

VIRGINIA BEACH—He seems the living embodiment of casual, cool success.

He's his own press agent's dream.

He's 29-year-old Johnny Mathis and he strode in late to his press conference Saturday at the Admiralty Motel mezzanine.

"I was up late last night breaking in my new conductor," he said, looking tired and strained. Despite his ducky, lean appearance, Johnny was obviously paying for a continuous whirlwind of activity that makes a lot of money but also breeds headaches.

He had plopped down to Virginia Beach to croon two concerts Saturday and Sunday night at the Virginia Beach Dome.

His manner was self-effacing to the press. Easy, Natural.

"I couldn't bring the Young Americans with me this time. They had to miss the trip because of an engagement in Wisconsin," he said.

What makes Johnny run? The answer is a love of singing slow ballads in a torchy style that could be regarded as the male complement to Dorothy Dandridge, another well-known Negro entertainer whose fame came not from successful recordings but the 1964 film, "Carmen Jones."

With his husky good looks, sex appeal, and suave composure, Mathis had a few revealing thoughts on nightclubbers:

"I don't like to play club dates. Nightclubs, I believe, are getting to be things of the past. Audiences are sophisticated enough today to want to enjoy a singer or dancer without the interruptions and distractions of waiters."

On the Young Americans: "Working with those kids has been the most rewarding experience of my life. When I walk into a room where they are, I think they represent the spirit of American youth in action."

On the tempo of his songs with the orchestra:

"I'm a singer, not a musician. The sound is important for me."

On his favorite songs: "I really have no favorites. I get infatuated with different ones each week. 'Maria' is a song that represents my type singing."

On singers: "I very much like Leontyne Price, Richard Tucker, Andy Williams and Barbara Streisand. She sings like I do because she never sings a song twice in the same manner."

On screaming: "Usually, my fans don't scream at my concerts. I ask them why not and they say back that it's undignified. I guess I'll have to get myself a guitar."

Mathis has had a phenomenal recording career. He has recorded 26 albums to date, and each has sold more than half-a-million copies and has been awarded 12 gold records—a traditional music industry recognition for sales passing the one million mark.

His nightclub and concert appearances are often sold out and he's booked a year in advance.

His latest album is "The Young Americans," Presented by Johnny Mathis."

The music career came after he was preparing to teach physical education. A native of San Francisco, Johnny made the Big Time when he was booked to sing at a local nightclub.

The appeal of Mathis as he talked good-naturedly with reporters and posed for photos is his blend of wholesomeness with a dash of cat-like grace, likability and a "non-verbal" intensity of feeling.

STATE FUNDS

TO IMPROVE I-64

VIRGINIA BEACH — The State Highway Commission has awarded the City of Virginia Beach almost 3 1/2 million dollars in contracts to improve Interstate 64 in bids opened July 7 in Richmond.

Part of construction contracts totaling $15,722,789, which was awarded by the Commission for 25 projects, Virginia Beach will get $3,496,463 in improvements.

Interstate 64 will have 2.65 miles of grading and two 24-foot lanes of concrete paving from the east city limits of Norfolk to the Chesapeake city limits and a bridge for Route 603 to overpass I-64 at an interchange.

Contractors for the project are E. V. Williams Co., Inc. and Williams Paving Co., Inc. of Norfolk.

HAS PAMPHLETS

Are you having trouble with the elm leaf beetle? Would you like to know how to control lawn insects? Maybe you would like to know about wild turkeys in Southeastern farms and woodlands?

Whatever your problem—whether you live in the country or an urban area—chances are the Department of Agriculture has a pamphlet that would help you, and Senator A. Willis Robertson, Democrat of Virginia, announced today he will cooperate with citizens of his State who would like to receive a pamphlet on some particular subject.

Anyone who is interested may write to the Senator's office in Washington for a list of the titles of the several hundred pamphlets. The recipient could then check for one or more bulletins he or she wants, and return the list to the Senator's office to be forwarded to the Department.

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRONG COMMUNITIES

The parade is over, and Tim is hot, dusty, and his feet hurt. This was his first parade, and somehow it didn't come off as he thought. He didn't expect to be the whole show, but he did think he and his tube would stand out a little. As it happened, he was just "one of the band."

Later, he will realize that if each player weren't just "one of the band" there wouldn't be any band at all. He'll start thinking from there, and the parade will seem a lot better in memory than it does right now. For Tim has a good sense of value, for a boy his age—thanks in part, to the teachings of his church and church school.

Tim will weather his disappointments and march successfully through life, instead of giving up. Will your youngsters be as lucky?

Give your children the chance to go to church school.

MENACE IN THE GARDEN!

What state can match Virginia for the beauty of its flowering plants and greenery? But, a warning — as a recent movie said in its title, "Please Don't Eat the Daisies!"

It is a shock to many people to learn of the toxicity of many of our most popular and commonly-found plants. Of course, you don't find many people going around the shrubbery, but children are notorious for their inquisitiveness in this regard. There is no telling what a youngster may put in his mouth.

According to the U.S. Public Health Service, about 12,000 children each year take poisonous plants into their systems, unaware of the dangers lurking in the beautiful flora.

Many garden plants cause extreme digestive upset when eaten. Among these are parts of the Larkspur, monkshood, autumn crocus, star of Bethlehem, lily-of-the-valley, iris, foxglove, bleeding heart, and Dutchman's breeches. The bleeding heart has been known to kill cattle. Larkspur and foxglove may also be fatal to humans.

Rhubarb is fine in a pie, but be sure it is the stalks you eat, and not the leaf blades. Large amounts of leaf blades can cause convulsions and death.

Many of our loveliest lawn plantings carry a potential danger to our children. All parts of the laurel, rhododendron, and azalea are fatal, as are the berries of dogwood, yew, and box wood. Leaves are also poisonous. Foliage of the yew is even more toxic than the berries. Many children are poisoned by the seeds and pods of the wisteria plant, and the green berries of red sage are fatal.

Watch out for the bean-like capsules of the lovely golden chain. They cause severe poisoning, with a possibility of fatality.

Trees and shrubs to take care with include the cherry (the twigs and foliage release cyanide when eaten) and peach (the leaves contain hydrocyanic acid, a deadly poison). They are especially harmful when dry. Oak foliage and acorns are also poisonous, and black locust brings on a number of symptoms, including nausea and digestive upset.

Wild plants have their share of toxicity, too. Those to keep away from the mouth include jack-in-the-bottle, monardella, may apple, roots, buttercup, and Jimson weed. Extremely dangerous are water hemlock, nightshade, and poison hemlock.

Family Safety magazine, of the National Safety Council, recently had news to say about the dangers of these plants, but was silent concerning the danger of the monardella. However, we've been cautioned enough to take their word for it that the best place for chewing and swallowing is at the dinner table!

Here's hoping that we haven't spoiled anyone's garden/ing joys, and here's hoping also that we can reduce that shocking figure of 12,000 poisoned or dead children a year. It doesn't have to happen.

Sailor Receives Medal

NORFOLK — For rescuing an officer from drowning, an Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force sailor was awarded the Navy Commendation Medal in ceremonies aboard attack cargo ship USS Vermillion at 11 a.m. Friday at the Norfolk Naval Base.

Seaman David P. Colby, 29, of New London, Conn., plunged into the frigid waters of Hampton Roads last January to rescue Ensign Richard A. Fichtelmann, 24, of Minneapolis, Minn.

The officer was climbing a "jacob's ladder" from a small craft along Vermillion's side when the ladder broke. Although entangled in the ladder and suffering minor injuries, Ensign Fichtelmann struggled to the surface. Colby dove 24 feet from Vermillion's main deck into the water and pulled the injured officer to a nearby boat.

Colby received the medal and citation from Captain J. B. Balch, Commander Amphibious Squadron Twelve. Colby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard C. Colby were present for the ceremony.

Vice President Of Time Inc.

NEW YORK — Arthur W. Keylor, husband of the former Frieda Dekker of Virginia Beach, has been elected as one of five new vice presidents of Time Inc., following a meeting of the Board of Directors.

Keylor joined Time Inc. in 1948, serving initially in the Accounting Department. He was appointed Assistant Business Manager of Life in 1961, Business Manager in 1963 and General Manager in 1960. In 1964 he was appointed Associate Publisher of the magazine, in addition to his position as General Manager.

He makes his home with his wife in Bronxville, New York where he serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the Bronxville Community Fund.

PURCHASES CENSUS

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden, local Census Bureau interviewer, will be asking families in the area their intentions to purchase homes, cars, and major household appliances as part of the U.S. Bureau of the Census July Current Population Survey.

The questions on consumer intentions will be asked in addition to the regular inquiries on employment and unemployment asked by the Bureau each month for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor.

STUDENTS HONORED

VIRGINIA BEACH — Four local students of East Carolina College have received grades entitling them for special recognition on honor lists for last spring.

Beverly Ann Kay of 5710 Meer Street, made the dean's list, and on the honor roll were Bryan Lee Bennett of 2346 Pleasure House Road; John P. Fuller, 315 46th Street; and Judith M. Murray of 3800 Edinburgh Drive.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids Without Surgery

Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

"The shortest way to do many things is to do only one thing at a time."—Cecil.

Hello Folks! As we move into the middle of the Summer, I want to tell you of some of the accomplishments of our 4-H club members. Ruth Anne Oliver, of the Bayside 4-H club placed first in the State Home Economics Achievement Award and has won an all-expense paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress to be held in Chicago in November.

Mary Bungard of the Thalia 4-H Club placed first in the State Clothing Demonstration Contest and won a transistorized AM-FM radio. Susan Braun of the Courthouse Senior 4-H club received a blue ribbon in the State Share-the-Fun Talent Contest, and Suzanne Pecosk of the Blackwater 4-H Club received a red ribbon in the State Food-Nutrition Demonstration Contest.

Diane Frost, Faye Frost and Johnny Moulton were members of the Virginia Beach Livestock Judging Team and placed sixth out of 14 teams in the State Livestock Judging Contest.

We are indeed proud of these club members who have represented the city of Virginia Beach so well in State competition. Congratulations are in order for Mary Bungard and Theresa Pecosk who were taken into the Virginia Chapter of 4-H All Stars. Membership in this organization is by selection only and limited to those 4-H club members who have demonstrated outstanding achievements and leadership ability.

We are happy to announce that Mary Bungard and Joe Pecosk will be representing the city of Virginia Beach at the national 4-H Citizenship Short Course to be held July 25-31 at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D. C.

All 4-H club members are eligible for the awards and honors that have been mentioned in this column. You can achieve this by striving to "make your best better" and by helping others to do the same.

There are 5,174 reasons

Every Peugeot built undergoes 5,174 separate inspections before it is cleared for shipment from the factory. Acceptance tests of every material. Hardness tests of functional metal parts. Tolerance control of machined parts. Magnifying of forged and cast parts. Balance of moving parts. Operational tests of component assemblies. Peugeot doesn't overlook a thing. Even something as common as a nut is inspected. The fact is, every part in every Peugeot is checked before and after assembly. This attention to detail is one of the reasons Peugeot has been judged one of the seven best made cars in the world by John Bond, Publisher of Road & Track.

You don't have to take a Peugeot apart to judge its value. Drive it. You'll discover a remarkably responsive engine, 4-speed synchromesh transmission and 3500 worth of "extras" that don't cost a penny extra. Like a solid steel sliding sunroof, stainless steel wheel covers and trim, reclining seats, safety-proofed Michelin X tires and many others. If your present car measures up to Peugeot, don't change. If you have doubts, receive them in a Peugeot 403, 404 or 404 Station Wagon. Even the price will surprise you.

Seaview Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH — Princess Anne County Day will be observed July 24th at Seaview Beach, local resort on Shore Drive at London Bridge. Special events and prize contests are being arranged in honor of the folks who come for this seaside reunion at Seaview. The program starts in the early morning and runs through to closing time.

Seaview Beach is the resort where the word "free" means a lot—there is free bus and automobile parking, a free kiddie wading pool with lifeguards, a free barbecue pit on the beach, free dancing, and free entertainment by the Hot Dog, popular disk jockey, every Sunday.

An improved new lighting system and special security entrance are among the innovations this year that help to make Seaview Beach one of Virginia's outstanding playgrounds.

Overcrowding at the gates has been eliminated completely by reason of the new security entrance, which also allows park officials to safeguard Seaview's patrons and assure their uninterrupted enjoyment of the park's many attractions.

"See you at Seaview."

Summer Shower Of Stars At Dome Saturday Night

VIRGINIA BEACH—The "1965 Summer Shower of Stars," sponsored by radio station WGH, will present a concert at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center on Saturday night with two shows, the first at 7:30 p.m. and the second at 10:30 p.m. followed by a dance.

ACROBATS PERFORM

VIRGINIA BEACH—Oriental acrobats are featured on the outdoor stages at both Ocean View Amusement Park and Seaside Amusement Park this week.

The Shanghai Twins, high wire balancing act, and Chai and Somay, Chinese contortionists, trade places at Tidewater's two famous ocean-front playplaces, for their second week's stay in this area. The Shanghai Twins appear at Ocean View Park; Chai and Somay at Seaside Park. The free acts go on at the same time daily at both parks, 2:30 and 10 p.m., and they will be presented through Sunday.

The Canaries, so named because they hail from the Canary Islands off Spain, will be the featured attraction on the bandstand at Seaside Park for the rest of the summer. They alternate in the air-conditioned ballroom with William Anthony and his Six Fabulous Adrians on Saturdays and Sundays for continuous dancing from 11 a.m. to closing. The weekend schedule: The Canaries from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.; The Adrians, 3-7; the Canaries, 7:30-midnight.

The Adrians also play Monday through Friday afternoons from 3 to 7, and the Canaries every night. Monday nights are for teenagers exclusively, with only soft drinks served.

Ocean View Amusement Park is now offering free parking spaces for the fishermen who patronize its 24-hour-a-day fishing pier. The fishing pier has among its concessions everything a fisherman needs, from a full range of tackle and bait for sale and rent, to a complete hot lunch for the fisherman who wants to make a day of it.

Admission to both parks is free.

$100,000 FASHION AURA HIGHLIGHTS "HARLOW"

Everything has its price today, even an aura; for it cost Joseph E. Levine more than $100,000 to re-create the aura that surrounded Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde star of the 30's, for his spectacular multi-million dollar production of "Harlow," in Technicolor and Panavision, opening Wednesday at the Princess Theatre, through Paramount Picture release.

Famed Hollywood fashion stylist Edith Head was given the assignment of re-creating this aura, described by Webster as an emanation of electric atmosphere, around lovely Carroll Baker, who stars in Levine's picture as the explosive blonde bombshell.

"As far as possible," explained Miss Head recently, while Miss Baker looked on, "We have re-created the feeling of Jean Harlow costumes and accessories. We have endeavored to revivify her aura. The Harlow look was one of luxury, extravagance and feminine allure. As Jean Harlow, Carroll has 64 costume changes and loads of glittering jewels."

"Carroll Baker's Harlow" costumes are not shocker clothes," Miss Head continued. "If they seem scant and bare, they are also beautiful, provocative and daring. They are the clothes of the 30's, which uniquely resemble the fashion look of today, clinging and very feminine."

The shapely Miss Baker, who resembles Jean Harlow in many respects, even to exact measurements (35-24-35), and current recognition as the reigning sex symbol of Hollywood, nodded in agreement and observed cogently: "Jean Harlow was a great star in her day because she was also a trend-setter. Had the topless bathing suit been in vogue in her time, she would probably have been the first to exhibit it publicly, even as she discarded the brassiere on and off the screen."

In her top-starring title role in "Harlow," Miss Baker shares stellar honors with Red Buttons, Michael Connors, Peter Lawford, Angela Lansbury, Martin Balsam and Raf Vallone. Gordon Douglas directed the film from John Michael Hayes' screenplay.

TIPS ON HARVESTING THE VEGETABLE GARDEN

It's important to harvest vegetables at their prime stage of maturity for the best eating quality. It is easy to know when some vegetables are at top notch condition, for you can judge by size. Beets should be 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches across. Sometimes, as a result of dry weather or low fertility, beets may age without getting any larger than 2 inches in diameter, but small old beets can usually be recognized by the wide necks.

Squash is another vegetable that can be judged fairly well by size. The Summer Crookneck and Straightneck varieties are usually at the best stage when they are from 4 to 5 inches long. The little white bush scalloped squash, sometimes called cymbling, should be picked when very small, around 2 1/2 inches across.

Gardeners with considerable experience have very little difficulty selecting sweet corn at its best stage of maturity. Gardeners who are just learning, though, seem to have a good deal of trouble. Sweet corn is just right for cooking when it is in the milky stage before the contents of the kernel become semi-fluid. The kernel should break under moderate pressure of the thumbnail. The silks should be brown and the husks tight.

While learning to select corn at the proper stage of maturity the beginner should pull the husk down a bit to check the kernel.

After he has learned to select ears by the feel of the husk and the appearance of the silk, he should not pull the husk down, as this damages ears that are not ready to pass.

Small bunch spring onions are easy to select as you can judge them by size. A good time to pull onions for mature bulbs however, is when about half the tops bend over, or the leaves have turned a greenish-yellow.

The proper stage of maturity for most of the leaf and fruit type vegetables is usually easy to judge and you should pick them when they are at the stage that you like best.

LADY CAMPERS GET SPECIAL ADVICE

It's okay, girls...to take to the woods, and you don't need a male escort to enjoy it.

At least that's the opinion of Miss Carol Lane, Women's Travel Director for Shell Oil Company, who receives a number of inquiries each year about the advisability of women going on camping trips without a man along.

A camping trip can be a wonderful change of pace for working women and college girls, and it is perfectly safe as long as a few simple rules are followed, Miss Lane says.

Rule number 1, she advises, is to stay at supervised camping areas and always check in with the forest ranger in charge. "If you tell him you are unescorted and novices at camping, he'll be more than willing to help."

Rule number two, as the Boy Scouts say, is to be prepared. "Take along all the equipment you need to be comfortable and to handle emergencies; leave everything that you don't need at home."

"But most important of all, be prepared mentally to enjoy yourself."

"Don't let small things like bugs, sand in your shoes or smoke in your eyes dampen your spirits. Relax, enjoy the sunshine and fresh air. Go hiking, horseback riding, rock hunting or swimming."

P.A. Historical Society

VIRGINIA BEACH — A called meeting of the board of governors and officers of the Princess Anne Historical Society was held at the home of the president, M. F. Fogler, early this week.

The meeting was called in order to solidify plans for the future of Pembroke House which was recently deeded to the Society by Alfred Cistola of the Terry Corp. It was voted to give Mr. Cistola an honorary membership in the Society.

Plans were made to authorize John Moore to preserve the historical home and to halt deterioration. Moore will also preserve the Society's house at Wolfenbutel. The preservation methods on both houses will be under the supervision of Judson King of the Historical Society.

The general meeting of the Society will be held in the fall when restoration plans will be made.

CITY COUNCIL OK'S $1.5 MILLION BONDS

by Henry McInnis

VIRGINIA BEACH — The sale of $1.5 million in utility and general obligation bonds through negotiations, rather than through competitive bidding, was approved Monday by City Council.

The completion of the sale of $2,850,000 in school construction bonds to the State School Bond Authority, which offered to take the bonds at a net increase rate of 3.30 per cent was adopted by Council.

The J. C. Wheat and Co., according to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, the city's financial advisor, is negotiating sale of the $1.5 million in bonds.

This figure includes $1 million for water and sewer improvements and $500,000 for Lynnhaven Inlet improvements and some city buildings.

Resolutions authorizing the sale of these bonds fixed the net interest on the utility bonds at 3.30 per cent and that on the general obligation bonds at 3.50 per cent.

The bond market is up, said Hatchett, and he believes the city is receiving the best possible interest rates through negotiations. The voters of Virginia Beach approved the issuance of the bonds certified for sale by City Council's action.

Another $2,150,000 in school construction bonds were also voted by the electorate in last spring's referendum.

When the remaining bonds will be sold was left unanswered. City Council requested Circuit Court to validate the bonds when their legality was uncertain because of a suit pending in a federal court to reappportion City Council.

Support of plans to develop Rudee Inlet as a marine center was given by City Council.

It appropriated $53,000 for the Rudee Inlet Authority to cover the cost of picking up options on some land at Lake Rudee.

In 1963 appropriations the Council provided for $65,000 for the authority to begin land acquisition for a marina and other proposed facilities.

The authority, however, has been unable to condemn some land it seeks because of a court ruling forced by property owners whose land the authority wants to condemn.

The court ruling is being appealed. A resolution was approved asking for the State Highway Department to program a proposed second bridge over Lynnhaven Inlet for federal highway construction aid.

The city would have to pay only 15 per cent of the total cost if the Highway Department and the U.S. Bureau of Roads approve the request.

City officials have been pressing the new structure for several years because traffic is bottlenecked at the present two-lane bridge as four lanes of traffic are funneled over it.

There have been a high number of accidents on the bridge. Council, despite one objection from an attorney for Larkspur residents, passed a controversial rezoning in that area of Virginia Beach.

The residents opposed rezoning land on Holland Road for service station use, but approved other zoning changes for which an agreement has been worked out with developers.

The changes shift commercial zoning from Princess Anne Road in front of Larkspur to Holland Road in the rear.

Any service stations built on Holland Road must be of colonial design.

This was the stipulation put on the rezoning by Councilman Swindell Pollock.

The City Planning Commission was overruled by Council on the type residential zoning in front of Larkspur after Pollock requested the land be zoned in the highest residential category.

The Council commended District Boy Scout Executive, Bill King, who will soon leave the area to work in Washington, D.C. in a greater capacity with the Boy Scouts. He was thanked for the excellent job he has done here.

Man Killed, Two Injured In Sun. Wreck

VIRGINIA BEACH — A head-on collision which killed a young Portsmouth man and critically injured another Sunday north of Creeds became Virginia Beach's 11th traffic fatality for 1965.

The victim was identified by police as Robert Payne Jones, 21, of 2775 McLean St., Portsmouth, a passenger who died after suffering serious head injuries and a broken right leg.

He died at DePaul Hospital shortly after the accident, which occurred about 2:30 p.m.

Jones was a passenger in a car driven by John E. Pretlow, 22, of 1532 Hawthorne Drive, Chesapeake.

Pretlow was in satisfactory condition (Monday) at Norfolk General Hospital where he was treated for multiple cuts and possible chest injury.

Driver of the second car, Mrs. Loyce G. Dudley, 51, of Back Bay Station, also was admitted to the Virginia Beach Hospital. Police said her right leg was fractured and she had multiple cuts.

Police Sgt. Clark Whitehurst and patrolman A. D. Henderson said the cars collided head on on a straight stretch of Princess Anne Road about 3,000 feet north of Pungo Ferry Road.

Investigating officers said the eastbound Pretlow car swerved to the opposite lane to avoid striking the incoming Dudley vehicle.

The Dudley car also swerved into the westbound lane seconds before the impact, police said.

Jones was an apprentice boiler-maker at Norfolk Naval Shipyard. A native of Roanoke Rapids, N.C., he lived here four months.

He was a son of Walter and Mrs. Bessie Starke Jones and husband of Mrs. Barbara Stanley Jones.

He was a member of Roanoke Rapids Baptist Church.

Besides his widow and parents, surviving are a son, Robert Payne Jones Jr. of Portsmouth; a brother, Walter I. Jones of Weldon, N.C.; four sisters, Mrs. Robert Griffin and Mrs. Howard Moody of Roanoke Rapids and Mrs. Wilton Bennett of Emporia.

The body was taken to Snellings Funeral Home and will be sent to Rowe Funeral Home in Weldon for a funeral service and burial.

Mrs. Dudley was charged by police with reckless driving and Pretlow was charged with manslaughter.

TRAILER PARK ZONING STALLS, ISSUES SETTLED

by Henry McInnis

VIRGINIA BEACH — Action was postponed by City Council Monday on a trailer court zoning request after a stormy session over the issue from Wilson Chaplin, the motel owner.

The application was for R. and J. Inc.'s permission for a zoning change and use permit for 22 acres on 19th Street extended for a trailer park.

Planning Director F. Mason Gamage said the commission recommended approval.

Then, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett said the applicants were friends of his, and he would like the matter postponed until water and sewer services could be worked out.

City Treasurer V. Alfred (Jack) Etheridge protested any delay.

He said that he and High Constable R. R. McChesney had an interest in the property, that the granting of the permit hinged on the availability of water and sewage and a delay was unnecessary.

At that point, Chaplin rose to say that he sought to have the same property zoned for a trailer park a few years ago but was turned down.

He and Gamage had a heated exchange until it was cut off by Lynnhaven Councilman James Darden.

"I don't know if this does any good," Darden commented. "I recommend the matter be delayed."

A contract for constructing a jail addition was awarded to F. A. Duke, Inc. of Portsmouth at $194,228.

The jail must be transformed to colonial style to conform to the architecture of future buildings at City Hall, the council said.

The council also approved a building committee report on the city hall area which calls for colonial architecture throughout, the relocation of the volunteer fire department and Masonic lodge, both on city property, and the erection of an administration building as the first phase of a long-term construction project.

The resignation of C. M. Teets as head of the highway department was accepted with regret. Teets plans to enter the contracting business.

The council voted to ask federal aid for a second bridge over the Lynnhaven Inlet.

Councilmen were told that the acquisition of rights-of-way for Independence Boulevard and for Route 559 through Camp Pendleton is almost completed. Both projects should be ready for bids in a matter of weeks.

The council deferred until its next meeting action on a request by the newly formed Sandbridge Surfing Association for the establishment of a 2,000-foot surfing strip at Sandbridge.

A resolution was adopted by Council in honor of the late L. Travis Branch, Judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court and Assistant Judge of the Municipal Court. The resolution read:

WHEREAS, the Creator, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to take from our midst, L. Travis Branch and

WHEREAS, his untimely demise has taken from our City an able jurist who was dedicated in the position to which he was appointed, and

WHEREAS, in the performance of his judicial duties, he had always displayed a deep concern for the people, especially the young, to whom it was his duty to administer justice under law, and

WHEREAS, his sincerity, fairness and compassion from the bench has been a stabilizing influence in the conduct of youth of our City, and

WHEREAS, he was not only conscientious in his official duties and unselfish with his time, but he was held in high esteem by all who his life had touched, especially his associates, staff and the entire community, and

WHEREAS, the Council of the City of Virginia Beach is deeply grieved by his death and laments the great loss to our community in his passing.

Va. Beach Driver Kills Local Pedestrian, Flees

by Henry McInnis

VIRGINIA BEACH — A 37-year-old pedestrian was killed Friday night on Virginia Beach Boulevard when a car driven by a local man struck him and the driver fled the scene of the accident.

Dead after suffering a broken neck and severed spinal cord was Junior Edward Ridings, of 1428 Southern Boulevard.

Charged with manslaughter, leaving the scene of the accident in which a person was killed and reckless driving was Buddy Wallace Lemaster, 28, of 223 Delaware Ave.

The accident occurred at 8:35 p.m., police said, when Lemaster was traveling west on the Boulevard and hit Ridings, who was believed to be walking or standing on the traveled part of the highway.

The pedestrian was thrown to the right shoulder and was probably killed instantly. Lemaster's 1964 sedan was not insured, police stated in a report.

Virginia Beach police said Lemaster fled the scene but was later apprehended.

John Campbell Cowan investigated the accident, which happened about 40 feet west of Ralph Whitaker's Service Station.

Another serious accident happened about 4 p.m. Saturday. Critically injured after driving a stolen vehicle from Norfolk was a Norfolk youth, Riley Manley, 18, of the 1800 block of Canton Ave.

Police said Manley suffered skull fracture, facial cuts and a broken right leg when the car he was driving sideswiped another and struck two trees on Indian River Road near Elbow Road.

A Rt. 2, Virginia Beach man, Linwood L. Whitehurst, the driver of the other car, was not injured, police said.

FBI Will Train Local Policeman

VIRGINIA BEACH — Captain Richard C. Davis of the Virginia Beach Police Dept. will attend the 76th session of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy at Washington, D.C.

This announcement was made by Police Chief James E. Moore and L. M. Walters, special agent in charge of the Norfolk office of the FBI.

Chief Moore received a personal letter from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, who extended an invitation to Capt. Davis to attend the 12-week course which begins Aug. 16.

Capt. Davis has been with the Virginia Beach Police Department since May 1960 and is now in charge of the Det. Precinct.

He was formerly with the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police for seven years.

The FBI Academy was established in 1935 to train law enforcement officers and executives in police work.

Chief Moore said Davis will be the fourth Virginia Beach police officer to attend the Academy.

Capt. Davis and his wife, Patricia, reside at 1736 Wellstone Rd., and have three children.

Marshall New City Attorney

VIRGINIA BEACH — City Council Monday named a new city attorney. He is Harry Taylor Marshall, a 47-year-old lawyer formerly in the Marines.

In appointing Marshall to the city's top legal post, Council also voted to raise the salary of Stanley A. Phillips, who will remain as Assistant City Attorney.

Phillips has been Acting City Attorney since George W. Vokes resigned the post for personal business reasons two months ago.

Associated with the James and Consolve law firm since March 15 he previously was with Wolcott, Wolcott and Payne in Norfolk for two and a half years.

A native of Charlottesville, Marshall earned his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Virginia.

He was called into active duty in the Marine Corps in 1941, when he was attending law school.

The new city official was a legal officer a large part of his time in the service. The Marine Corps sent him back to law school after World War II.

He and his wife, Jean McKella Marshall, and their three children live in Lake Shores here.

Money Finalizes Lynnhaven Drive

LYNNHAVEN — Working itself out of a job this week is the Lynnhaven Waterways Improvement Association.

The association was begun 21 years ago to make more suitable for navigation Lynnhaven waterways. They were turning quickly into mud flats.

Obstacles to the association's goals were continually popping up but the federal government in June moved a dredge into the waterways and soon cleared the way for safe passage through the bay.

Work is at last underway since money became available in the amount of $1.5 million for the dredging project.

The money put the association out of business, and it was happy to fold its tent and go home after a job well done.

This week it will split the $500 balance evenly between Virginia Beach Beautification Association and the Princess Anne Historical Society.

Harry McCoy, lawyer for the association, said:

"The project is accomplished and we have nothing more to do. This is a wonderful example of what can be done by a group of citizens sincerely interested in the community."

McCoy has been with the project from the beginning in 1944.

Funds to keep the association fiscally above water came from groups and individuals who made voluntary contributions.

The outside channel, a turning basin and an inside channel linking Broad Bay and the inlet will be dredged.

Public marinas will be built in compliance with federal regulations.

A prime mover from start to finish was Benjamin Burroughs, an insurance man who served as co-chairman through the years.

The late Judge Floyd Kellam, who was succeeded as chairman by his brother, Judge Richard Kellam, was the first chairman and was appointed in 1944.

OCEANA JETS COLLIDE OVER PACIFIC OCEAN

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Colliding at 19,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean Tuesday were two planes based at Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach.

They were on a training mission from the Carrier Kitty Hawk.

Three of the four men aboard were rescued and the other is missing, the Navy said.

Additional aircraft and ships are being ordered into the search for the missing man in an area about 70 miles southwest of San Diego.

The two A-6 light attack jet bombers collided while attempting to rendezvous for a refueling mission, the Navy said. Four parachutes were seen descending.

Rescued from the sea and treated for minor injuries aboard the Kitty Hawk were Lt. Cmdr. George B. Ball, Lt. (jg.) Frank Wagner and Lt. Cmdr. John N. Spertz.

Missing is Lt. Alex Mallard. All are from the Norfolk area.

The planes were from squadron VA-5 of the Atlantic Fleet.

NEW MAIN FOR BAY ISLAND

VIRGINIA BEACH — A new city water main extended to Bay Island this week may be the solution to that area's continuing problem of low water pressure.

What may well have been the worst drought in three summers on Bay Island plagued about 75 homes which were without city water last weekend.

The island for years has been at the end of the city water flow which originates at Norfolk, goes to Virginia Beach Borough and through Fort Story and Seashore State Park.

Residents of the island, where there are about 75 homes ranging in value from about $25,000 to more than $50,000, have complained that water pressure there has dropped seriously on summer weekends since last summer.

Several said last weekend was the worst, and some had to go swimming at a pool on the island in lieu of taking showers. Bath schedules have generally been fouled up on weekends as water barely trickled to some homes.

A crew from the City Public Utilities Department was on the island today, testing a new water transmission main extended east along Shore Drive-out of Norfolk, which supplies city water here.

A spokesman for the department said officials are hoping to get water in the new line today or Wednesday to solve the water problem.

Married Couple Recent Art Exhibitors

by Mac Tippe

VIRGINIA BEACH — Newcomers to the recent Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show were a local husband and wife team of exhibitors born and raised in the Tidewater area—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brittain of Williamsburg.

Raymond Brittain is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling L. Brittain of Madison Street in Portsmouth. Mrs. Brittain is the former Marilyn Beasley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm F. Beasley of West Park View, Portsmouth.

Both were graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School but didn't meet until entering the Maryland Art Institute in Baltimore.

Raymond, after serving three years in Belgium and France during World War II, entered the Maryland Art Institute and completed four years of art training, majoring in illustration. He had studied art with Ocheltree of Norfolk at his studio on Batecourt street many years ago.

Marilyn studied with Mrs. Bertha Fanning Taylor at the age of 15, after which she attended the University of Georgia Fine Arts school, and finished her art training at the Maryland Art Institute, majoring in interior decorating.

The Brittains, with their two children—a boy and a girl, make their home in the "Queens Lake area" in Williamsburg. They designed and built their modernistic home which features a large art studio with walls of glass from floor to ceiling which may be opened to a sun deck so they may sketch or paint indoors or out.

Raymond teaches art at the 20th Century Gallery in Williamsburg. Specializing in portraits, he has painted many of school personnel, superintendents and principals in the Portsmouth school system. One is of Harry A. Hunt, former superintendent in this area which now hangs in the lobby of the Harry Hunt Jr. High School. Another is of Mrs. Brittain's grandfather, Frederick Beasley, which hangs in the Administration Building of the Frederick Military Academy.

NEW MAIN FOR BAY ISLAND

Pressure in the past has been dependent on a water tank at Seashore State Park. When this tank is low, pressure is down, a city official said.

Officials of former Princess Anne County arranged to get the water to Bay Island through the park about six years ago when developers learned that the water there was not potable.

There have been many Lunu parties but have you ever been to a ship-wreck party?

Saturday night I attended the annual ship-wreck party at the Bow Creek Country Club.

The party started with cocktails and followed with buffet dinner, which consisted of everything your heart could desire in food.

The guests were in costumes carrying out the ship-wreck motif. One of these costumes I felt so clever was that of Elmer Anderson—black bow tie, white coat, white shirt with studs, black cummerbund and black dress shoes.

By now, I am sure you have figured out that he had no pants on—just little check underwear shorts!

His pants no doubt were used for a sail on a boat to help them make shore!

Guests in costumes were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Shephard, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Commander, Paul Goldman, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Manny Weinberger of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weinberger.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Lohring, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Roper and Mr. and Mrs. Buck Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marchione, John Zeigls and Miss Sandra J. Bruno. Edward Leggio, Frank Marchione, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Postove, Miss Kathy Cottle and Dane Dubinsky.

After cocktails and dinner, the guests gathered in their own groups at the different tables centered around the dance floor.

Stanley Hoffman moved from table to table and carried a clothes rack on a pole with ladies' unmentionables hanging on it.

Seated at the tables were: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Luke, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gales, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Childers and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Leeb.

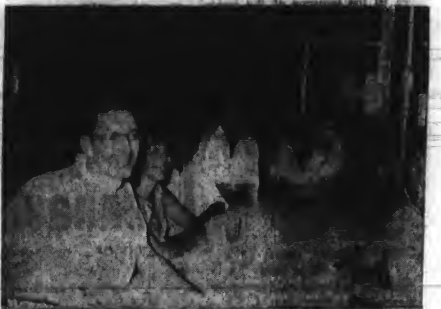

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Rottler, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Lettman and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Swerskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Laibstein, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karp, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Black and Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Cohen.

In the 1880's St. Vincent's Hospital on Church Street was a haven for Norfolk's sick and ailing. H. D. Oliver had been known for 15 years at that time.

The forerunner of today's modern St. Vincent DePaul Hospital stood for many years on Church Street. It grew and expanded as the city's needs increased. H. D. Oliver was also growing and establishing a tradition for detailed and respected handling of the communities funeral and burial needs.

Today, DePaul is a modern well equipped hospital in another part of the city. H. D. Special Events Featured At Local Amusement Parks

The circus is at the beach in Tidewater Virginia. Two more free acts are featured at Ocean View Amusement Park and Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, this week. It's part of the summer schedule which brings a major circus attraction to each amusement park every week during the summer.

Don Rogers and Dolores, "The Ambassadors of Variety," are at Ocean View Park, Norfolk. Their specialty is juggling, not only with Indian clubs, but also with such unusual items as beach balls, hoops, parasols, hats and tamborines. They are also skilled riders and stunts on the unicycle, the one-wheeled bicycle which most people would think it a miracle to be able to balance themselves on, let alone do tricks on.

Miss Corinne, highwire aerialist whose specialty is the daring "cloud swing," is the featured circus act at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach. The performers at both parks appear on beautiful trophy will be awarded the big outdoor stages twice a day, 2:30 and 10 p.m., through Sunday.

Headline special events which are annual fixtures at both parks, such as the Miss Ocean View and Mrs. Ocean View bathing beauty contests, are now in preparation and dates will be announced soon. A new contest, selecting the Teenage Queen of Seaside Amusement Park, will be held at the park on August 15 at 4 p.m. The Canaries, Spain's answer to the Beatles, will appear in person and judge the teenage contest. Cash and a winning contestant. Further details are to be announced. Dancing in the air-conditioned ballrooms at both parks features live music. The Canaries, Spanish imports making their American debut at Seaside, will continue to reign on the bandstand there throughout the season, assisted by William Anthony and the Six Fabulous Adrians.

At Ocean View Park the music is also live—and lively—furnished by the Pop Tops and Fantastic Footnotes. At both ballrooms there is dancing every night and jam sessions all day Saturday and Sunday.

Continuing attractions at Ocean View Amusement Park include the Indian Village with its educational activities and twice-an-hour demonstrations of knife and tomahawk throwing; and the fishing pier which has everything the fisherman needs—except the fish, you have to catch them for yourself—and stays open 24 hours a day. Admission to both parks is free.

Chairmen's Meeting
VIRGINIA BEACH — The quarterly meeting for Virginia Beach Area Recreation Chairmen will be held on August 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Recreation Office located at Union Keenepville High School.

The status of the current baseball program and policies governing the financial assistance to be received will be discussed. Information will also be given on new programs for the fall season.

ROSE SOCIETY

NORFOLK — "Spraying Every Week To Ten Days" a must for "Summer Care" in the program of rose culture, is one of the answers given by a panel of rosarians, Mrs. R. J. Cross, Dr. M. I. Kriecher, Charles Turrisi and Fred Wallace, recently, at a meeting of the Tidewater Rose Society held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Overton in Chesapeake.

The panel held a question and answer period, giving constructive help in the warding off of rose diseases.

"Water is the most important consideration. Each rose bush needs three to five gallons a week. In weeks when rainfall is less than an inch it is necessary to provide adequate water for the roots. Water around the base of your plant to keep the foliage dry and avoid black spot."

The Overtons 400 rose bushes with their beds attractively outlined in brick, surrounding a brick enclosed pool and fountain, overlooking the Elizabeth River, provided the forty members and guests with a very enjoyable afternoon.

Mrs. Overton and Mrs. J. E. Eller, Sr. of Portsmouth were hostesses for this event.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Noisy — But Comforting

In recent weeks, we have heard nearly everyone we have met comment in some way about airplanes. And most of the comment has concerned noise. Even some of the service personnel we have encountered have had something to say about it. But before we get anyone's fur up, let us set the record straight. . . . We are not bothered by the noise the planes make as they pass over just about every section of Virginia Beach. In fact, to us, it is somewhat of a comforting sound.

We have to admit, however, that less than six months ago, when we first returned to Virginia Beach, the sound of many jets was somewhat disconcerting. In fact, it took a little doing to learn to sleep through it. We remember coming straight off the bed horizontally the first few times a jet came over our house on final approach to NAS Oceana in the middle of the night. Apparently now we have learned to sleep through it rather peacefully. Where we had lived in Richmond, the sound of any kind of plane was an exception rather than the rule, and when we did hear one somewhere off in the distance, we knew it was heading either to or from the commercial airfield there or simply passing over on the way to somewhere. But here at Virginia Beach, not hearing planes just about all the time would be the oddity. We have learned to suppress all conversation as one passes directly overhead, then pick up right where we left off as soon as the sound abates. We have even learned to follow the fast jets with our eyes, looking ahead of the sound. Our young daughter still delights in hearing one of them and rushes to the nearest window each time a plane approaches. Even she has received a liberal education. She was frightened practically out of her little skin when we first moved here.

Before we digress any further, let us return to the reason that the planes don't bother us. And this is certainly a serious reason.

Modern Camping

In years past, camping out meant really "roughing it." It meant a hike in the woods to find a suitable campsite, sleeping on the hard ground in a tent, fighting mosquitoes and the elements, cooking over an open fire, and generally "returning to nature." Such is not the case today. Camping has become big business. There is hardly a camper left who could carry all of the modern equipment necessary. The hike in the woods has been replaced by vehicles of every description to convey the camper to the appointed spot. The camper either sleeps in the same vehicle, especially designed for that purpose, or he rents a comfortable cabin, completely equipped. There is either an electric stove in the cabin or the camper takes along a little gas-burning camp stove. And at most campsites provided by someone or other, there are sanitary facilities, as well as hot and cold running water, a place to purchase ice, soft drinks and sandwiches, recreational facilities, laundry facilities, and other facilities unheard of just a few years ago.

In short, camping out today means more of a pleasant vacation than it used to mean. Furthermore, there is a great deal of money gained from the camping business. In many places, including Virginia Beach, automobiles have been provided for the State. The lack of space, however, particularly right here at Virginia Beach, is becoming a serious problem. Even Sandhollow Park has had to turn

The world is in quite a state today. There is tension in so many different parts of the globe, particularly in Southeast Asia. Whether we approve or disapprove of the hot war now going on in Viet Nam is of little importance to us today. The fact that the war is being fought is enough, and the fact that our government is committed to that war does concern us. As long as that commitment exists, the war there will go on. As far as we are concerned, patriotic Americans everywhere should accept this fact, whether they believe in the cause or not.

Thus the planes enter the picture. We do not know for sure where the planes we hear daily are going or coming from. It makes little difference. We don't really want to know. We are not even certain that there has been stepped up activity in the air over Virginia Beach recently, but we have become more aware of those planes as the crisis in Viet Nam has increased. No matter how much noise those planes make during the day or during the night, we feel comforted by the thoughts that our country is protected, and that we are ready to meet any challenge. We really do not hear the noise as noise. We hear it as the first line of defense for America, and that is very important to us today and every day. We hear it as a challenge to the captive millions who would try to destroy that defense. We hear it as a warning to the Communist world. We hear it as clear knowledge that our fighting men are trained to meet any responsibility they must. And we hear it as a promise that our children may grow up in a free world, perhaps someday, free of war and crises.

We suggest that the next time you hear planes and the noise they make, you think of these reasons for the planes being there and making that noise. It won't ease the ear-splitting sensation, but it helps the noise become softer music to the ears.

The Bayside Businessmen's Association, at a recent meeting, has taken note of this problem, and has asked the Department of Recreation and Parks to look into the problem, particularly since the city is so interested in promoting tourism at Virginia Beach.

We are aware of the problem this presents. We know the great pains that must go into such a study, but we agree. We hope more campsites can be found at Virginia Beach. It should be another shot in the arm to the tourist industry here.

The Association has suggested the possibility of seeking acreage at Camp Pendleton for this purpose. It states that it seems to be ideal for purposes of camping, and hopes it can be acquired in some way, perhaps by leasing. We have been to Camp Pendleton. It is a beautiful place and seems suitable for camping when it is not being used by the Government. And it is not used too often for the military. Perhaps the Association is correct. Camp Pendleton may be an excellent location if something can be worked out. But, if not, we hope that something can be done, and that additional campsites can be found at Virginia Beach. No, camping is not what it used to be, but more and more people are enjoying camping out each year. We hope that Virginia Beach can take advantage of this additional form of tourism.

The Center Of Activity

Because the city of Virginia Beach has grown so much so quickly, and because the growth developed faster than the planning could handle it, the city is now faced with a unique problem. Virginia Beach is a large metropolitan city, with no center of activity.

We have been quite concerned with the fact that the majority of citizens of this, the world's largest resort city, do not have the feeling of belonging. Often we have commented on this. Probably one of the major reasons that the residents of the city are just interested in their own particular area is that there is no centralization of anything.

In most cities which have grown through normal attrition, there is a hub, so to speak, from which all things have spread. This is not true in Virginia Beach, mostly because the growth was forced upon us so fast that the city has not had time to catch up to itself. In fact, it may take as much as a generation to accomplish this. But it must come. We look forward to the day that there will be a real center of the city, where business, industry, culture, and the entire economy will have its nucleus. We feel that the time to plan for this center is now.

Even the operation of the government of the city is not centralized. There are offices in each borough, as well as the City Hall in Princess Anne Borough. And the far removed seat of government presents another difficult problem. Business and industry, including offices of professional men, are everywhere, each serving relatively small areas. Granted there are many shopping districts, and there are fine stores in them, but nothing is centralized for the entire city. More shopping centers are being planned and one huge one is already under construction. But they will do no more than serve the residents of their own areas.

What we would like to see is a real center of activity, although we are not certain where it should be. Boundary lines are pretty well drawn now. For the most part the area to the north of Virginia Beach Boulevard is entirely developed, both commercially and with residences. To the south of the Boulevard there is still a great deal of open land and farm land, but housing developments and business establishments are beginning to eat away at that. We hope there will always be plenty of farm land available in the city, since agriculture is still an important part of our economy. Where then, can the center of the city be? Two suggestions have been given to us when we have asked the question.

The area around Hilltop on Laskin Road has been suggested, mostly because there is still a goodly amount of open land there. It is certainly accessible, but so far, there has been little or no evidence of even the embryonic stages of a center of activity there. The other suggestion, we believe, has a great deal of merit. Very possibly the center of the city will develop around the new Pembroke Shopping Center. Although the area to the north of it is almost completely developed residentially, the area to the south offers great potential. Accessibility is an important factor, and this area does fill the bill. Interstate 64 will pass nearby, Virginia Beach Boulevard is already there, and the new Independence Boulevard will go right through. The area seems to qualify rather well.

Regardless of where the real center will be, there must be one, or the city will not be a metropolitan municipality. We are sure that much thought has already been given to the problem, but we hope that some real shirtsleeves rolled-up work can soon be done to find a site and to begin an actual center of activity for the city of Virginia Beach. If and when the day comes, then we feel that the city will be even more desirable for everyone.

The Mentor Of Many

At its recent meeting, Virginia Beach City Council publicly commended a man whom we feel exceptionally worthy of praise. The praise for this man is now recorded in the official minutes of the Council, but we feel that our expression of gratitude for his fine work should not simply stop there. For the tremendous influence that he has had on the lives of so many Virginia Beach youths in recent years, we wish to thank Bill King.

In the four years that Bill King has served as the District Scout Executive for Virginia Beach, more than eight thousand young boys have been embraced by scouting, thereby offering eight thousand potential good citizens of tomorrow to the community. In those same four years, Boy Scouts in this city have increased their ranks by almost unbelievable proportions. The ranks have nearly tripled, from 1600 to 3900. And that is not all. In 1961, The City of Virginia Beach won national acclaim for winning the National Championship in Scouting. In 1962 and 1963, the Boy Scouts of Virginia Beach won additional honors by placing first in the Region, a region that embraces nine states. We know this remarkable record could never have been possible without the guidance and leadership of Bill King.

Now he has been assigned to further Scouting duties in the Washington, D. C. area, and we shall certainly miss him. Two of his closest friends, Joseph T. Crosswhite, Jr., Chairman of the Virginia Beach District, B.S.A., and Fred W. Isaacs, Jr., Past Chairman of the District, asked Council for the resolution expressing gratitude for King's service rendered and for his invaluable and inestimable work in the moral and physical upbuilding of the youth of Virginia Beach. Council concurred, and so do we.

Your Faith and You

It was a hot, dusty day down on the farm. Boys in the orphanage, including me, were chopping weeds in a ditch-bank. I looked out into the field in front of me, where an old Negro man, who was employed as a farm hand, had been walking stolidly behind me and plow for well over two hours. I saw him stop, take off his hat, kneel down beside his plow-handles, and pray. I had to wipe the stinging perspiration from my eyes, and look closer. He prayed for only a few moments, and then stood up, put his hat back in place, snapped the reins, and went back to work. As I think back on that hot and dusty day, that picture of the man, kneeling beside his plow, has remained vivid. In the midst of all that heat and dust, in the midst of all that looking down to the good earth for our bread, one man paused—for just a moment—to look up, and his drudgery was transformed into dedication, his exhaustion became exhilaration, and he experienced something glorious in one of life's inglorious moments.

Life requires a lot of you. You are involved in a busy world—everything from your occupational activities to your church, Little League, garden clubs, civic organizations, and a host of others—all of which make excessive demands on your time and energy. You need to remember that if you are going to continue to give so much, you will need to stop and take the time for re-fueling. Your automobile cannot continue to go without refueling; neither can you. You must reserve that quiet moment every day when you stop and remember the words: "Be still, and know that I am God." You must take your moment to look up—for that bread which comes down from heaven.

(In the coming weeks this series will present quotations from speeches and writings from prominent leaders, past and present, of the communist world.)

Communist regimes have made it abundantly clear that public schools are to be used primarily to indoctrinate loyalty to the regime as well as to train a skilled work force capable of rapidly assisting in the industrialization of the country. The schools are to mold the "New Man," subservient to Communist dictators and skilled in industrial skills. Both Lenin and Stalin described education as a weapon against the onslaughts of the bourgeoisie capitalist.

LUNACHARSKY (First Commissar of Education)
"We can mold a child 4-6 years into anything we wish; at the age of 8-9 we have to bend him; at the age of 16-17 we must break him; and thereafter, one may well say, only the grave can correct a hunchback."

LENIN
"Only the free and compulsory education of all children can free the people at least to some extent from their present state of ignorance. This tool will serve to crush the remnants of capitalist and religious slavery."

STALIN
"Education is a weapon the effect of which is determined by the hands which wield it, by who is to be struck down."

SOVIET PUBLICATION—"CULTURE AND LIFE"
"The Soviet school cannot be satisfied to rear merely educated persons. Basing itself on the acts and deductions of progressive science, it should instill the ideology of Communism in the minds of the young generation, shape a Marxist-Leninist world outlook and inculcate the spirit of Soviet patriotism and Bolshevik ideas in them."

SOVIET PUBLICATION—"PEDAGOGIA"
"It is the duty of all teachers to instill in children a hatred for the enemies of the people."

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

A Complete Misnomer

By Representative FRANK THOMPSON, JR. (D-N. J.)
Representative Thompson is a member of the House Education and Labor Committee

It is now 18 years since passage of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Eighteen years is time enough to test the effectiveness of its provisions, and most particularly that section of it which has received so much publicity and caused so much public debate and dissension.

This section, 14 (b), specifically authorizes states to enact "right to work" laws. These so-called "right to work" laws curb free collective bargaining by prohibiting unions and employers from agreeing to union security clauses in their contracts. This means that in 19 states at the present time union shops are forbidden. As a result, unions are weak in these states.

Wages are low.

NO GUARANTEE

The term "right to work" is a complete misnomer. "Right to work" laws do not guarantee anyone a job. They do not create any new jobs. They hold out no hope for the unemployed, nor can they protect any worker facing lay-off from his job. They promote no positive right, and have nothing to do with work. The phrase "right to work" is nothing more than a fancy package dressing up shabby goods.

A map of the "right to work" states will, with the exception of those which have received a great deal of defense money, outline poverty in the United States. It is apparent that despite the lure which low salaries present; despite the false promise of good labor relations resulting from "right to work" laws that these laws have not proven a decisive factor in building the economy of these states.

The "right to work" laws have served no good purpose. It is time that we returned to a uniform national policy with respect to union security. We must repeal section 14 (b).

The repeal of this section will not create a compulsory union shop. It would merely put the power of decision where it should be, with the employee.

In the 31 states which allow a union shop the great majority of employees are not union members. The individual is obviously not compelled to join a union. However, he should have the right to decide whether he wants to belong to one or not.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

To hold that restoring the right to vote to the minority endangers the right to work of the majority is obviously false. The repeal of 14 (b) only restores to this minority the freedom of choice which has been denied to them in 19 states. This restoration of freedom is desirable.

Congress is now considering this issue. The President has strongly supported repeal both in his State of the Union Message and in his later message on labor. I am hopeful that the Congress will heed his words.

Repeal is right. It is right that the employees should have the right to vote to determine whether or not they want to negotiate for a union security clause in their contract. Who else should have this right?

FISH WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE

Several hundred smallmouth bass and rock bass (red-eyes) in the Clinch River in Russell and Scott Counties now have a price on their head, according to Game Commission Fish Research Biologist Bob Wolitz.

The fish have been tagged with red plastic disks and metal jaw tags for the return of which, when accompanied by the proper information, the Game Commission will pay $1.00 each.

The tagging effort is part of a project to determine fish movement and rate of harvest in that section of the river.

When returning tags for the reward, fishermen must supply the specific point on the river at which the fish was taken (such as specific hole or other land marks), the length of the fish and the date caught.

The red plastic disk tags are attached with a piece of monofilament to the back and the metal tags are clamped into the upper jaw.

Tags should be returned to the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, Box 1642, Richmond 22313.

Lorenzen's Goal: The Southern 500 Crown

DARLINGTON — Will Fred Lorenzen, the so-called "Golden Boy of stock car racing," realizes his one remaining ambition and win his first Southern 500 this Labor Day on the race track that gave him his start in the big time.

Past performances says he won't and that the 30-year-old blonde bachelor faces a long winter of painfully counting his money!

Back in 1960 the then full time finish carpenter from Elmhurst, Ill., came out of a midwest tank circuit with a championship rating and a burning desire to crash the NASCAR big time by winning the nation's oldest stock car classic, the Labor Day Southern 500 at Darlington Raceway.

"Crash" was hardly the proper description. Lorenzen finished 28th (his racing numeral then, and now) when he blew his patched-up Ford motor on the 189th lap. Except for 1963, when the Wall Street scion finished a badly beaten third to record-setting Fireball Roberts, the Yankee Carpetbagger has never been higher than 22nd in a Southern 500 finish.

Otherwise Lorenzen's winning and money record is unmatched in the annals of stock car racing classics. The Holman-Moody ace took his first classic win the following spring when he won the Rebel 300 at Darlington and in the ensuing four and a half years started in 23 of these high-money races winning a total of ten!

This figures out to a .434 batting average and not even Ted Williams could reach that figure. There have been many great money drivers in the past, specifically Lorenzen's tutor, Fireball Roberts, but by winning the two richest races of this early spring, the Daytona 500 and Charlotte 600, Lorenzen pushed his total take well past the quarter million dollar figure, $256,040 to be exact, more than $80,000 in excess of the figure earned by immortal Roberts.

To break down Lorenzen's taxable figures a bit more, the pearly-gray and blue Fords Lorenzen has driven bears a mileage total just over the 7,000 mark in classic racing of which number 28 authored 4,400 in winning. This figures out to 53 hours and 48 minutes of joy riding at 130 mph for which Lorenzen has been paid $78.34 per minute!

Even the personable jack-in-the-box will admit this is slightly over the union scale for finish carpenters.

Staggering figures are always misleading. The $256,000 plus total Lorenzen has earned represents only the NASCAR purse layout, not his percentage, expenses, gratuities or salaries. Neither does it include lap money, accessory prizes, endorsements or money won at some of the minor half-mile races which do reach a substantial payout.

But, the tax people have a little gimmick they use to success in judgement called "apparent wealth" and in Lorenzen's case this includes silk suits, his own airplane once (his motor conked in flight and he sold the plane to become an ex-pilot) and an admitted hundred grand in blue chip stocks. The Lorenzen entourage now includes his own stock broker, when traveling, whose duty is to keep an open line to the big ticker in that great New York canyon called Wall Street.

Apparently set for life, why doesn't this handsome young man quit the dangerous sport?

Standing in money up to his ears and garnished by a huge wreath of roses when he won the Charlotte 600 last May, Freddy the Fantastic answered this question for reporters.

"When I was a boy back in Chicago I heard the broadcast of the Southern 500 and I said then that some day I would win this race. "That's the only thing I haven't won that I have wanted to win and when I do then, maybe, I'll start thinking about quitting."

The next stop on the classic money trail is the 16th Southern 500 at Darlington Labor Day.

DORIS PADRICK'S VIEW of VIRGINIA BEACH

"It was so nice to lie in bed stretching lazily while the fragrance of frying bacon and perking coffee drifted up over the stairs. She could hear the rattle of the pans being moved about on the stove, the clatter of dishes being set on the table, and the thump, thump of the washing machine going. Mother must have been up quite some time. But it was summer, and school was out. She hadn't a care in the world.

Looked like a good day for the beach, though... so tossing back the covers, she got up... dropped off her pajamas... and got into her freshly ironed shorts and halter Mother had done for her yesterday.

Mother was outside hanging up the laundry when she came into the dining room so she read the morning newspaper till she came in. "Squeeze me some orange juice, Mother, and I think I'd like some scrambled eggs and toast," she instructed as she read the funnies. Half-sprawled in the chair and balancing the breakfast plate on her upraised knee, she munched contentedly while Mother got out the vacuum cleaner and buzzed around the living room.

Leaving her dishes on the table with the crumpled newspaper spread over the butter and jelly and sugar bowl, she called out as she went through the screen door. "Am going over to see Jennie and Rita; we'll probably go to the beach. Pack me a lunch and have it ready when I get back."

The girls came back together in a couple of hours, giggling about the boys who had whistled at them as they walked around town. Mother was upstairs making beds and straightening the bedrooms. "Did you make my lunch, Mother? We're ready to go to the beach. You didn't have time? Well, can I have 50¢? We'll get something at the drug store..." Mother said something, but the girl was busy rattling the coins in the household money jar and she didn't listen. Taking the half dollar, the door slammed and they were gone still giggling and squealing, all talking at once.

It was late afternoon when she returned, barefooted with sand clinging to her sunbaked legs, a large towel carelessly carried over her shoulder revealing more than concealing her neat little figure in the two piece bathing suit. "Hope no one is in the bathtub," she greeted her mother who was putting the finishing touches on supper and moving briskly between stove, refrigerator, and dining room. Her father was reading the evening newspaper sitting in his easy chair in the living room. He looked over his glasses, and roared, "PUT SOME CLOTHES ON!" She grinned and blew him a kiss as she took the steps two at a time... and the bathroom door slammed shut and the lock clicked.

Half an hour later she was still in the bathroom curling her hair when Mother called her to supper. The towels were left crumpled on the floor, the soapy water was draining slowly leaving a ring and sand in the tub, the bathing suit was soaking in the sink. She arrived at the table looking like a newly minted penny. She chattered continuously through the meal... and consumed everything in sight!

The heavy roar of a motorcycle was heard. She zoomed from her chair and out the front door. A few minutes she was back, her eyes like stars. "Billy asked me to go for a ride on his new cycle." "You are NOT going," Father commands. "Now, dear, he's a nice boy..." Mother interrupts. "Who is he? Why doesn't he come to the door like a respectable human being?" Father demands. "They are young," Mother consoles him. "Times have changed, dear." She looks at the excited young girl. "Go ahead, honey; it's all right. But tell him to drive carefully."

The boy in the leather jacket and the close cropped hair and the girl with her long hair streaming back and her arms wrapped around the boy's waist go spinning off down the road. Father is still muttering about "this crazy younger generation."

She was sixteen. And the year was 1939.

Low Bid On School Made

VIRGINIA BEACH — The School Board has accepted a low bid of $474,000 for the construction of a new elementary school on Stephens Road in West Alanton.

The low bid was submitted by Conrad Bros., Inc. The school will be financed partially by federal funds and by the recent 5 million dollar school bond issue.

Deleted from the original plans were the alternates, mainly a gymnasium, to reduce the cost from $503,979 to the accepted figure.

Completion of the West Alanton school is slated for September 1966.

Five other schools under construction are to open in September.

Flight Team To Perform

OCEANA — The Blue Angels, the Navy's flight demonstration team, known and respected throughout the aviation world as the finest aviators in the world, will perform Sunday, Aug. 8, at 2 p.m., NAS Oceana.

Admission is free. The public is invited.

Three elementary schools, at Windsor Woods, Kingston and Old Donation, are financed by federal funds.

Two high schools, one at Alanton and one at Kempville, are financed by the bond issue.

AIR STATION IS FULLY AUTOMATED

VIRGINIA BEACH — The U.S. Naval Air Station at Oceana now has a new and larger automated Data Processing Center.

Data Processing, which facilitates inventory control, bookkeeping, disbursing, man hour accounting and fiscal accounting, as well as other management control systems, also plays an important part in the Navy's new mechanical supply system.

Because of the new responsibilities and tasks which it is called upon to perform and to meet the growing needs of the station, Data Processing was recently made a separate department.

The new center, with space for its work force of 30, plus the complicated equipment that they operate is expected to play a more important role in the overall efficiency of the master jet base.

Former Resident Gets Safety Award

An award for outstanding achievement in flight safety was received recently by Capt. Lucian A. Gunter, III, a former Virginia Beach resident.

Gunter is the son of Mrs. B. M. Gunter 1231 Land St. His father, L. A. Gunter Jr., lives in Norfolk. Capt. Gunter is stationed at Goodfellow AFB, Central Air Reserve Center in Texas. "He has not been home in 3 1/2 years," said his sister, Mrs. James A. Hughes. "We expect him the last of July."

During his tour on Okinawa, he was in Viet Nam three times.

Marine Reservists Will Train At Little Creek

VIRGINIA BEACH — More than 16,000 Marine Corps Reservists are expected to arrive at the Little Creek Amphibious Base Sunday for two weeks annual training duty.

The citizen Marines, from 13 different Organized Marine Corps Reserve Units, represent the second of three groups slated for intensive amphibious warfare training at this base, under the direction of the Landing Force Training Unit, Atlantic.

The first group, composed of 1,500 Reservists, completed training July 9 when they formed a Provisional Marine Expeditionary Brigade for an amphibious assault landing on the beaches of nearby Camp Pendleton before some 2,000 military and civilian spectators.

While undergoing training at Little Creek, the Reservists will be trained in obstacle course, wet and dry net and water survival techniques. Also included in a busy two-week schedule will be guerrilla warfare exercises.

On Friday, July 30, mid-way point in their training, they'll conduct a regimental-size sunset parade and review on the parade field adjacent to Rockwell Hall.

The 13 units will complete this year's annual training duty Aug. 6 when they make an amphibious assault landing at Camp Pendleton. Troops will embark from ships anchored at sea, proceed to shore in armored tracked landing vehicles and "hit the beach" at 9 a.m.

All military and civilian personnel and their guests are invited to view both the sunset parade and the amphibious landing. Visitors who plan to witness the Marine Corps-Navy team in action at Camp Pendleton should plan to arrive no later than 8:30 a.m.

Units expected to arrive here July 25 represent: Richmond, Va.; St. Louis, Mo.; Savannah, Ga.; Little Rock, Ark.; Rockford, Ill.; Joliet, Ill.; Gary, Ind.; Indianapolis, Ind.; New Haven, Conn.; Charlotte, N.C.; Augusta, Ga.; Miami, Fla., and Gulfport, Miss.

The last Marine Reserve group to train here this summer will arrive Aug. 15. They'll conduct their sunset parade Aug. 20, followed by an assault landing on Aug. 27.

Overall commander for the Reservists' annual training duty is Brigadier General Gordon D. Gayle, Commanding General, Landing Force Training Unit, Atlantic, U.S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Norfolk.

TEENS WITH A BEAT ARE 'REAL NEAT'

by Doris Padrick
Today's teen-ager is often thought of as a mop of over-long hair... a monster... lazy... inconsiderate... and making wild and loud and riotous sounds he calls music. It is especially easy to cast such insults at the young who like to play in rock-and-roll bands. What kind of boys are they... really.

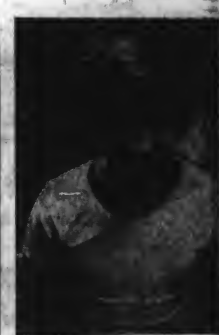

Doug, Bill, and Ric work part time with Maury Rignano at his auction house. Charlie helps out at home and looks after the younger members of the family when his parents are away.

Another local group of young musicians is "The Sandmen." They have been playing together for about six months and are making the rounds of local teen clubs Monster?

Mop Head?

"The Earthquakes" are a local band. They play their music with the modern beat; the kind that makes the kids want to dance. They are good. And gradually they are climbing the ladder of success and making money. They don't get their hair cut very often. But they are, not bums, they are not lazy, and they are not monsters. They are decent kids and they live "next door."

Bill Harris, Charles Mariak, and Doug Christon are all 17 years old and attend Cox High school. Ric Rignano is 19, and his father, Maury Rignano, is their manager. Ric graduated from Virginia Beach High School.

The boys have been together a year and have had many interesting engagements—"The Earthquakes" played for the Azalea queen, the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce outings, on the show with the Dave Clark Five, at the Dome and other local teen clubs, have been on local TV programs, and just recently finished a successful run at Nag's Head. Plans are in the making for them to cut a record...

Ric plays the lead guitar; Bill, the bass; Doug, the rhythm (he is also the lead singer); and Charlie is on the drums. Ric and Doug are surfing enthusiasts.

and at private parties. Three of the boys are students of Virginia Beach High school and the other goes to Cox.

Terry Wesdous of VBHS, 17, is the manager and plays the lead guitar. The rhythm guitar is strummed by Roy Ramney, 17, of VBHS; Tom Wood of Cox is 17, has the bass and is the lead singer. The drummer is Wayne Woods, 16, of VBHS.

When not making music for the Azalea queen, Terry works at a produce market; Roy is a lifeguard at Virginia Beach; Terry works as an electrician; and Wayne is a short order cook and dishwasher. All of them are surfers.

"The Earthquakes" and "The Sandmen" take on the rigors of a musician's life mostly for the fun of it. The financial gain is secondary to their enjoyment of bringing the beat. "We like to play," says Doug. "We play anywhere and have fun doing it. The people we meet, the places we go—that's the main reason we do it." Tom Wood agreed with him. "we are having a ball!"

What more could a teen-ager ask for... except, perhaps, a little more tolerant understanding from the adults!

Local Jehovah's Witness Youth To Study In N.Y.

by Rev. Russell Capps
VIRGINIA BEACH — Should the Bible be watered down for youths? Not according to Jehovah's Witnesses.

To prove it, thousands of Witnesses from the northeastern U.S. are bringing their children with them to New York's Yankee Stadium the week of Aug. 24-29 to listen to six days of Bible discussion during their "Word of Truth" convention.

One such family group is Mr. and Mrs. John Giles and their three children, who live at 5501 Goodman Road.

Thousands of families like them will be filling Yankee Stadium. A large part of the audience will be small children who will sit quietly in their seats through two- and three-hour-long sessions, listening to discussions on varied Biblical subjects.

When charged with placing undue restrictions on their children, Witness parents point to the present noisy generation of teenagers with its empty indifference, its drug and watusi.

They ask, "Could most tension-filled adolescents, with jazz-blasting radios glued to their ears, listen quietly to even five minutes of scriptural instruction?"

Said Giles, "We have a number of small children who regularly attend the five weekly Bible instruction meetings at our Kingdom Hall, so they have been already well trained to listen quietly."

"As a matter of fact," he said, "it is now an accepted fact that very young minds can learn quickly."

"Some of the children born to our missionaries learn to speak several languages at a tender age. We heard of one eight-year-old girl who could speak and understand Siamese, Finnish, English and Chinese!"

"A young mind able master such difficult languages certainly has the capacity to absorb intensive Bible training."

"Mrs. Giles added: 'If a child can learn how to become a criminal before he reaches the age of eight, then a very tender age is none too soon to start teaching him to live by Bible principles.'"

"Some parents believe this can be accomplished by sending the child off once a week for an hour of religious instruction with other youths. The Witnesses believe this is the parents' daily responsibility."

She continued: "The general trend of Bible instruction today is to give children coloring books or reduce the scriptures to words in the mouth of comic-strip characters. One such book asks, 'What's Bugging Ole Pharaoh?' and pokes fun at a serious narrative. Pharaoh is no cartoon character to our youths. We patiently help them grasp the deeper meaning of such Bible accounts."

The Witnesses have good reason to be proud of their youngsters—notably well behaved. Hundreds of such youthfully trained men and women are helping to staff the Witnesses' 90 branch offices throughout the world.

Many more hundreds are serving as missionaries all over the globe, and as the religious group adds tens of thousands to its ranks each year, more opportunities open up for youths.

KITTEN UP A TREE

Puffy has a problem. She's much better at climbing trees than she is at getting down again. Usually someone has to get a ladder and bring poor Puffy back to earth.

People share Puffy's problem. Their fears are forever driving them to do what they can't undo. They run away from reality only to wish they hadn't. We have even coined the idiom "up a tree" to denote the dilemma of a situation from which we cannot free ourselves.

With people, it takes more than a ladder to solve the problem.

Through the centuries men have found Faith an answer to fear. Our churches cultivate courageous Christians. For with confidence in God comes confidence in ourselves.

The man who knows he's never alone doesn't run away.

Peninsula Playhouse Gets Applause

WILLIAMSBURG — Virginia's new professional theatre featuring stars of Broadway, Hollywood and television, the Peninsula Playhouse, opened to praising reviews July 1 with Paul Richards, star of television's "Breaking Point" series, in "A Thousand Clowns".

Located on Richmond Road in Williamsburg, the air-conditioned theatre will present top-name stars in Broadway's brightest comedies for a summer season that will extend to Oct. 23.

"A Thousand Clowns" will continue at the Peninsula Playhouse through July 31 with performances nightly Monday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and matinees Friday and Saturday at 2:00 p.m. For reservations call CA 9-8252. Bill McLaughlin, Daily Press critic, wrote: "Thursday night's opening of the new Peninsula Playhouse easily provided the best show — from a professional standpoint — in the theatrical history of the Colonial capital."

Tim O'Keefe, reviewing in the Richmond News Leader, exclaimed: "An enthusiastic audience warmly greeted the opening of the new Peninsula Playhouse and 'A Thousand Clowns'... (The) cast gives the production an overall sheen that has rarely been evident before in this area... Richards is appealing and convincing..."

"Neither democracy nor effective representation is possible until each participant in the group—and this is equally true of a household or a nation—devotes a measurable part of his life to furthering its existence." —Lewis Mumford

Hello Folks! The above quotation is citizenship in a nutshell. We are proud to be able to say that this week one of our 4-H Club members is a delegate to the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course, being held at the National 4-H Center, in Washington, D.C., this week. She is Mary Bungard, of the Thalia Community 4-H Club.

Mary has been an active 4-H Club member for seven years and has held offices in her local club and in the City wide 4-H Council and Honor Club. Just recently she was state winner in the Citizenship Demonstration Contest. Last fall she won the city award in Citizenship and a partial scholarship to the Citizenship Short Course.

During this week, Mary will be learning about our National Government and to become a better citizen. She will learn how to live the Citizenship pledge. I hope that you too can learn to do this. The pledge is as follows:

"We, individually and collectively, pledge our efforts from day to day to fight for the ideals of this Nation."

"We will never allow tyranny and injustice to become enthroned in this, our country, thru indifference to our duties as citizens."

"We will strive for intellectual honesty and exercise it through our power of franchise. We will obey the laws of our land and endeavor increasingly to quicken the sense of public duty among our fellow men."

"We will strive for individual perfection and for social betterment. We will devote our talents to the improvement of our homes and our communities in their recreational, social, and spiritual needs."

"We will endeavor to transmit this Nation to posterity not merely as we found it, but freer, happier, and more beautiful than when it was transmitted to us."

DISTRESS SIGNALS

Many boats, cabin cruisers, outboards and even open launches, and utility boats carry radio telephones. This radio telephone should only be used for emergency calls and in a brief manner, so as to give the next man in trouble a chance.

"MAYDAY" is the emergency distress signal. If you hear this call listen, so you will be able to answer the distressed vessel and pin point the vessel's location.

If you are making the distress call yourself, and someone answers tell them as briefly as you can of your trouble and your location.

Don't ever use the distress signal unless you are in trouble, as you can cause a great many people a lot of inconvenience and at the same time seriously jeopardize boaters' prompt response to real distress signals in the future.

The most widely recognized distress signal is "S.O.S." This in Morse code is made with three dots, three dashes, three dots. This call can be sent by sound signals: three short (space) three long (space) and three short blasts on your sounding device. A flash light may be used to accomplish the same purpose and may be seen for long distances.

Other recognized distress signals are: A gun or other explosive, fired at intervals of about one minute; continuous sounding of fog horn or whistle; rockets or shells burning red flares; flames at night; a heavy black smoke signal during the day; or a square flag with a round object above or below it.

An old fisherman's distress signal is a pair of trousers or other conspicuous object hung on the rigging.

A small craft distress signal consisting of standing up and raising and lowering outstretched arms. In the event you have an emergency, have all occupants put on lifesaving devices and remain calm.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids Without Surgery

Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "I'll have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Are you still using the same old ironing board? If so, it probably lacks many convenience features of today's model.

Shopping for an ironing board: Look for stability. The ironing board especially should be checked when leaves are open to make what in some models is called an ironing table. Open and close the board to see that it moves easily.

Note adjustment levers. Be sure board adjusts to various sitting and standing heights. The lever holds tightly.

Check locking device. When folded for storage, be sure it stays folded.

Choose a well-fitted pad and cover. Manufacturers of ironing boards usually make covers and pads to fit models. Some make an all-in-one cover and pad. Silicone covers are more soiled and stain resistant and reflect heat.

Warning: The National Safety Council and many others interested in safety have issued a warning against the use of carbon tetrachloride. This effective solvent for oil, grease and wax used for cleaning clothing, upholstery and photographic negatives, killing butterflies and sometimes as a constituent in insecticides, paints and fire extinguishers is one of the most toxic substances known.

Swallowing a teaspoonful has caused death but its most vicious hazard is its vapor which can be inhaled. Its presence is not always detectable. Thought to be safer because of being non-flammable than other cleaners it is now known to be a killer. It affects kidneys, liver and brain.

The symptoms appear too late to be a warning and end in prolonged illness or death.

Be safe! Buy no cleaner containing carbon tetrachloride. Buy a safe commercial solvent instead.

Have a nice weekend everybody.

Wait till the sun shines...

Come rain and Peugeot's sliding sun-roof shuts up tight and dry. Come shine and you have the free feeling of open sky and cooling breeze. You'll find this safe, solid steel sun-roof on every Peugeot sedan. It works so smoothly you can adjust it with one hand—even while you're driving! The sunroof is just one feature of a unique car that offers so many extras at no extra cost. More than $500 worth to be exact. Reclining seats; four-speed transmission; Michelin X tires; stainless steel wheel covers, bumpers and trim; door-to-door carpeting; windshield washers; trip mileage country child-proof locks on rear doors. And many more.

Best of all, Peugeot is built with unmatched integrity. Every part is inspected before and after assembly. Every car is test driven. With remarkable response, ample power (88 mph if you insist) and timeless styling, Peugeot is indeed the car of a lifetime. Available in three models. The economical 403 Sedan (considered one of the 7 best made cars in the world by John Bond, Publisher of Road & Track), the 404 Sedan (designed to be even better), and the roomy Station Wagon. Even if you close your eyes and choose, you can't go wrong.

DON'T MAKE WAVES!

On a hot, sultry summer day, don't generate more heat with a lot of haste and bustle. Follow the example of people who live in warm-weather climates the year round. As the Spanish would advise: Keep cool—quietly. As we say: Don't make waves!

The first rule: Break off diplomatic relations with all tennis players, golf enthusiasts and hikers. There's only one way to beat heat: Select a shady spot as they do along the Mediterranean shores, add one soft, reclining chair and a table set with a single glass, a tall pitcher of dry liquid refreshment, a bucket of ice. Like the Spanish, you'll soon find that one of their dry sherry quenches thirst—and satisfied it. Don't cringe when your friends call you lazy. It's crazy to be anything else.

There are a good many summer sports you can engage in. But it's not recommended. Unlike the bear who does his sleeping in winter, you can rest up for the snow season—sleep through summer! Of course, you needn't take the advice literally. You can read in between cat-naps—as long as the book's not too exciting, and you can even chat a bit—but only with your calm acquaintances. In fact, when you get the summer-safe formula down to a science, you'll probably find yourself a popular—even if unwilling—host. Others will be magnetically attracted.

To live up to your reputation, serve the coolest drink known: a Spanish Sherry Cooler. Don't work! Simply provide the ingredients. It's so easy to prepare, you'll have volunteers making the second. If you're feeling particularly sociable, you might provide a platter of semi-sweet crackers. But most people find summer an ideal time to keep away from solids.

For a change of pace, try Spanish Sherry mixed with equal parts of orange juice and a dash of biters—a quick quencher that will add to your fame.

For an evening get-together, trade in your pitcher for a punch bowl. It's easier and requires fewer mixings. The Spanish Sherry Cooler made in the same proportions, may be tripled and quadrupled in quantity. Serve with tapas, as they do in Spain. These are little tidbits that can be prepared in a jiffy with a variety of canned seafoods, salted crackers and pimientos for the special Spanish touch.

Don't worry if the party lasts until the wee hours. You have a full day of relaxation scheduled for tomorrow—don't you?

SPANISH SHERRY COOLER
1/2 cup dry Spanish Sherry
1 small scoop orange sherbet
1 bottle orange soda
Orange slices
Dash of Angostura Bitters

HOT BOTTLE WILL DRAW SPLINTERS

DORSETSHIRE, England — Doctors are willing to learn from non-professionals. There's evidence in a letter to the British Medical Journal from Dr. David C. Langley, who describes a "simple, safe, and sure" method for removing splinters taught him by "an old Dorsetshire hedgehog."

"A narrow-necked bottle is filled with hot water, and emptied again when the glass is as hot as possible. The neck of the bottle is then placed over the splinter, and as the bottle cools down a partial vacuum is created, thus drawing the splinter towards the surface of the skin. This procedure may be repeated several times, as necessary. The hotter the water, the larger the capacity of the bottle, and the narrower the neck, the greater will be the negative pressure created."

Four Sherry into a tall glass. Add sherbet and stir to blend well. Add enough orange soda to fill the glass. Garnish with an orange slice.

Doctor Says Alcohol Good For Some Ills

NEW YORK — Liquor is helpful in treating heart disease, kidney disease, diabetes, and assorted other ills, according to a report by a prominent doctor in the current issue of SAGA magazine.

Dr. Morris E. Chafetz, a world-famous psychiatrist at Harvard University, states flatly in the article that liquor does not directly cause any known damage to the human body, and in many cases, is helpful in spite of generally accepted beliefs to the contrary.

Says Chafetz, "Liquor as a medicine for the treatment of heart disease has been of value for centuries. Not only is alcohol important in dilating the heart's own blood-vessel system at times of painful stress, but the anxiety-provoking terror of the cardiac cripple awaiting the next attack can be lessened by carefully controlled doses of liquor."

As for its value in the treatment of kidney disease, Dr. Chafetz says, "alcohol, with its strong affinity for fats, is little attracted to kidney tissue because of the low fat content of this organ."

"With the patient on a monotonous low protein, high carbohydrate diet, liquor can make the patient's diet more attractive by providing needed carbohydrate nourishment, but without protein, which for him is harmful."

For sufferers of diabetes who have been denied liquor by their doctors, Chafetz counsels, "There really is nothing wrong with alcohol used by diabetics when under careful control."

"This control must provide for the correct elimination of carbohydrates in order to maintain a proper nutritional diet."

"I am not pushing liquor in diabetes," says the doctor in the SAGA article, "but in a condition where the patient is deprived of much which is pleasurable in life, if small doses of liquor can lighten the load and provide a small measure of pleasure for those who prefer to drink, why not?"

Even for alcoholics with liver disease, Dr. Chafetz believes that liquor is helpful in treatment. Says the doctor:

"A small amount of alcohol administered with proper meals may actually hasten recovery for the malnourished alcoholic. That familiar friendly substance with its ready energy and its brightening of gloom, reality certainly can do no harm. And those who fear that the taste of demon rum will set our patient off on a liquor binge are wrong."

"The properly cared for, hospitalized alcoholic rarely feels the tug toward alcohol while on the inside. Only on the outside, where his burning fears meet the cold realities, does he seek the solace of the bottle."

As for the fear that liquor is injurious to diseased liver, Dr. Chafetz adds:

"In studies of patients suffering from hepatitis and cirrhosis of the liver, patients drinking relatively large amounts of alcohol in the period of convalescence showed no more evidence of liver damage than those who consumed small amounts, or none at all."

In concluding the SAGA article, Dr. Chafetz states:

"As liquor does not directly cause any known damage to the human body, it is hoped that physicians will discard their own personal prejudices, consider the whole patient, and prescribe the substance that may provide a measure of peace and pleasure for some of the sufferers in our society."

Ava Gardner Is Subject Of Norfolk Writer's Study

by Henry Melville
Ava Gardner, the worldly and famous actress who deserted a North Carolina farm background and moved to Newport News when she was 12, has rarely been the subject for historical research.

A Norfolk writer has changed all that.

For the first time, the Tar Heel star's career has become the subject for a serious treatise.

The article is a milestone in the June issue of "Films in Review", magazine, published by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures of New York.

The writer is Mal Vincent, a native of Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

In private life, Mal is one of Ava's most avid fans and he wanted to chronicle her career.

"I thought Ava Gardner's career should be recorded with depth and sensitivity. This has never been done in those adolescent movie fan magazines," he explained.

"Films in Review" was one film journal Vincent read regularly and it features in each issue several career articles on the classic film personalities. Few contemporary glamor girls are featured in the career section.

In the past, "Films" has published articles on the careers of such super-stars as John Gilbert, Bette Davis, Clark Gable, Humphrey Bogart, Ronald Colman, Frederic March, Katherine Hepburn, Norma Shearer, Olivia de Havilland and Sarah Bernhardt.

To begin his research, Mal wrote the Wilson (N.C.) Daily Times and the Smithfield, (N.C.) Herald asking them to print pleas for information on Ava's early life. As a result, many letters poured into Vincent's research files.

Ava was born on Christmas Eve Day in 1922. Although her birthplace is generally given as Smithfield, she was actually born at a crossroads community called Grabtown near Smithfield.

Ava, youngest of six children, lived near Smithfield until the age of 12 when the family moved to Newport News.

One of the basic questions that had to be answered was: how did this North Carolina girl get from the farm to Hollywood? In the summer of 1940, after she had completed one year of secretarial training at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, Ava went to New York City to visit her eldest sister Bessie. As so happened that Bessie's husband, Larry Tarr, was a professional photographer. He used his 17-year-old hazel-eyed sister-in-law as the model for some 60 photographs.

Fate struck when a clerk in Lowe's New York legal department spotted Ava's photo in Tarr's studio window. A screen test was made and sent to Hollywood and the result was a one-way ticket to the movie capital for the Tar Heel teenager.

A studio publicist who viewed the test exclaimed, "She can't act, she can't talk. She's sensational!" No overnight success, Gardner appeared in walk-on roles in 12 films over a period of five years before she received a substantial role in "Whistle Stop."

Her progress toward stardom was furthered with roles in "The Killers," 1946, opposite Burt Lancaster and "The Hucksters," 1947, opposite Clark Gable.

Armed with this preliminary research, Vincent headed for New York to present the idea for a career article to Henry Hart, editor of "Films in Review" and treasurer for the National Board of Review.

Hart's first comment to the writer was an emphatic "No!" After only a brief moment of discouragement, Vincent quickly let go with a barrage of his best ammunition.

"I know I'm a bit prejudiced because Ava is from North Carolina, but after all, she did lose the New York Film Critic's Award as best actress of the year by only one vote." (Vincent learned this fact from a letter he received from Bosley Crowther, movie critic for the New York Times.)

The writer also reminded Hart that Miss Gardner was nominated for the Oscar that same year (1953) for her role as the witty adventuress in "Mogambo."

After Vincent's return to North Carolina, Hart wrote him: "We would be interested in treating Gardner's career but only if the untoward aspects are included. No publicity papi! Use only quotes that she means."

After pouring through hundreds of pages of magazine articles published during the past 20 years, Vincent found it difficult to separate the doubtful from the authentic. The star was found to be a woman of much complexity.

Much had been penned about her three marriages to Mickey Rooney, Arlie Shaw and most particularly, her romance and marriage to Frank Sinatra. Little light was shed on her personality.

Ava has always suffered from a relentless inferiority complex, Vincent feels. "She has constantly belittled her talents as an actress," he added.

She was once quoted as saying, "If I could only act, it would be different. . . It's just that I have this photographable face." She describes herself as shy and has said, "I'm always cast as a femme fatale and this isn't me at all. It even embarrasses me to see myself on film!"

Research for the article came from sources throughout the country. Some who helped Mal include Bosley Crowther, Miss Lillian Schwartz, librarian for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, and research workers at M.G.M. Studio and Paramount Studio. From the tidbits of information from many sources came a skeleton outline of the complete Gardner career.

The first draft was dispatched to the New York editor. The reception was something less than ecstatic. Hart said "This could be the basis for a career article. If you would be willing to answer a few questions, we will proceed with the project."

The "few questions" consisted of 26 queries demanding a wealth of detailed information. "I almost gave up!" Vincent declared.

The actual writing of the article was much easier than the research. A comprehensive coverage of Ava's career required an index of each film, including names of the director, producer, year of release, complete cast credits and a description of her part.

The effort was almost enough to turn Vincent to booze, he admitted. But not quite. To his rescue came Mrs. Inez Gardner Grimes of Smithfield, one of Ava's four sisters.

"What you want to know about my baby sister?" Mrs. Grimes asked Mal as he drove up in her driveway for the interview.

Like her celebrity sister, Mrs. Grimes was somewhat dubious of the press. "I never read those fan magazine stories about Ava. They're filled with so many lies," she said.

Inez agreed to contribute little-known facts about the early Gardner family life. She was tired of reading how Ava grew up in the fields.

Ava actually lived on the farm only when she was two years old. Then they moved into Smithfield where their mother ran a boarding house for schoolteachers.

Mrs. Grimes seldom sees her sister on the screen. She feels that "Mogambo" was the film in which Ava's real life personality comes through.

Inez said, "I knew when I saw it that the director had let her make up some of the dialogue. Some of the expressions she used were her own."

"There is no question," the Films in Review article states, "that Gardner's popularity has been the product of her own beauty and offscreen personality rather than the pictures in which she has appeared. Her 42 motion pictures have included less than half a dozen that are noteworthy."

Vincent names Gardner's five best movies as "Snows of Kilmanjaro," "Mogambo," "Show Boat," "The Barefoot Contessa," and "Night of the Iguana."

The Norfolk writer, who graduated in 1960 from the Journalism School of the University of North Carolina, diagnosed Ava's appeal as "the effective emanation of beauty compounded with class. She will be most pleasantly remembered as the embodiment of sex through an aura of genial, well-bred class. There was nothing cold or formal about her attractions in the series of 1940 films which brought her to fame."

Vincent went on to describe the star's voice. "It is soft, almost whispering and suggests a lazy anticipation of pleasures which she is quite sure will occur."

"Behind her spontaneous wide-mouthed, smile there is always a suggestion of a good-humored beauty who knew all about the pleasures of life. Her gift for comedy has been compared to that of Carole Lombard, in spite of the fact that film makers never effectively utilized it. Her appeal to women rests as a symbol of a way of life they would secretly like to pursue—the continental playgirl."

The international circulation of "Films in Review" within the film industry, hopefully, will create a greater awareness of Gardner's film worth, Mal believes.

Notes from Your Agricultural Agent

E. R. "DICK" COCKRELL, JR.

PROPER ADJUSTMENT OF FORAGE HARVESTERS

Sharp knives and a properly adjusted forage harvester mean a saving in time and fuel when harvesting silage, increased silo capacity, and better silage at feeding time.

For quality silage at feeding time, you need a quality forage crop at the proper stage of maturity at harvest time. The crop should be harvested to give short, uniformly cut silage.

Sharp knives and shear bars adjusted to the proper clearance aid in producing uniform-cut silage with minimum power requirements. Remember, that most of the power is used in the chopping process. If knives are dull or the shear bar-to-knife spacing is incorrect, you are throwing away power. The forage will be torn apart rather than cut. This eats up power and results in coarse, non-uniform silage that is difficult to pack. The end product is a lower quality silage of poor palatability.

A length of cut from one-fourth to three-eighths inch is desirable. Most newer forage harvesters can be adjusted for this length of cut. To overcome the problem of dull knives, many manufacturers are making it easier to sharpen or hone the knives. Knife sharpeners are built-in on many of the machines while on others knives can be easily removed for sharpening.

It's a good idea to check your operator's manual for information on adjustment and operation of your particular forage harvester.

Cylinder and flywheel type forage harvesters are noted for uniformity and control of length of cut, high capacity, and the adaptability to row, windrowed, and standing crops. The flail type harvester is less costly and has multiple uses, but provides less control on uniformity and length of cut.

Grass and legume crops should be properly wilted before they are put in storage. These crops can be wilted in the field by mowing, windrowing, and allowing to dry several hours before chopping. This permits lowering the moisture content from about 80 per cent at time of mowing to 60 - 65 per cent at time of chopping.

Wilted silage means more dry matter and less water in each load. It means two-thirds to one-half of the loads from the field to the silo. It also means no silo seepage and consequently a better quality feed.

LITTLE THEATER TRYOUTS AUGUST 2-3

Fenny Martin, director, states that she will need, in addition to the male and female leads, two young girls of about twenty, seven girls for the chorus, one boy about eight or ten years of age, and one bassoon player.

Faye MacKinnon, who will do the musical work for the production, states that the voices need not be professionally trained, but each singer must be able to act, as all the members of the cast have speaking parts.

DEMOCRATS MEET

VIRGINIA BEACH — Sidney Kellam and Democratic Party leaders took part in a strategy and planning session in Richmond last week with Mills E. Godwin Jr., the nominee for governor.

Kellam, who directed the successful campaign for President Johnson in Virginia will have an active role in the upcoming campaign.

EDUCATION IS VA. TB THEME

RICHMOND — For nearly 80 years Christmas Seal contributions have been used to fight tuberculosis, primarily through various forms of education.

The Virginia Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association (VTRDA) therefore chose "education" for the theme of its 1964-65 annual report, released today.

The front cover of the report features the door of the association's headquarters with the caption "Public School 311." The "311" is the building's address on South Boulevard, Richmond.

All section headings throughout the 20-page report have an education flavor, starting with "Expanded Curricula" and winding up with "Extra-curricular activities," "Commencement" and "Endowments."

Mrs. J. York Welborn, who served as president during the 1964-65 fiscal year, emphasized that "it is only through education that TB can be eradicated or respiratory disease effectively fought—education at the grass roots level but also among those in a position to teach."

She added that TB and respiratory disease statistics, tragically high and increasing as they are, will mean little to the general public until they are translated into forcefully understandable terms.
